WHITNEY BEGAN EMBEZZLING AS EARLY AS 1926

YACHT CLUB FUNDS MISAPPLIED IN 1930

By RICHARD L. STOKES,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—That Richard Whitney's embezzlements of customer securities were certainly under way in 1926 and probably in 1925 was testified today before the Securities and Exchange Commission by J. P. Lyss, assistant chief accountant of the S E C regional office in New York, who had charge of the commission's audit of Richard Whitney & Co. books, following its bankruptcy last March 8.

These dates are from five to six years prior to the broker's earliest transgression as hitherto known. District Attorney Dewey's review of the case for Judge Bohan of General Sessions mentioned an overnight hypothecation of George R. Sheldon estate securities during June, 1932.

As Whitney repeatedly broke his promise to his brother, George, to make no loans without the latter's knowledge, so today's testimony shows that he failed to keep his pledge to supply "full and complete" information of his misdeeds to the prosecuting and investigating authorities. It was chiefly on this ground that his attorney, Charles H. Tuttle, pleaded for leniency when the broker was sentenced. Whitney testified on two occasions that he could recall no instance of wrong doing prior to 1936. He added that, according to the newspapers, there had been a theft during 1932, but declared he had not verified the statement.

The firm's books reveal, said Lyss, that on a date unknown during 1925 the broker unlawfully transferred to his own custody, stock certificates of the Corporation Trust Co., of New York and the Corporation Trust Co., of New Jersey, which belonged to the estate of George R. Sheldon, his father-in-law. About the same time, Whitney obtained a loan of $300,000 from the Chase National Bank. The S E C auditors, while morally certain the two transactions were closely related, were unable to confirm the belief, Lyss declared, because the Chase Bank had destroyed its records for that year.

But it was proved, the witness continued, that on May 5, 1926, Whitney hypothecated Sheldon estate securities as collateral for a loan of $100,000 at the Mechanics and Metals Bank. For this he pledged 200 stock certificates of the Corporation Trust Co. of New York and New Jersey. Whitney was a co-trustee, with the Central Hanover Bank and Trust Co., under his father-in-law's will, of properties placed in a trust fund for the benefit of Mrs. Whitney, her sister, Mrs. Mary Sheldon Murphy, Harvard University and St. Paul's School. It thus appears that the management of this trust was in Whitney's hands for at least 12 years, from 1926 to his failure in 1938.

Yacht Club Pledges in 1930.

The embezzlement from the New York Yacht Club for which the broker was convicted and sentenced to prison, was far from the first instance of his misappropriation of its properties, Lyss related. These began on May 6, 1930, when Whitney pledged Yacht Club securities for a loan of $145,000 from the Harriman National Bank. Thereafter, until his bankruptcy, he made almost continuous unlawful use of these properties as collateral for innumerable loans. He was treasurer of the club throughout this period.

These Yacht Club securities were pledged not only at the Harriman Bank but at the Corn Exchange Bank Trust Co.

In 1925 and 1926 Richard Whitney was a Governor of the New York Stock Exchange. He became vice-president in 1929, and president in May, 1930, the very year and month of his first Yacht Club embezzlement.

$435,000 From Five Banks.

During the nine months before his failure, the accountant testified, Whitney was able to borrow a total of $435,000 from five large New York banks on security which the S E C schedule covering these transactions heads with the descrip-

GAR WOOD STRIKE SETTLED; WORKERS TO SHARE PROFITS

Corporation Announces It Will Give Employes 20 Per Cent of All Declared Dividends—C I O Contract to Be Negotiated.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, April 27.—Gar Wood Industries, Inc., announced today a profit-sharing plan under which its employes will receive 20 per cent of all declared dividends.

The corporation also announced settlement of a two-day strike by members of the United Automobile Workers' Union (C I O) which has closed two Detroit plants of the concern. Approximately 500 workers will return to their jobs tomorrow. Some 1000 men are on the company's payroll.

Garfield A. Wood, noted speedboat race driver, and for 17 years holder of the Harmsworth Trophy, is president of the corporation. The announcement said Wood "by his own action takes a 50 per cent reduction in his personal salary in order to give the company, its employes and stockholders every opportunity to make more profit."

The profit-sharing plan applies principally to factory workers and excludes salaried employes "receiving over a certain stipulated sum."

Union officers said members of the U A W local in the Wood plants here had accepted by a vote of 500 to 12 the strike settlement under which the company agreed to sign a contract yet to be negotiated, and to institute a straight piece-work system.

Gar Wood Industries, Inc., manufactures hydraulic hoists, motor busses, boats, air conditioning and home heating equipment. In addition to plants in Detroit, Highland Park and Marysville, Mich., it operates branches in Albany, Buffalo, Syracuse, Rochester and Long Island, N. Y.; Los Angeles, San Francisco, Baltimore, Boston, Chicago, Minneapolis, Philadelphia and Washington.

ROME SWARMING WITH POLICE FOR HITLER'S VISIT

Travelers Questioned and Watched—Soldiers Spy Into Sewers and Corners.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, April 27—Rome swarmed with police today in preparation for Reichsfuehrer Hitler's visit next week. Detectives and secret agents covered the city, on the alert for any sign of activity that might be directed against the German visitor. Hitler arrives at 8 p. m. Tuesday.

Railroad police were especially active in questioning passengers and recording their identifying documents. Agents operated in all railway stations. All persons entering the capital, especially foreigners, were watched; many were asked to account for themselves as they stepped from trains.

Hotel and apartment house janitors and rental agents were warned to make precise daily reports to police on arrivals and departures.

Regular troops patrolled the route of the Hitler procession through Rome, on daily inspections of sewers and other hidden spaces. Every mile of track which Hitler's train will travel from the Alps to Naples was guarded. A large part of the normal freight shipments from Rome has been suspended until after the visit.

A squad of German police aided in rounding up German Austrian refugees, especially Jews. Some have been taken into precautionary custody and others were ordered out of Rome for the period of the visit.

FORD HAS "PLEASANT" VISIT WITH ROOSEVELT

He Refuses to Say What They Talked About at White House Luncheon.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Henry Ford left the White House after a long luncheon conference with President Roosevelt today on economic conditions, remarking only that he had had a pleasant visit.

The 74-year-old automobile maker refused to answer any questions as he emerged on the front portico in the midst of nearly 100 newspaper men.

"Did you have a pleasant visit?" he was asked as he hurried into his big black limousine to go to the railroad station.

"Sure," was all that he would say.

G. Hall Roosevelt, brother-in-law of the President and the arranger of the conference, said: "It was all just a family conversation. There was nothing that smacked of commercialism in any way. There was very little economics in the discussion."

Ford; his son Edsel; William J. Cameron, a Ford Motor Co. spokesman, and Hall Roosevelt and Marriner Eccles, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, sat around the luncheon table in the family dining room on the first floor of the White House for about an hour.

After luncheon the group retired to the President's oval study on the second floor and remained for about three-quarters of an hour.

"Can you tell us about your conference?" Ford was asked as he left the White House.

"We don't do that," he said, and quickly strode down the steps to his car to catch a 4 o'clock train to New York, where tomorrow he will attend a newspaper publisher's convention.

Presidential aids, questioned by newspaper men for some details on the first meeting since Mr. Roosevelt entered the White House between the President and Ford, a New Deal critic, said there would be no statement from the executive offices.

The luncheon was held in the small White House family dining Earlier plans of the chief executive to receive Ford on a sunny portico just off the executive office were discarded. No reason was given, but the change apparently was due to the chilly temperature that did not rise even after several hours of bright morning sunshine.

A crowd of several hundred persons awaiting a glimpse of Ford soon heard of the switch in plans and rushed to the front entrance of the White House from in front of the executive wing.

Ford arrived in Washington at 8:40 a. m. and was met by Maj. H. Cunningham, an officer of the Ford assembly plant in Alexandria, Va. Ford left the train alone.

Ford visited briefly at the Navy Department today the offices he shared with his friend, Thomas A. Edison, at intervals during the World War. Ford built three-score eagle boats—patrol craft and submarine chasers—for the navy during the war. Six still are in service.

101-GUN SALUTE SIGNALS WEDDING OF KING ZOG

200 AT CEREMONY IN TIRANA PALACE

By the Associated Press.

TIRANA, Albania, April 27.—Countess Geraldine Apponyi, whose mother was an American, became the first Queen of the Albanians today when she was accepted in marriage by King Ahmed Zog in a civil ceremony.

A salvo of 101 guns, the tolling of church bells, and shouts of Mohammedan Muezzins praying from minarets signalled the marriage.

The ceremony was performed by Heqmet Delvina, vice-president of Parliament, after he had read the conditions of marriage from the civil code in the presence of 200 guests and members of the royal family.

Queen Geraldine thus became the second youngest reigning queen. She is 22 years old. Queen Farida of Egypt is 17. Queen Geraldine is the only Queen of American blood.

Ceremony in Palace.

The ceremony took place in the flower-banked annex of the small royal palace. The walls were covered with antique Albanian firearms.

The bride, slightly taller than the King, wore a gown of white satin, embroidered with diamante, pearls and silver threads in flower designs. She had a long-embroidered court train. A large veil of white tulle trailed from a high diadem of orange blossoms.

The King's bodyguard of 1000 men surrounded the palace grounds but admitted the crowd inside the walls where it pressed close to the palace doors.

Fifty thousand school children dressed in native costumes were in the throng, with gendarmes and deputations from every corner of the kingdom.

The bride rode to the palace behind four stallions sent from Hungary by the Apponyi family. She was followed by her mother, Mme. Gladys Stewart Girault, and her grandmother, Mme. Virginia Harding D'Ekna, both formerly of New York. One of her closest friends, Countess Muriel White Seherr-Thoss, American-born, was in the group surrounding the bride. Countess Seherr-Thoss is a daughter of the late Henry White, American diplomat.

Americans at Wedding.

Other Americans or part-Americans attending included the Queen's sister, Countess Virginia Apponyi Baghy and her brother, Count Julius Appony; Hugh S. Grant, the American Minister to Albania, and Mrs. Grant; and Col. George H. Paine, American military attache in Rome, and Mrs. Paine of Pennsylvania.

The King's six sisters, including the Princesses Maxhide, Ruhije and Myzejen who recently visited the United States, stood near the King.

No exceptions to the ordinary rites were made for the royal pair.

Delvina read a paragraph from the civil code for the ceremony. It said:

"The man and wife accept reciprocal obligations to live together in loyalty and mutual assistance. The man is head of the family, the wife follows the civil position of the man, taking his name and is obliged to follow the head of the family wherever he sees fit to dwell. The man is obliged to protect the wife, to procure her a living according to his means. The wife is obliged to contribute to his nourishment if he is without means."

Church and Mosque Service.

MAYOR LA GUARDIA PAYS SIX-HOUR VISIT TO ST. LOUIS

SPECIAL TAXES PROVIDE FUNDS

Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York, mentioned as a 1940 presidential possibility, was a visitor in St. Louis for six hours today. He told a gathering of about 700 business men at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon at Hotel Statler of New York's experience with slum clearance and unemployment relief, offering some suggestions to St. Louis on those matters.

Since he became Mayor of New York in 1933, LaGuardia said, the city has financed its share of relief costs by new tax levies. Borrowing to pay relief costs, he said, would pile up debts which would bankrupt any city. In this connection he remarked that cities were not like "the Government, which has unlimited credit." Taking this to be a reference to Federal expenditures some in the audience laughed, a reaction which seemed not to have been expected by Mayor LaGuardia.

Relief Taxes in New York.

He referred to President Roosevelt's recent proposal to remove tax exemption from municipal securities, and recalled approval by the Supreme Court Monday of the revised Municipal Bankruptcy Act. He did not see, he said, how there would be much net gain in tax revenue, because interest rates on municipal bonds would advance, if tax exemption were removed, "and none of us has very much margin these days."

Relief taxes enabled New York City to meet $81,000,000 of the $180,000,000 annual cost of relief there, Mayor LaGuardia said. If the new taxes did not produce enough revenue, he added, additional taxes would be enacted "because I'm not going to run New York City any differently than my personal affairs—we won't spend any more money than we have."

Most of his 70-minute talk dealt with public housing and slum clearance. On those subjects he had before him a series of written questions propounded by Mayor Dickmann. Experience in New York, where land values and labor costs are high, he said, has shown that a 50 per cent subsidy is necessary to construct "decent, sanitary, cheerful dwellings" in slum districts if these quarters are to be rented at the same price as those available in existing tenements.

Public Housing.

Public mass housing undertakings, he said, "obviously" compete with private construction enterprise, but only in a field where private capital could not operate profitably. He thought good public housing, near industrial areas, would serve to halt decentralization of the city's population and attract industry.

Careful planning and zoning were necessary, he added, to avoid creating transportation problems by the construction of mass housing developments. Ultimately proper housing would lessen the present burden of caring for the sick in public institutions, he said, and in years to come it would aid private construction by stimulating the demand for improved living quarters.

When Missouri enacted a housing law, enabling cities to establish Housing Authorities, he said, the law should provide for an authority of five members, appointed by and removable by the Mayor. Four members would serve without compensation, he suggested, but the chairman should be a salaried executive.

Suggestion on State Law.

In proceeding to acquire land for housing developments, he suggested, the authority should quietly obtain enough options in the desired district to establish valuations for condemnation proceedings which would usually be required to obtain all the desired tract.

The State law, in his opinion, should provide that the city might grant tax exemption to whatever extent it desired to public housing units. In New York he tried to obtain tax revenue from public housing units equal to that the city received from the slum property they replaced.

TELEGRAPH COMPANIES DENIED RATE INCREASE

Communications Commission Turns Down Request for 15 Pct. Rise, 5 to 2.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 27. — The Federal Communications Commission denied today an application by the principal telegraph companies for a 15 per cent increase in domestic rates.

Five commissioners voted to deny the increase. Two others favored granting of an increase on a temporary basis for one year.

The commission said it would issue later "an appropriate report and order" denying the petitions for an increase.

Companies which asked for the increase were Postal Telegraph-Cable Co., MacKay Radio & Telegraph Co. (California), MacKay Radio & Telegraph Co. (Delaware), the Western Union Telegraph Co. and R. C. A. Communications, Inc.

TEXAS CO. TAX BILL TWICE AS MUCH AS ITS PAYROLL

Former $104,000,000 in 1937, Chairman Says; Half-Million to Prepare Government Forms.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 27.—The Texas Corporation management was directed by unanimous vote of the stockholders attending the annual meeting yesterday to embark on a newspaper advertising campaign to "tell the facts" about business problems in relation to taxation.

The resolution was introduced by J. Newcomb Blackman, who described himself as a substantial stockholder.

In answer to his questions, T. Rieber, chairman, said the corporation had paid during and for 1937, a total of $104,000,000 in taxes, which he said was twice the total of all salaries. In addition, Rieber said:

"We spent about half a million dollars preparing Government forms and spent about one-half our time answering all sorts of fool questions and answering all sorts of nitwits. If this keeps up for another five years we won't be able to spend any time on the oil business."

AUTHOR LEAVES $97,000 TO U. S. FOR BOND PAYMENT

Estate of James R. Smith Divided Into 63 Parts, Most of Which Go to Public.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 27.—James Reuel Smith remembered the United States of America in his will to the extent of $97,855. He directed that the money be applied toward the redemption of Liberty bonds issued in 1918.

Smith, the author of "Springs and Wells in Greek and Roman Literature," and of other books and magazine articles, died at 88, on Nov. 12, 1935, at his Yonkers home.

An appraisal filed yesterday showed the $328,383 estate had been divided into 63 parts. All but nine were left to charitable and public institutions and to the Government. The money to the Government was listed as being left to the United States of America, care of Homer Cummings, Attorney-General, Washington, D. C.

MAN SHOOTS OFFICIAL, ENDS LIFE, AT AVA, MO.

By the Associated Press.

AVA, Mo., April 27.—City Attorney LZ Banta was shot and seriously wounded today in his courthouse office. Gilbert Stillwell, a friend of Banta, said Willis Harris, a farmer, fired the shot without warning and then shot himself. Banta, 39 years old, was taken to a Springfield hospital. Harris died before he was removed from Banta's office.

Stillwell said he was seated behind a bookcase where he was shut off from Harris' view when Harris entered the office and asked Banta to "let me see the law" about a soldier's bonus for a brother-in-law.

"Banta pulled down a book and was thumbing through the leaves," Stillwell said, "when Harris whipped out a revolver. I leaped up then and struck Harris' arm as the revolver was aimed at Banta's head. The bullet struck Banta in the side. Another shot went wild and struck the ceiling. Then, before I could prevent him, the man turned the revolver on himself, firing a bullet into his head."

Banta is married and has three children. Harris, who was crippled, also was married.

Two other persons in the office at the time agreed with Stillwell that no argument preceded the shooting.

PLANE WITH 4 ABOARD DEAD FOUND ON CALIFORNIA PEAK

By the Associated Press.

VISALIA, Cal., April 27.—Joseph E. Elliot, superintendent of the Sequoia National Forest, said today a ground crew reached the wreckage of an airplane which vanished with four Visalia residents Monday, and that all were dead.

The ground crew was led to the site on the slope of 8100-foot Sunday Peak by forest rangers who sighted wreckage of the private plane about 40 miles northeast of Bakersfield.

The plane, piloted by Dr. O. N. Lambert, was on the way from Death Valley to Visalia when it disappeared in a storm. The others aboard were his wife, Mrs. Carolyn Lambert; her mother, Mrs. Frank Blain, and Miss Dorothy Davis, Dr. Lambert's office nurse.

FIRES AT DOG, KILLS WOMAN

Charleston (Mo.) Man Says Bullet Apparently Glanced.

By the Associated Press.

CHARLESTON, Mo., April 29.—A bullet fired at a dog which had been killing chickens killed Mrs. Ralph Noiseworthy, 28 years old, who was seated in an automobile near the McCracken cotton gin here this afternoon. Sheriff Abner Beck said Ray Chaney, who lives near the gin, told him he fired a revolver at the dog and that the bullet apparently struck a rock and glanced.

Mrs. Noiseworthy, an expectant mother, and a 7-year-old son had taken her husband to work at the gin. Sheriff Beck questioned Chaney, but no charges were filed. An inquest will be held.

REBEL SHIPS AND PLANES RAID SPANISH EAST COAST

INSURGENTS MAKE LITTLE ADVANCE

Government's Reinforced Defense Line From Teruel to Mediterranean Holds Off Opposing Forces for Fourth Day.

By the Associated Press.

HENDAYE, France, at the Spanish Frontier, April 27.—Generalissimo Francisco Franco's war fleet went to the aid of his land forces today and bombarded Spanish Government positions on the heights about Alcala de Chivert with its big guns.

Barcelona dispatches say the seaport city of Castellon de la Plana was bombed four times yesterday by insurgent flyers and about 50 persons were killed and 70 houses were wrecked. Twenty insurgent planes participated in each raid.

Gen. Jose Miaja's strongly reinforced defense line from the Teruel region to the Mediterranean held the insurgents virtually motionless for the fourth day.

Flank-to-Flank Attacks.

Following their usual tactics of shifting attack from flank to flank, the insurgents directed their main offensive along the coastal road, about Alcala de Chivert. This town, 25 miles north of Castellon, has been a battlefield for a week. It is noted for its fine seventeenth and eighteenth century buildings.

The fighting surged through the outskirts, the Government holding the western edge of the town, insurgents the southeastern corner.

Offsetting the insurgents' capture of two key points, La Toretta and Palado Point, the Government seized the dominant Apalaya de Alcala Peak, which stands west of the town like a sentinel over the valley down which extend the highway and railway.

Although the general outline of the zig-zag 100-mile front from Teruel to the Mediterranean was little changed since the insurgents' surprise attack Saturday caught the Government militia unaware north of Teruel, military observers said the Government's success was due in part to rainstorms, which grounded insurgent aviation and bogged down their superior motorized equipment.

Franco ordered his fleets of warplanes from Mallorca Island to mass at two new mainland bases, Vinaroz and Valderrobres, and to co-operate in Gen. Miguel Aranda's southward drive through Alcala de Chivert toward Castellon and Valencia. This move tripled the air force in that sector. The Mallorca squadrons are under the nominal command of the Generalissimo's brother, Major Ramon Franco.

In Northern Catalonia.

Fighting became more severe along the Northern Catalonian front in the mountains east of Tremp. Government reports acknowledge that new insurgent attacks resulted in a rebel advance toward Seo de Urgel.

Farther north, however, the Government says insurgents were forced to retire from positions around Llavorsi, near the French frontier. After atacking the insurgents with artillery fire, the Government drove the insurgents westward in the direction of the Aran Valley. Heavy snow in the mountains impeded operations.

The fighting east of Tremp centered around San Roma de Abella, where the Government attacked with mountain guns. The insurgents also attacked, breaking through Government lines, but Government counter attacks are said to have recovered the lost ground.

Rebels in Aliaga Valley Fighting Along Path of The Cid.

By the Associated Press.

ZARAGOZA, April 27.—Insurgent soldiers ignored snow and rain today and battled through the valleys of the Aliaga region, pathway of Spain's great eleventh century hero in the wars with the Moors—Diaz de Bivar, known as The Cid.

The troops commanded by Gen. Jose Varela occupied the villages of Ababuj and Jorcas on roads forking toward the Teruel and Valencia highway.

Slightly to the east, another column, after cutting the road linking Ejulve and Cantavieja, extended its advance to important positions, where it captured 163 prisoners and large supplies of materials.

JAPANESE OPEN NEW DRIVE IN NORTHWEST

REPORT 560 CHINESE KILLED, 500 CAPTIVE

On Main Battlefield, in Shantung, They Make Slow Headway — Many Villages Devastated by Artillery Fire.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, April 27.—The Japanese army has launched a vigorous campaign in Northwestern China.

The new battle area is within 100 miles of Outer Mongolia, which is under protection of the Soviet Union.

The Japanese reported today the capture of Anpei, 50 miles northwest of Paotow, in Suiyuan Province, western limit of their drive into the northwest before the winter set in.

After an all-day battle at Anpei, the Japanese said, the Chinese left 560 dead and 500 prisoners. (Gen. Ma Chan-shan, hero of the Chinese resistance to Japanese conquest of Manchuria in 1931-33, has been reported commanding the Chinese in that region.)

Neutral experts considered the Suiyuan drive significant in the light of Japanese desires to extend their sway over the three Mohammedan provinces of Kansu, Ningsia and Tsinghai.

Gaining in Shantung.

The Shantung-Kiangsu border just north of the Lunghai railway continued to be the main battlefield, with the Chinese admitting slow advances by the enemy, backed by heavy artillery fire.

Effects of Japan's concentration of power there, however, were felt in Shansi Province to the west. A Japanese report that a force of 5000 Chinese had been repulsed in an attack on Taiyuan, provincial capital and base for Japanese operations, indicated the Japanese had given much ground in Shansi. A few weeks ago they had advanced to the western and southern boundaries of the province.

Many small villages in the South Shantung area were in flames, and thousands of Chinese farmers were wandering homeless in the fields.

With the struggle rivaling the fighting at Shanghai, in which Chinese held on for weeks, there was increasing indication the Japanese were concentrating their drive toward Pihsien, southeast of Taierhchwang, in an effort to cut the Lunghai Railway.

Objective Near Lunghai Line.

Pihsien is only nine miles from that East-West line feeding all the Chinese armies entrenched for 500 miles along the Yellow River where the southward march of Japanese has been stopped for weeks. At Pihsien the Japanese would threaten to flank Chinese out of Taierhchwang.

The brunt of the Chinese defense before Pihsien was being borne by small, sturdy soldiers who had marched for a thousand miles from the mountains of Yunnan Province, in far Southwestern China.

Northeast of Pihsien, on the opposite side of the Yi River, Chinese were standing firm at Tancheng, as elsewhere. From that point they were in a position to try flanking attacks on the Japanese.

Chinese dispatches from Hankow, temporary Chinese capital, confirmed reports that Japanese troops at Pengpu had been reinforced, and, after months of relative inactivity, had again crossed the Hwai River with the apparent intention of trying to reach Suchow. But the small force of Japanese operating in the Pengpu sector led the Chinese command to believe renewal of activity there was merely a diversion.

Admit Reverse in Shantung.

Hankow reports admitted that Japanese artillery was shelling Chinese positions south of the Grand Canal in Shantung and Japanese infantry had crossed that barrier.

In Hankow the Chinese, who claimed the capture of 700 Japanese prisoners late in March, have thus far displayed only one. Latest Chinese reports asserted the prisoners had been taken to Shensi Province, where they will be given intensified political "education" designed to convince them the policy of their military leaders is wrong and doomed to failure.

Chinese authorities bore out declarations of the Japanese that no Japanese commissioned officers have been captured alive.

quiries was a facetious question about "combination bath tubs and coal bins" in public housing developments. LaGuardia answer solemnly and at some length that it was "just a lot of talk" about slum dwellers using the bath tubs in public housing units to store coal.

The most encouraging result of public housing, in his opinion, was its influence in reducing crime and delinquency. The change it brought about in family life, he said, was so gratifying that in the long run housing would pay for itself in the reduced cost of crime.

German Withdrawal From Fair.

At the luncheon Mayor LaGuardia gave reporters a statement on Germany's withdrawal from participation in the World's Fair to be held in New York next year. "The school of German thought personified by the present regime," he said, "would, I believe, have little to contribute to the arts and sciences and perhaps that accounts for their action in withdrawing." His statement said the "real German culture" would be represented at the fair. He mentioned German contributions to music, medicine and chemistry which would be apparent at the fair.

At an informal press conference after luncheon, Mayor LaGuardia told reporters he thought there would be a realignment of political parties in this country—"the names are not important"—and that the division would be on aconomic issues.

Discussing New York measures to control traffic congestioon, he said it had been found that one-way streets and the provision of cheap parking lot facilities were helpful. Parking meters had not been considered, because the New York plan is to get rid of street parking, not to encourage it.

Goes to Ball Game.

After the luncheon Mayor Dickmann had planned to show to Mayor LaGuardia certain St. Louis sites which have been suggested for slum clearance, but the New York Mayor preferred to go to Sportman's Park for the baseball game between the Browns and Detroit. He was to depart for New York at 6 o'clock tonight.

When Mayor LaGuardia and Mrs. LaGuardia arrived from Texas at 11:45 o'clock this morning they were met at Union Station by Mayor Dickmann and heads of city departments. Mayor Dickmann's fiancee, Mrs. Cilara Allen, presented a basket of roses to Mrs. LaGuardia.

Legion Guard of Honor.

A welcoming crowd pressed closely around the visitors as policemen forced a passageway through the hotel lobby at the station to automobiles which awaited at Market street. Smiling genially, Mayor La Guardia puffed on a corn cob pipe and waved his wide-brimmed gray felt hat to the spectators. The hat was soon exchanged for an American Legion cap.

Legionnaires formed a guard of honor at the station and the band of the Musicians' Post of the Legion, which won first prize at the convention last autumn in New York, led a parade down Market street to Memorial Plaza, opposite the City Hall.

There Mayor LaGuardia planted a dogwood tree which had been sent to St. Louis by the New York World's Fair Corporation. The Mayors of New York and St. Louis exchanged pleasantries during the tree planting, and LaGuardia grinned broadly when someone in the surrounding crowd demanded: "What are you trying to do, make a W P A worker out of him?"

In the parade down Market street, and from the Plaza to Hotel Statler, Mayor Dickmann and Mayor LaGuardia rode in an open car, just behind the band, flanked by eight motorcycle policemen on each side. Mrs. LaGuardia and Mrs. Allen were in the second automobile.

British Stocks Decline After Taxes Increase

Bulk of English Press Expects People to "Smile and Pay" 27½ Per Cent on Income, 12c on Tea and 18c on Gasoline.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 27.—Taxes in effect today to meet England's biggest peacetime budget are: 12 cents a pound on tea; 18 cents a gallon on gasoline; a $7.71 income tax a month, retroactive to April 1, if there is one child and the wage earner gets $208.30 a month.

The figures represent a 2½ per cent increase in income tax to 27½ per cent; a 4-cent rise in the tea tax, and 2 cents in that on gasoline—all to help pay the $4,721,990,000 which Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, told the House of Commons yesterday would be necessary for expenses of Government in the year ending March 31, 1939.

The income tax is the highest in 17 years, since the 1921-22 peak of 30 per cent. The new rate was $1.37½ for each $5 of taxable income.

Debate on the budget was adjourned yesterday until today by the House.

The Government was confident the people willingly would shoulder the new tax burdens, as Sir John put it "with the dogged determination and with the dauntless courage of the British race."

Nevertheless, there were sections of the morning press which called the increases "most obnoxious," and "shocking." A large part of the press, however, thought the people would merely "smile and pay."

The smallest of income taxpayers won a concession, in that present rates remain for single persons making up to $1450 a year and married men with one child earning up to $2000. Everyone in the United Kingdom earning $750 a year or more pays income tax.

The Chancellor, who disclosed to Parliament that Britain had purchased secretly large amounts of food to feed the people in "early months" of a war, made known that the budget did not cover the whole arms bill. Of its $4,721,990,000 there was provided for armament $1,226,250,000, but an additional $450,000,000 will be borrowed. The five-year rearmament program now is in its second year, originally was to have cost $7,500,000,000 but present unofficial estimates are that it will render $11,250,000,000.

While Sir John did not disclose the food stock purchases, of wheat, whale oil for margarine, and sugar, there were these estimates among business men: One to two million tons of wheat, either now in storage or for future delivery, a 20 to 30 week supply. (There are rumors the Government intends to buy the entire approaching British wheat crop.) Four million tons of sugar, worth $10,000,000. Possibly 100,000 tons of whale oil, for use in manufacture of food and explosives.

The stock market here today opened with declines ranging to 10 per cent. Industrial and oil shares led the drop. Speculative shares were slightly lower, and British Government stocks weaker.

Later the market recovered somewhat under good buying. Gold mine shares, oils and trans-Atlantics led the recovery. The market closed near the best but slightly below yesterday except gold mines, which in some cases were higher.

Government in Commons Discloses Inquiry Into Antecedents of Those Employed.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 27.—The Government disclosed in the House of Commons today that there had been "five cases of sabotage or suspected sabotage" aboard British warships within the last year.

Geoffrey H. Shakespeare, Parliamentary Secretary to the Admiralty, refused to go beyond this disclosure, but gave assurances that an investigation was under way into "the character and antecedents" of persons employed aboard warships.

JAPANESE DECIDE THEY WON'T PROSECUTE AMERICAN FLYER

No Date Given, However, for Release of Elwyn Gibbon, Held After Leaving China.

By the Associated Press.

YOKOHAMA, Japan, April 27.—The local prosecutor announced tonight he had decided not to prosecute Elwyn Gibbon, American aviator, following a conference with the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court.

However, no announcement was made immediately of the time of Gibbon's release. He has been held in jail here for five days on suspicion of having participated in Chinese bombing attacks on Japanese troops. He was taken off the liner Empress of Asia while en route from China to the United States.

The decision not to prosecute was based on the fact that Gibbon was a citizen of a neutral country and already had ceased fighting for China. Hence it was considered difficult to apply Article 81 of the criminal code, which carries a possible death penalty.

COMPROMISE TAX BILL EXPECTED TO PASS NEXT WEEK

Republicans Commend Measure as Step Forward After Conference Reaches Agreement.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Leaders said today Congress would approve the compromise tax measure on which a joint committee agreed yesterday. Action in both houses will be delayed until next week, however, for clerks must put the complicated program into legal language.

Senator Borah expressed objection to the bill because it omits his proposal to carry out at least part of the recommendations of President Roosevelt to eliminate tax exemptions on all future securities and salaries of both national and state governments.

The Senate originally had approved Borah's suggestion to tax future issues of Federal securities, but Senator Harrison (Dem.), Mississippi, chairman of the Finance Committee, said House committeemen and Treasury representatives argued that it should be rejected and that the President's recommendations should be considered as separate legislation.

Borah commented: "I can't see any consistency in talking about removing tax exemptions all the time and then not doing anything about them when we have the opportunity. I shall have more to say when the conference committee report reaches the Senate floor."

Mayors Oppose Roosevelt Plan.

Paul V. Betters of the United States Conference of Mayors said Mr. Roosevelt's recommendations would entail an increase in interest on future municipal securities. Thus, he asserted, increased revenue to the Federal Government would be more than offset by higher general property taxes, "which home owners and business interests in the cities would have to pay."

Administration leaders said it was doubtful whether Mr. Roosevelt's exemption program could be acted on at this session of Congress. Some legislators contend a constitutional amendment will be required.

The general tax bill won favorable comment from many Republicans as well as Democrats. Senators Capper (Rep.), Kansas, and Vandenberg (Rep.), Michigan, minority members of the conference committee, called the final compromise "a long step toward the restoration of tax sanity."

In its last session yesterday, the Conference Committee voted to increase the $2-a-gallon tax on hard liquor to $2.25 a gallon, as proposed in the House bill.

A House-approved excise tax of 6 cents a pound on imported pork was eliminated, but the committee accepted Senate proposals to encourage liquidation of personal and utility holding companies. A Senate plan to strengthen penalty provisions against corporations seeking to avoid taxes by the accumulation of surpluses also obtained committee approval.

Previously, the committee had voted to retain a modified version of the undistributed profits tax, approved by the House, indorsed by President Roosevelt, and condemned by business spokesmen.

Flat-rate capital gains taxes along the lines of those voted in the Senate were accepted by the committee.

Bill to Raise $5,330,000,000.

The measure is expected to raise the $5,330,000,000 asked for by the Treasury.

The compromise bill was described by Harrison as "the most forward step in years toward helping employment by private initiative through a fiscal policy of the Federal Government."

Although Harrison fought unsuccessfully for complete repeal of the undistributed profits tax, he asserted: "Through its generous and fair treatment . . . the bill should result in the releasing of billions of frozen securities for investment in private enterprise."

Vandenberg and Capper recalled that the Conference Committee had voted to retain a modified version of the undistributed profits tax for two years after President Roosevent wrote the group his approval of that taxation principle. The President's letter, they said, was "unfortunate and unprecedented."

"For two years," Vandenberg and Capper said, "there will be a small and indefensible remnant of the surplus profits tax idea, to which we continue to decline to subscribe in any degree."

They added, however, that the levy is certain "of a final death sentence two years hence, after the people have passed upon the issue at the polls."

Corporation Rate, 16½ to 19 Pct.

Under the conference committee plan, corporation income taxes would range from 16½ to 19 per cent, depending on the amount of profits distributed to stockholders.

Harrison, Vandenberg and Capper all argued that the committee-approved capital gains tax would be helpful to business.

Estate and gift tax provisions of the present law were approved, with an amendment to reduce from $5000 to $4000 the annual exemption from the gift levy.

The committee rejected a proposal to eliminate the requirement for notarization of income tax returns.

Wounded Give Details of Attack Near Castellon—Raider Flies Low Over Marked Coaches in Moonlight.

By the Associated Press.

VALENCIA, April 27.—Delayed reports of an insurgent aerial attack on a Government hospital train April 14 were brought to Valencia by wounded American and Canadian members of the International Brigade yesterday.

Ten persons, including a woman, were killed in the moonlight raid of a lone insurgent bomber along the Mediterranean coast.

Six of the 30 Americans aboard the crowded hospital train were reinjured in the attack and others in subsequent bombings at Castellon de la Plana where they were taken after the train was wrecked.

The Americans and Canadians, all of them convalescing from war injuries, were brought to Valencia for hospital treatment.

They told of the insurgent attack, in which eight bombs were dropped on the hospital train. The raiding plane then swooped low to machine-gun convalescents attempting to flee to cover.

The train's crew heard the plane about 11 p. m., shortly after crossing the Seguer River north of Castellon de la Plapa. All lights were switched out and the train halted.

Before any of the patients, doctors or nurses—200 foreigners in all—could escape, the first bomb hit. Survivors said the nurses stuck by stretcher cases in the three Red Cross cars.

Many passengers from the six coaches for convalescents were struck by machine-gun bullets as they ran toward nearby olive trees. More than 50 were injured in addition to those killed.

Survivors said the raider, flying at a height of only 25 yards, dropped time bombs which exploded after the plane had passed out of range of the concussion.

The plane turned out to sea after strafing the wreckage and the convalescents for several minutes.

Americans aboard said the train had large Red Cross marking on the tops and sides of all hospital cars.

Witnesses said there were no shots fired against the raiding plane because there were no rifles aboard the train.

Among the American doctors and nurses aboard were Dr. and Mrs. Abraham Etnesson of Chicago; Dr. and Mrs. Phillip Galland of New York City, and Miss Rachel Watchman of New York City.

U. S. COURT DISMISSES SUIT AGAINST G. L. BERRY AND UNION

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 27.—For lack of jurisdiction, the United States District Court dismissed today injunction proceedings against United States Senator George L. Berry and his International Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' Union filed by 23 members and former members of the Chicago local of the union.

The 23 began the action against Berry, the international union and seven other defendants to stop what they said was interference with the affairs of Franklin Union No. 4. They complained Berry and officers of the local had "frozen" the affairs of the local by withholding election of officers since 1928.

Judge Charles E. Woodward ruled that since all plaintiffs and some defendants were residents of Chicago there was no diversity of citizenship to warrant suit in Federal Court.

James E. Daniels, counsel for the plaintiffs, said he would refile the suit in the Cook County (Chicago) Superior Court. In addition to the restraining order, the suit also asked for an accounting of funds turned over to the international by the local.

DONAHEY CHAIRMAN OF T V A INQUIRY

Ohio Senator Chosen at Informal Meeting—Republicans Press for Speed.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 27. — The T V A Investigating Committee chose Senator Donahey (Dem.), Ohio, to be its chairman last night and discussed plans for starting the inquiry promptly. Representative Mead (Dem.), New York, was named vice-chairman.

These actions were taken at the insistence of Republican members who argued that no time should be lost in getting the inquiry under way. Democrats held that the session was informal, and that formal action should be deferred until a regularly called meeting.

The result was that Donahey and Mead were "nominated," subject to confirmation at a regular meeting to be held today.

Committee members indicated that several weeks might elapse before hearings can be begun, since the committee took under consideration the question of sending special investigators into T V A offices here and in the Tennessee Valley. These investigators would take the statements of principals in the T V A dispute and audit the agency's books.

The dispute arose from differences between Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, the former chairman, and the two other members of the T V A board of directors, Dr. Harcourt Morgan and David E. Lilienthal.

After a White House hearing, in which Dr. Arthur Morgan refused to take any extensive part, President Roosevelt ousted him as chairman and appointed Dr. Harcourt Morgan to succeed him. Mr. Roosevelt has given no indication when the vacant place on the board would be filled. Many Washingtonians expect the appointment to go to James L. Fly, T V A counsel.

The session of the committee last night was a dinner party arranged by Senator Donahey to give the House and Senate members opportunity to get acquainted. It was, the participants said, a "Dutch treat."

WITNESSES TRACE 3RD STOLEN AUTO AT TRIAL OF THREE

HISTORY OF 4 MORE CARS TO BE TRACED

Walsh, Eugene Tebeau and E. S. McIntosh Accused of Sending Them Across State Line.

A log of the movement of stolen automobiles, through a sales agency into the hands of innocent buyers, is being presented to the jury in the trial of Eugene Tebeau, John Walsh and Edward S. McIntosh, which was in its third day today before United States District Judge George H. Moore. The three are charged with violating the Dyer Act by selling, and causing to be transported from Missouri into Illinois, seven stolen cars.

History of Car No. 3.

Testimony as to Car No. 2 was completed, and testimony as to No. 3 was begun, at today's hearing. No. 3, a green Chevrolet coach, was stolen April 6, 1937, from Edmond Goldstein, 5047 Waterman avenue, and was sold by Tebeau April 10 at his used-car establishment, 4619 Delmar boulevard, to Glen Andrews, 4604 State street, East St. Louis.

The purchaser of No. 3, testifying as to his dealings with Tebeau, made the first mention that has been made in testimony of the defendant Walsh, stepson of Tebeau, and mentioned by the witness as "Buddy Tebeau." He said "Buddy" brought the papers for him to sign, including a chattel mortgage.

Asked how long he kept the car, Andrews said, "Not long. I saw in the papers where nine stolen cars were seized—" An objection of defense lawyers kept him from saying where the cars were seized, but he added that, after reading this item of news, he took the car to the St. Louis police.

The police found, according to a police witness, that the motor number had been altered, and that the correct number was that shown in records as belonging to Goldstein's car.

Other witnesses for the Government showed falsifications of the record in a Missouri certificate of title for the car. The certificate said the car was purchased from a Henry Meyers of the Central Chevrolet Co. The manager of that company, William Sprick, testified that no Henry Meyers was with the company. The owner's name appeared on the certificate as Vincent Pulinski, 1505 Cass avenue. A postman testified that no such person lived at the Cass avenue place, which is a restaurant.

Car No. 2 was a black Chevrolet coach, owned by Irving Boschert of St. Charles, stolen from him in St. Louis in October, 1936, and sold Nov. 3 by Tebeau to George P. Stoffel of East St. Louis.

The Government's evidence as to Car No. 2 corresponded in its main outlines with that as to Car No. 1, completed yesterday. With variations of detail, it will be repeated in the case of each of the other cars. The Federal prosecution is concerned only with cars which were taken across the State line. St. Louis police have reported tracing 71 stolen cars to Tebeau's place, but most of them were handled within Missouri.

In its evidence as to Car No. 2, the Government first offered the testimony of the owner, Boschert, as to the theft. It then called Stoffel, who testified that he went to Tebeau's place looking for a car, saw the black Chevrolet there, and bought it, paying $480 besides a $50 trade-in on his old Ford. He said Tebeau promised to get his Illinois plates transferred, and to get an Illinois certificate of title for him, and that the certificate came by mail. Stoffel did not see the Missouri certificate of title, which had to be sent to the Illinois authorities in order to get the Illinois certificate.

The Missouri certificate of title, reproduced in photostatic copy on the Illinois document, showed the motor number of the car as 5958337. It showed the former owner's name and address as Wilbur Stevenson, 23 Beacon avenue, Ferguson.

To prove that these entries were false, the Government called Mrs. Carl L. Linn, who has lived at the Ferguson address since June 1, 1936, and the postman who has delivered mail there for seven years. They testified that no Wilbur Stevenson was known there.

An employe of the State Motor Vehicle Division testified that the records showed no title to a Chevrolet car in the name of Wilbur Stevenson, in 1936.

The Government traced the motor number from the Chevrolet factory to a car owned by Miss Alice Mosher of Jefferson City, Tenn., and brought Miss Mosher here as a witness. She testified that the car was in her possession through the latter part of 1936, when Car No. 2 was sold here.

To prove that the motor number of Car No. 2 had been changed, City Detective James A. Shannon testified that, under a heat test, the actual motor number of the car had been found to be 6670506.

The Missouri certificate, it was shown, had a false number of its own, the certificate being the same as that of a genuine certificate issued to a resident of Wright City, Mo.

Head of Finance Firm Testifies.

Louis S. Sacks, manager of the St. Clair Auto Finance Co. of East St. Louis, testified that the company financed the purchase of Car No. 2 for Stoffel.

Sacks said Stoffel stopped making his payments after the car was found to be stolen; that the purchaser of Car No. 1 did the same; and that the finance company lost about $1000 in its dealings with Tebeau on these and several other cars.

George C. Dyer, defense lawyer, cross-examining Sacks, showed him a check for $400 signed by Tebeau, payable to the St. Clair Loan Co., and indorsed to the auto finance company.

"Wasn't this check," Dyer asked, "given by Tebeau for the purchase of a car which your company sold to him, and which he sold to Stoffel?"

Sacks said it was not, and that the check was probably one which the finance company cashed as an accommodation to Tebeau. The loan company is a separate, but related, concern. Sacks said some checks "in rather large sums" had been cashed for Tebeau by the finance company.

Tebeau is an ex-convict. Walsh figures in a minor capacity in some of the alleged sales. McIntosh is a former business associate of Tebeau. A fourth man, Albert J. Keller, mechanic, was indicted with them last November, but his case has been dismissed and he is to be a Government witness.

TESTS INDICATE SICK MAN IS SUFFERING FROM POISON

A chemical analysis of the stomach contents of Albert Benner, 6207 West Park avenue, who is critically ill at City Hospital, showed reactions of a caustic poison, such as induced by lye or bichloride of mercury, Assistant Chief of Detectives Jeremiah O'Connell said today.

Benner lived at the home of the widow of Police Sergeant Joseph A. Schneider at the West Park avenue address. At the age of eight, he was one of the many homeless boys and girls that Sergt. Schneider and his wife took to rear. Only two others remain at the home with her.

On April 17, Benner took a powder laxative at the home which apparently contained a poison. His throat and stomach were severely seared. He said he was unable to explain how any other substance got into the bottle of laxative from which he took occasional doses. Benner, who is 29 years old, has had four blood transfusions since being taken to the hospital. Physicians say he only has a slight chance of recovery.

DEAN MARTIN GETS LEAVE

Curators Grant Him Six Months Because of Illness.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., April 27.—Frank L. Martin, dean of the School of Journalism at the University of Missouri, has been granted a six-month leave of absence, extending to Oct. 1, because of illness, it was announced today following a session of the board of curators last night. Roscoe Ellard, a member of the School of Journalism faculty, will serve as acting dean.

Matchmaker Jake Koci, the King's confidant who arranged the first meeting of the sovereign and the Countess at a palace ball last New Year's eve, disclosed today that Zog's 10-year hunt for a wife had been a delicate, diplomatic one.

"The monarch of a small country such as ours had to be very careful not to get mixed up in international politics through marriage," he said.

Mussolini's Gift.

Count Ciano presented Premier Mussolini's remembrance of four gilded bronze vases which once belonged to Napoleon, a statue of a dragon from King Vittorio Emanuele, and a silver table centerpiece from himself.

One of King Zog's presents to his bride was a diamond-studded tiara.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 27.—Two men injured in last year's Memorial day "massacre" at the Republic Steel Co. plant filed suit in Superior Court yesterday asking for $10,000 damages each from the city of Chicago, contending the city was negligent in permitting a crowd to congregate near the company premises. The complaints, Clyde Patchin of Indiana Harbor, Ind., and Raymond Hardin of Chicago, state they were beaten and shot by those in the crowd. They say they were not employes of the steel company.

JUNK YARD PICKETED IN A. F. OF L. STRIKE

Union Seeks Closed Shop, More Pay, Shorter Hours at National Iron Co., E. St. Louis

The National Iron Co., dealers in scrap iron and used automobile parts, 303 South Eleventh street, East St. Louis, is being picketed by its union employes, who went on strike Monday in support of demands for a closed shop, increased wages and shorter hours.

Marion Helfrich, business agent, said the 75 men and women workers recently formed a Federal Labor Union, affiliated with the A. F. of L. Demends were presented to the management for an eight-hour day and wage increases to 30 cents an hour for women, 50 cents for laborers and 60 cents for crane operators. Wages were 15 cents and 22 cents an hour, with some employes working 14 hours a day, Helfrich stated.

Bernard Rosen, manager of the company, told a Post-Dispatch reporter he had rejected the closed shop demand. He declined to discuss the wage situation, commenting that "business is bad."

Helfrich said the union was the first A. F. of L. organizataion of junk yard employes in East St. Louis, adding that others were to be formed.

Picket Lines Strengthened at Eight Lumber Yards.

Picket lines were increased at eight East St. Louis lumber companies today by the A. F. of L. Teamsters' and Chauffeurs' Union in the strike of 25 union drivers, who are seeking a wage increase from 67½ cents to 85 cents an hour.

The strike, called yesterday, stopped deliveries, but some builders sent their own trucks to the yards for material. More extensive picketing today was designed to stop the practice and few customers appeared at the yards.

Negotiations for a new wage agreement for the drivers began March 1, resulting in a deadlock. Firms involved in the strike are: Central Illinois Lumber Co., 1904 Lincoln avenue; Fairmount Supply Co., 3700 Collinsville road; B. Goedde & Co., 2040 Illinois; O'Neil Lumber Co., 104 St. Clair avenue; St. Clair Lumber Co., 3100 Illinois; Stockyards Lumber & Supply Co., 736 North First street; United Lumber & Hardware Co., 4201 State street; Wiles-Chipman Lumber Co., Illinois and Twentieth street.

N L R B Complaint Issued Against Bussmann Co.

A complaint charging unfair labor practices was issued by the regional office of the National Labor Relations Board today against the Bussmann Manufacturing Co., 2536 (West) University street.

Charges were filed by District No. 9, International Association of Machinists, of the A. F. of L., on behalf of 14 employes of the tool department. The Labor Board complaint states the company discharged two employes, Richard Hogge and Roland Lickert, for union activity and sponsored a company union, the Bussmann Employes' Association. A hearing was scheduled for May 6.

ST. LOUIS GIRL IN NEW YORK AFTER LEAVING ILLINOIS U.

Letter Received by Parents From Vera Bernice Kohn, Who Departed With Chum.

Miss Vera Bernice Kohn, St. Louis student in the University of Illinois, and her chum, Miss Mildred Cooper of Chicago, who have been sought since they disappeared from the university campus at Champaign last Thursday, are in New York, it was announced today at the home of her father, Edward Kohn, real estate man, 6934 Waterman avenue.

It was stated at the Kohn home that a letter dated Monday had been received today from Miss Kohn, who is 17 years old. She informed the family that she and Miss Cooper, a fellow member of the freshman class, were in New York, but did not state where they were stopping or what was the purpose of their visit.

Parents of the girls and university authorities had been apprehensive because they left without taking any luggage or telling anyone that they were leaving the school.

JOHN M. LANDON, FATHER OF EX-GOVERNOR, DIES

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 27.—John M. Landon, 81 years old, father of Alf M. Landon, the 1936 Republican presidential nominee, died of heart disease in a hospital today.

The elder Landon, who started a successful career as an oil man in Western Pennsylvania and transferred his interests to Kansas in 1904, suffered a series of heart attacks last week. His son, former Governor of Kansas, was at the bedside when he died.

The funeral will be in Topeka.

When the Republicans held their national convention at Cleveland in June, 1936, Gov. Alf Landon stayed at home but his father was present at the tumultuous scene that marked the biggest moment in his life.

FIREMAN DIES AFTER DRIVING PUMPER TO SCENE OF BLAZE

Henry Clay Bowers, 55, Slumps at Wheel as He Brings Apparatus to Halt.

Henry Clay Bowers, driver for Engine Company No. 27, died of heart disease as he was bringing the comany's pumper to a halt near a fire in a garage in the rear of 5329 Minerva avenue at 5:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The heavy apparatus was rolling to a halt in Arlington avenue, at the mouth of an alley, when Lieut. Edward Hogan, sitting beside Bowers, noticed the driver slump over the wheel. Hogan hastily applied the brakes.

Artificial respiration was administered and Bowers was taken to St. John's Hospital, where he was pronounced dead. He had been under treatment for heart disease several years. Bowers, 55 years old, was the son of a fireman. He resided at 1344 North Kingshighway with his wife, Elsie.

The fire, starting in an ashpit in the garage, which is the warehouse of the Venetian Mosaic and Tile Co., caused $1500 damage. David Linginoti, an employe of the firm, who told police he ignited discarded linoleum in the ashpit, was booked on a charge of burning rubbish in violation of city ordinance and placed under bond for appearance in police court.

PUBLIC HEARING MONDAY ON SCHOOL PROPOSALS

Large Building Program and Survey of System to Be Considered.

Two special committees of the Board of Education, which met yesterday afternoon to plan procedure on proposals for a large school building program and for a general survey of the system, will conduct a public hearing on these intermingled questions Monday at 5 p. m.

Superintendent of Instruction Henry J. Gerling recommended a construction program of not more than $8,000,000 and the making of a survey under specified conditions. The committees' discussion, devoted largely to the survey, was on the tacit assumption that both proposals would be approved and that the question was one of details. Arthur A. Blumeyer, chairman of the committees, heretofore has suggested a $6,000,000 building plan.

This plan is largely dependent on President Roosevelt's recent proposal for a new series of Federal public works grants of 45 per cent of construction costs. The board would submit to the voters a proposition for 20-year bonds for the remaining 55 per cent.

GEN. DAWES CONVALESCING

Condition of Former Vice-President "Satisfactory" After Operation.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 27.—The condition of Brigadier-General Charles G. Dawes, who was operated on Sunday night for appendicitis, was reported as "satisfactory" today.

A hospital bulletin said the former Vice-President, who is 72 years old, was "having a normal convalescence."

ROBERT M. SMITH KILLS SELF IN EAST ST. LOUIS

Real Estate Dealer, 58, Grieved Over Death of Wife April 1.

Grieving over the death of his wife April 1, Robert M. Smith, East St. Louis real estate dealer and former secretary of the Board of Election Commissioners there, killed himself yesterday in his home, 707 North Twenty-third street.

His body, a bullet wound near the heart, was found by a daughter, Miss Jeannette Smith, a social worker, who detected the odor of gas coming from the bathroom when she returned home at 4:45 p. m. A gas heater in the bathroom was turned on but not burning and beside the body was a revolver.

In a note addressed to his children, Smith, who was 58 years old, spoke of 30 years of happy married life and referred to Mrs. Smith as "a wonderful wife and mother." The note described his property and directed payment of debts and funeral expenses.

It was returned to the Smith family by Crief of Police Michael J. O'Rourke, who said a large part of its contents was of a personal nature.

Several days ago, in a conversation with a Post-Dispatch reporter, Smith remarked: "I've tried my best to snap out of it since Mrs. Smith died, but I just can't feel right without her.' They exchanged greetings again yesterday, about 2 p. m., the reporter observing that Smith appeared preoccupied.

Recently, friends said, Smith had suffered a recurrence of nervousness, which had resulted in a breakdown about 10 years ago.

Miss Gertrude Coovert, a stenographer for the real estate firm, said today that she had been helping Smith get his business records in order for about a week, under the impression he was preparing to go on a vacation. When he left the office yesterday he asked her whether she understood everything about the books, she said, and she replied that she did.

Smith conducted the real estate business with his brother, Leon G. Smith, in the Arcade Building, East St. Louis, the firm being rental agent for the building. He was president of the St. Clair County Humane Society and a veteran of the Spanish-American War.

Other members of the family are his son, Robert M. Smith Jr., a medical student at Washington University; another daughter, Mrs. George W. Wood of Clayton; his mother, Mrs. Perle Smith, Belleville; two other brothers, Dr. Julian Smith, Belleville, and Theodore Smith, Detroit.

The funeral will be held Friday at 2 p. m. from the Brichler mortuary, 2218 State street, to Greenmont Cemetery.

WALTER J. G. NEUN STRUCK BY AUTO; ARM IS BRUISED

Walter J. G. Neun, attorney and former president of the Board of Aldermen, was struck by an automobile as he was crossing the street in front of 5870 Maple avenue last night. He was treated at St. Luke's Hospital for a bruised arm and went to his home, 6245 Westminster place.

Neun had attended a Republican meeting at the Hamilton Hotel and was crossing the street to his automobile when struck by a machine driven by Henry R. Krato, a clerk, 1230 Clara avenue.

Paul Prionas, 7 years old, 4258A Athlone avenue, suffered an injury of the left arm and lacerations when struck by an automobile as he ran out of an alley into the 3700 block of North Newstead avenue at noon yesterday. He was taken to Christian Hospital. The driver was John Koenig, 19, of 4008 Botanical avenue.

COMMITTEE CONSIDERS CITY BUDGET AND TAX RATE BILLS

Aldermen's Group to Hold Daily Sessions Until Measures Are Disposed Of.

The annual municipal budget and tax rate bills, introduced in the Board of Aldermen yesterday, were referred today to the Ways and Means Committee. The board will hold daily sessions until they are disposed of.

A bill was introduced to govern parking for the benefit of afternoon concert audiences at Municipal Auditorium. It would limit parking to one hour, up to 2 p. m., instead of permitting it all day, in the area bounded by Twelfth, Sixteenth, Pine and Spruce streets—except on Market street, between Fourteenth and Sixteenth streets.

Two other bills introduced, similar to measures which died in the last annual session, were: To require weekly report of sales of plumbing fixtures, as a means of facilitating inspection of installations; to charge an annual license fee of $25 for parking garages and lots, which would be required to post their rates if accommodating more than 10 cars.

BALKY ELECTRIC CHAIR BASIS OF MERCY PLEA

Reprieved Texan Says He Paid Debt in Anguish of Listening to Repairs.

By the Associated Press.

HUNTSVILLE, Tex., April 27.—John W. Vaughn, saved from death last Friday because the electric chair failed to work, contends his debt to society was legally paid in the hours of anguish he spent listening to men trying to repair the electric chair.

Charging cruel and unusual punishment, Mack Gates, Huntsville attorney, prepared a petition for a temporary injunction against the execution, which was reset for next Friday.

The petition said the minutes seemed like ages to Vaughn while he waited, and "the manipulating and the noises made in preparation of the death chair were to the applicant his own funeral knell." The petition, to be presented to District Judge Max Rogers today, contended that Gov. James V. Allred overstepped his clemency powers when he granted a week's reprieve to Vaughn and Johnnie Banks, Negro, who also was to die. A constitutional amendment adopted in 1936, Gates said, provided the Governor may act in a clemency case only on written recommendation from the Board of Pardon and Parole.

The chair failed to function while Vaughn stood in the death house making a farewell speech. After three hours' work failed to set it right, Warden W. W. Waid telephoned Allred, who ordered a week's reprieve for Vaughn and Johnnie Banks, a Negro.

Vaughn said the failure of the chair was an "act of God." Waid disagreed. He said the generator was worn out. It had been used in some 150 executions but has now been repaired.

At Houston 8000 persons signed a petition asking that the death sentence be commuted to life imprisonment.

At Austin three members of the Legislature, Representatives Lonnie Smith, Leland Johnson and C. T. Rhodes of Hearne, and a Baptist minister, the Rev. Joe Scheumack, discussed with members of the Board of Pardons and Paroles the advisability of a further stay of execution.

Most seriously injured was Irene McKay, one-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis McKay. She suffered a skull fracture when the McKay home was destroyed. All members of the family were injured, their bodies lacerated by flying debris.

The John Walters home was hit and a son, M. B. Walters, and a nephew, George Walters, were killed.

A. R. Hensley said the storm first struck southwest of O'Donnell, but missed that community, and then wrought havoc in widely separated farms around this village of about 40 persons. At least one farm woman in the community was injured seriously.

LETTER CHARGES COMMUNISTS BACK U. S. RELIEF BILL

House Given Copy of Petition Said to Have Been Circulated on New York Waterfront.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Representative Michener (Rep.), Michigan, read to the House today a letter from John C. Storm of New York City, which accompanied a circular described as being distributed by the Communist party in support of the administration's lending-spending program.

Michener offered the letter and circular in answer to a letter previously exhibited by House Democratic Leader Rayburn of Texas, which said a Detroit corporation was originating protests against the program.

The circular Michener presented, the Storm letter said, was being distributed on New York docks and waterfronts. It requested that letters be written to the President, Congressmen and labor organizations in support of the spending and lending plan, and was signed by the New York State Committee of the Communist party.

Michener said Rayburn had displayed great concern over propaganda and that the majority leader announced he felt "the country should be advised where it came from." Michener said he, too, wanted the country to know the origin of some of the propaganda.

Members of the House Appropriations Committee said it was virtually certain they would have to ask the powerful rules group to give the "pump-priming" bill privileged status on the House calendar.

This would be necessary, they said, because the measure will contain numerous legislative provisions, in addition to appropriation items.

Normally, straight appropriation measures are privileged and can be brought up for House consideration whenever the Appropriations Committee desires.

Members in the Dark.

The unusual situation provoked considerable head-shaking among Appropriations Committeemen, because they recalled that the Rules Committee kept the original wage-hour bill, a key administration measure, bottled up for months in 1937.

If the Rules Committee chose to block the bill, it could be forced to the floor by means of a petition requiring the signatures of 218 members. This slow procedure is extremely distasteful to most legislators, however, and conceivably could delay adjournment.

Representative Snell of New York, House Republican leader, declared that the minority Representatives intended "to make certain that no device of White House coercion or intimidation may choke off the orderly expression of public opinion on this important issue."

Snell said the anonymous letter addressed to President Roosevelt and released through Rayburn bore the earmarks of "an inspired document."

The sender said big corporations were preparing a barrage of propaganda against the spend-and-lend program. Snell called the letter a White House effort to head off "overwhelming opposition."

Senator Hatch, (Dem.), New Mexico, proposed meanwhile that Congress prohibit political activity on the part of relief officials. He said he would submit the proposal as a rider to the pump-priming bill.

The amendment would provide dismissal for W P A and P W A employes who use "official authority or influence for the purpose of interfering with an election or affecting the results thereof."

Chance for Wage-Hour Bill.

As for the wage-hour situation, House opponents of a revised measure contended its chances for passage were slimmer than at any time in the last two months, despite, President Roosevelt's state to fight for it.

"You can bet money," said Representative Cox, (Dem.), Georgia, "that when the Rules Committee votes on Friday, it will finish the wage-hour bill as far as this session is concerned."

Chairman Norton, (Dem.), New Jersey, of the House Labor Committee said, however, she believed it was "anybody's guess" as to what the Rules Committee would do concerning her request for legislative right-of-way for the bill.

The measure would set up a nation-wide minimum wage of 25 cents an hour and increase it to 40 cents at the end of three years. The maximum work week would start at 44 hours and drop to 40 hours in two years.

Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress Administrator, and Representative Woodrum (Dem.), Virginia, chairman of a House appropriations subcommittee, discussed the public works program with the President today at an early morning White House conference. After the meeting, Woodrum said:

"Three things will be stressed in formulation of the legislation, namely, to use no more funds or credit than is absolutely necessary to get the building program under way quickly; to select approved public works projects that can be gotten underway immediately, and to select types of projects widely distributed that will be permanent public improvements."

HOOVER SAYS GOVERNMENT IS IN 'MORAL RECESSION'

However, He Tells Women, "We Can Fight for and Restore National Morals."

By the Associated Press.

FRESNO, Cal., April 27.—Dictatorship arises where governments lose moral fiber, and the United States is in a "moral recession," former President Herbert Hoover warned in a speech here last night.

"Beyond this," he told the State Federation of Republican Women's Clubs, "we have for five years listened to a continuous defamation of everything that has gone before.

"Honest achievement of men has been belittled and attributed to improper motives. Ideals embedded in our patriotism are smeared with contempt. . . . We are told that we are in ruins and we must begin anew. We are told that the Government must do it for us."

"These are grave hours," he said. "We are in a moral recession in Government."

He listed eight "simple principles of government" and suggested by questions the "immoralities" he said had grown to the point of endangering self-government.

Hoover said he was addressing his immediate audience not as Republican women "but as all women concerned in the preservation of self-government."

"We can fight for and we can restore," he said, "the national morals of hard work, self-reliance, intellectual and working honesty and honor. Then the greatness of America will shine again."

WEST COAST ATTACK CONCLUDES WAR GAME

Final Feature of Six Weeks of Secret Maneuvers in Which 11 Lives Were Lost.

By the Associated Press.

SAN PEDRO, Cal., April 27.—What the West Coast of the United States would face in a naval attack is the problem for which the United States fleet seeks an answer today.

It is the final feature of six weeks of secret maneuvers. Under censorship clamped down tighter than ever before in time of peace, 140 warships and 500 airplanes, manned by 3600 officers and 55,000 men, are maneuvering this week toward a close of the navy's Pacific war games.

These war games have cost 11 lives, together with three $100,000 seaplanes. At least a half dozen other warplanes were forced down in the early stages of the games last month.

Motorboats were smashed, lifeboats carried away and steel deck fittings twisted as battleships, aircraft carriers, heavy cruisers and destroyers rode a full gale before docking in Hawaii.

Admiral C. C. Bloch, commander-in-chief of the fleet, did announce the war games were held between Alaska, Hawaiian Islands and the West Coast, but specific areas remain shrounded in secrecy. At Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, the Admiral said the battleships had steamed 6000 miles since leaving the Pacific Coast, some 2500 miles from Hawaii. Light forces and carriers covered considerably more area, he disclosed.

The final phase of the war games finds forces divided into two fleets. There is a purple fleet, commanded by Admiral E. C. Kalbfus, battle force commander, attacking the West Coast. A green fleet, commanded by Vice-Admiral W. T. Tarrant, scouting force commander, defends the coast. Operations are against West Coast seaports and supply bases.

These war games are expected to be concluded tomorrow with units returning to San Pedro and San Diego bases Friday or soon thereafter.

YOUTH FINDS MODEL PLANE WHICH FLEW FOUR MILES

Cyrus Thornton, a student at Parks Air College, will put his name on his long-flying model airplane before he sends it up again.

Thanks to a newspaper want ad, the Akron (O.) youth got the plane back yesterday after it had made a surprising four-mile flight from Parks Airport, south of East St. Louis, to the front yard of Lee McDonald's home at 3508 Victor street, St. Louis, Monday evening. There it glided down to a safe landing and the complete astonishment of the MacDonald family.

The model plane, with a six-foot wing spread and a single-cylinder gasoline motor, had never before gone so far as it did on its flight northwest across the Mississippi River, Thornton said to a Post-Dispatch reporter.

AN WHO EXTORTED $10 FROM TAVERN KEEPER IS SENTENCED

Harry G. Ellis Given Year for Impersonating Federal Officer, Placed on Probation.

Harry G. Ellis, 23 years old, a former substitute mail carrier, was sentenced to a year and a day in prison and placed on probation for two years by Federal Judge George H. Moore today, when he pleaded guilty of impersonating a Federal officer to extort $10 from Frank C. Givens, proprietor of a tavern at [illegible] St. Charles road.

"I wanted to see what it felt like to be a Federal officer," Ellis told the Court. With a silver and bronze badge, inscribed "Federal Bureau of Investigation," that he had made, Ellis went into the tavern and told Given he would have to "turn him in" for having gaming devices in his place unless he "paid off" $10. Givens gave him the money and reported to State Highway patrolmen, who arrested Ellis in a nearby tavern.

Nick Altmeyer, 1827A South Second street, was sentenced to eight months in jail, and James Moncado, 1823 Carr street, to a year and a day in a Federal reformatory, on their pleas of guilty of possessing alcohol on which no tax had been paid.

WPA Economist Says Spending Program Comes Too Late to Halt Slump; Cites Unfavorable Trends

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—The present so-called recession has gone so far that even if Congress should adopt President Roosevelt's spending program today, it is doubtful whether it would serve to halt the decline and stimulate recovery, in the opinion of Leon Henderson, economist of the Works Progress Administration. He foresaw the depression that the country is now in at least a year and a half ago. In the inner councils of the administration Henderson uttered numerous warnings which were ignored until the present slump was in progress.

Months ago, when the slump might still have been termed a recession, Henderson argued the need to spend and spend immediately if downward trends were to be corrected. In his interpretation, each week, even each day of delay has increased the doubt as to whether a new spending program might prevent a long-time depression.

No Seasonal Upturn.

What is most significant today, according to Henderson, is that there has been no seasonal spring upturn. March employment showed a downturn, instead of an upturn, for the first time since 1933. Even in 1932, Henderson's charts show, there was a slight but nevertheless perceptible seasonal rise.

The most reliable current index showed a new low for the present depression for the week ending April 16. Preliminary estimates indicate that there was a further decline last week. What is now imminent, in addition to the cumulative forces of depression, is the seasonal summer downturn.

"Looking at individual industries," Henderson says, "I can see nothing that will reverse the downward trend. And a number of deflationary forces have recently been released."

The outlook in the textile industry, according to Henderson, is a little brighter but efforts are now concentrated on eliminating the third shift and operating with only two shifts. This would mean, of course, elimination of approximately one-third of the workers in the industry, for the time being, at least. The automobile industry is still working on a very large inventory. Through the winter this inventory has been virtually the largest in the history of the industry.

Steel Outlook Not Encouraging.

The outlook in the steel industry is not encouraging, there apparently being no hope of any pickup, at least until the fall. Important statisticians in the steel industry recently estimated, according to the W P A economist, that through the summer the index of steel operations would be "in the low twenties."

What is increasingly apparent, according to Henderson, is that the "corrective measures"—the counter trends—are so slow in taking effect. This is true particularly of the over-large inventories that persist as a result of "over-production" or perhaps more nearly underdistribution, and the persistent "price imbalance." Prices have not responded to declining levels of production. This situation corresponds very closely, Henderson says, with that which prevailed in 1931.

Henderson sees the new tax bill is having a definitely deflationary effect and for two reasons. First, in his opinion, it will cause corporations to retain more of their reserves which is the argument that administration supporters have always advanced in favor of the undistributed profits tax. Second, it will have the effect of causing more pressure on the stock market as a result of the capital gains provisions.

"It seems to me that this is very obvious," Henderson said. "The undistributed profits tax was in operation for only two years, 1936 and 1937, but capital expansion in those two years was greater than at any time during the recent recovery period."

The present railroad bond situation, Henderson also sees as having a definitely deflationary effect, particularly on small banks and trust funds.

Need New Purchasing Power.

"We must have new purchasing power, instead of merely diverting purchasing power," Henderson said. "In other words, the Government has to spend more than it [illegible] out of the stream of purchasing power. During the next nine months, the Treasury will take out only about $140,000,000 a month. It will be necessary for the Government to spend very much more than this if purchasing power is to be materially increased."

Henderson discussed the effect of the pump-priming program if it were passed as recommended by the White House. The increase in W P A spending under the program would not be sufficient, according to Henderson, to take up any of the slack. At present, W P A is spending about $150,000,000 a month and under the President's program this would be increased only by $15,000,000 to $20,000,000.

"If the program is adopted as recommended, the possibility of recovery will lie in public works and housing," he said. "P W A has plans and procedure already at hand so that the money could be put out much faster than in the past. That is a hopeful element."

Another favorable factor Henderson sees in the total employed today, which is 42,000,000, as compared with the low of 1933, which was 36,000,000. This is a hopeful sign even though today there are 13,000,000 unemployed.

At present there is no speed behind the administration spending bill. At a very deliberate rate it is being put through the committee stage in the House, with hearings now in progress. Already a certain amount of opposition of one kind and another has taken shape and there has been at least a hint that the spending measures may encounter the same type of organized attack that resulted in the failure of the reorganization bill to pass.

Town Taxes Employes for Relief.

By the Associated Press.

BETHANY, Mo., April 27.—All city employes will be docked 3 per cent of their pay summer and fall as part of the City Council's own plan of social security. The money will be used to employ laborers at rock crushing and stone quarrying during the winter when city employment usually slackens. MEXICO AGAIN REJECTS BRITISH OIL DEMANDS

LEGAL RESOURCES NOT EXHAUSTED

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO, D. F., April 27.—The Mexican Government told Great Britain for the second time yesterday that the expropriated properties of Aguila (Royal Dutch Shell) Oil Co. would not be returned to the former owners.

The refusal was in a formal reply to a British note presented last week insisting that the properties be returned.

The lengthy communication "maintained Mexico's previous stand," it was stated at the British legation. Mexico previously had told Great Britain the Government had the right to expropriate the properties and that they would not be returned.

The new note refused to admit London's right to intervene diplomatically on behalf of the shareholders in Aguila and other British companies.

Must Exhaust Legal Resources.

"It is a principle of international law," the note said, "universally recognized, that no government can allege the existence of a denial of justice committed against its nationals as long as these have not exhausted all legal resources; that is to say, as long as the tribunals of the country have not said the final word."

The note also asserted that shareholders in Aguila expressly renounced diplomatic representations in their behalf, citing in proof this statement stamped across the company's shares:

"Any alien at any time by whatever title acquiring any interest or participation in this company shall, by so doing, consider himself as a Mexican with respect to either, and shall be understood as agreeing not to invoke the protection of his government with regard to said interest or participation under penalty, should he violate this agreement, of forfeiting them for the benefit of the Mexican nation."

Bond Sale Campaign.

The Government's campaign to get industry to subscribe to a bond issue for payment of the expropriated oil properties got under way.

Representatives of tire and rubber companies, including the Goodyear and Firestone subsidiaries, were called before a committee headed by Jose Siurob, chief of the Federal District, and asked to subscribe the equivalent of three days' payroll monthly for the rest of the year. They were asked also to have their employes subscribe one day's wage monthly.

The companies countered with a proposal to subscribe to the extent of 1 per cent of their capital, which one source said would be a fourth of the amount the committee had suggested.

Offer by Japan.

Government sources said today Japan had offered to pay cash for $3,000,000 worth of gasoline.

It was said, however, that Gustavo Espinosa Mireles, general manager of the National Petroleum Export Co., was hesitant to close the deal for fear of stirring up opposition from Mexican and United States labor.

The Confederation of Mexican Workers, with which the petroleum workers are affiliated, announced Saturday that two delegates returned from the United States with promise of support from John L. Lewis of the CIO after they had pledged that oil would not be sold to "Fascist nations."

Against Handling of Expropriated Oil by British Firms.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 27.—The British Government advocated today what would be, in effect, a British boycott of oil taken from wells expropriated by Mexico from British companies, until the question of those properties is settled.

Richard A. Butler, Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs, disclosed this stand in replying to a question in the House of Commons. In a brief written answer to Laborite Robert Gibson, who had asked for a statement on the oil controversy, Butler said:

"In view of the recent notes addressed by His Majesty's Government to the Mexican Government, requesting restoration of expropriated British oil properties, the marketing of oil from these properties by British subjects or companies could in the present circumstances be only a matter of embarrassment to His Majesty's Government."

3 FOUND GUILTY OF FALSIFICATION IN CIRCUS TAX CASE

Former Ringling Bros. Counsel and Ex-Revenue Agents Convicted by U. S. Jury.

ACQUITTED ON TWO LAW EVASION COUNTS

Listing of Assets Not Owned and Making Fictitious Depreciation Claims Charged.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 27.—A Federal court jury convicted John M. Kelley, former general counsel for the Ringling Brothers-Barnum & Bailey Circus, and two former internal revenue agents last night of aiding and counseling the preparation and filing of false income tax returns by the circus, but acquitted them of conspiring to violate the income tax law.

After deliberating 11 hours, the jury found all three defendants guilty of two of the four indictments, and not guilty of the remaining two.

Nathan Probst, attorney for Kelley, said an appeal would be taken to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

$3,359,000 Tax Loss Alleged.

The indictments charged Kelley and the former agents, Charles D. M. Greer and Nathaniel F. Rabner, both of Washington, with defrauding the Government out of $3,359,016 in income taxes on circus enterprises for 1918-32 inclusive.

The jurors recommended leniency for Greer and Rabner. Federal Judge Murray Hulbert, who set May 9 as the date for imposing sentences, said he was in sympathy with the recommendation, and would give it consideration.

Under the verdict, each of the defendants faces a maximum of 40 years' imprisonment and fines of $80,000.

The Government charged, through Assistant Attorney-General Joseph W. Burns, that from 1918 to 1932 the circus enterprises made gross profits of $40,667,196 and net profits of $10,789,691, on which taxes should have been paid. Burns, during the trial which began March 10, charged taxes were paid only on profits of $4,324,426.

Listed Assets Never Owned.

The defendants, he said, prepared returns for John, Charles, Richard T. and Alfed T. Ringling, listing assets that were never owned and making false depreciation charges.

"Bridgeport, Conn., must have resembled a jungle when the circus moved from there to Sarasota, Fla., in 1927," Burns told the jury. "Income tax returns for that year show the abandonment of 46 elephants, 23 camels, 23 lions, 18 bears, hundreds of monkeys and some 800 horses.

"The Government has proved that vast quantities of assets which were never owned were abandoned and depreciated for income tax purposes."

Kelley is a member of the bar of Florida and Wisconsin. He and his co-defendants were released on bail pending sentencing or the filing of appeals.

POTOSI, MO., MAYOR PROPOSES MONUMENT TO MOSES AUSTIN

Type Will Be Decided by Amount of Money Available, He Announces.

POTOSI, April 27. — Plans for erection of a monument at the grave of Moses Austin, founder of Potosi and father of Stephen Fuller Austin who became known as the founder of Texas by carrying out his father's plan for colonization, were announced today by Mayor W. L. Edmonds.

The type monument to be erected at the 117-year-old grave, Mayor Edmonds said, would depend on what funds were available for the purpose. He was hopeful that a request for contributions would meet a general response throughout the State and that a granite inclosure also might be constructed. Members of the Civic League, a Potosi women's organizatin, last February began collecting a fund to purchase a bronze tablet giving a comprehensive identification of Moses Austin.

Last week's attempt by the Texas Historical and Landmark Commission to remove the body for burial beside that of Stephen Austin in the State cemetery at Austin, centered attention on the grave of the pioneer at the old Potosi Presbyterian cemetery. Mayor Edmonds called a special meeting of the City Council and denied permission to exhume the body. Some Texans who had visited the Potosi grave were critical of the manner in which it was kept. Mayor Edmonds replied that the cemetery was well tended, but said he hoped Missourians would aid in placing a more pretentious marker at the stone and concrete vault.

Two Killed in Plane Crash.

AUSTIN, Minn., April 27.—Two persons were killed last night when their plane crashed from 800 feet, a mile east of the municipal airport. The dead: Joe Wehner, Austin contractor and licensed pilot, and Carroll Mead, Austin.

LAWYER SAYS SCHOOLS MUST EDUCATE AGAINST DEMAGOGUES

Chicagoan Tells Teachers People Need Perspective to Guard Against Quackeries.

URBANA, Ill., April 27.—The American people must have sufficient education to select good leaders "if this country is to preserve democracy in spite of the pleadings of political demagogues," Attorney Walter T. Fisher of Chicago said last night at the closing session of the Conference on Problems of Higher Education.

Fisher said that "perhaps the thing most important in a democracy is to give people enough perspective to discard the Huey Longs and enable them to elect political representatives who will really be of use to them."

He asserted educators should jump at the opportunity to work out a course of study to orient young people sufficiently to develop sales resistance against quackery in politics, medicine, and "the quackery that making money and getting ahead is the most important thing in life."

tion, "worthless voting trust certificates." The collateral in question was stock of the Florida Humus Co. and The Alpha Co.

The list of these loans is as follows: May 19, 1937, Corn Exchange Bank Trust Co., $50,000; June 1, 1937, Marine Midland Trust Co., $75,000; June 10, 1937, National City Bank, $75,000; Dec. 20, 1937, Continental Bank & Trust Co., $100,000; Dec. 31, 1937, Public National Bank, $80,000; and Jan. 10, 1938, Public National Bank, $55,000. All of these loans, according to the witness, were repaid; but their settlement accounted for a considerable part of the frantic and fraudulent efforts to refinance himself with which the broker was occupied during the last months of his career.

What S E C Audit Showed.

His attention being attracted by the unusual name, Lyss related that the first entry he examined in the firm's books was the "Richard Whitney Control Account," consisting of customers' securities which were represented as assets, when in fact they were liabilities. Some of them the broker was authorized by the owners to pledge, and others not. Among these accounts, the witness for the first time revealed, were two standing in the names of Whitney's daughters, Alice and Nancy.

The firm's books, the accountant testified, purported to show liabilities of $1,375,000, assets of $1,029,000 and a deficit of $346,000. The fact, as shown by the S E C audit, was that Richard Whitney & Co. had assets of $736,000 and a deficit of $3,124,000.

The discrepancy was due to loans not recorded on the books, some unsecured and others supported by collateral unlawfully pledged. There were also $479,000 of "secondary or dubious" assets, which, if susceptible of liquidation, would reduce the firm's deficit to $2,645,000. To this the accountant added $3,007,000 in personal loans contracted by Richard Whitney, to reach a combined deficit of $5,662,000. Of the personal obligations, $2,897,000 had been lent to Whitney by his brother George, beginning in 1926.

Pledged to Two Brokers.

Lyss was also struck, he said, by the discovery that Richard Whitney had pledged his Stock Exchange membership for loans running simultaneously from two different brokers, Charles Hayden and John W. Prentice. Despite the transaction with Hayden, which occurred three years ago, Whitney, on March 1, 1938, entered into an "unusual" contract under which he agreed to sell his membership to Prentice, if unable to meet the latter's $25,000 one-month loan, for an additional $25,000. It was also found that Whitney had pledged for loans the Stock Exchange seats of his partners, Edwin D. Morgan Jr. and Henry D. Mygatt, and the Curb Exchange membership of another partner, John J. McManus.

As lesser offenders engage in "check-kiting," so Richard Whitney, it was brought out, was occupied for years in the "kiting of loans," from creditor to creditor and from bank to bank.

Going further, at the afternoon session, into the operations of the Stock Exchange's "Jekyll and Hyde" broker, Lyss reported that in addition to the Sheldon estate properties, Whitney made use without authorization of 40,600 shares of Distilled Liquors' Corporation stock belonging to his wife, Mrs. Gertrude Whitney, as collateral for loans still outstanding last March 8.

"Little Cabinet" Ledger.

On Feb. 16, 1937, said the witness, Whitney, without authority, transferred to his "control account" a substantial part of the Yacht Club properties in his custody, which were thus made to figure as firm assets instead of customer deposits. But in February and March of that year, according to documents introduced in evidence, Whitney made false financial statements to the Yacht Club, which failed to show these securities had been transferred. Two ledger entries, one true and one false, of this situation were kept by Whitney's bookkeepers. The false one was in the regular ledger; the true one was held secretly in "a little cabinet."

A trick by which the broker covered up his embezzlements from a client, Mrs. Mary S. Baird, was that of sending one statement of her situation to A. H. Whan & Co., public accountants, and a substitute, false one, to Mrs. Baird. With the latter went a seperate form to be signed by her and sent to the accountants, stating that she had examined and certified as correct a statement of her account submitted by Richard Whitney & Co. It was naturally but erroneously assumed by A. H. Whan & Co., said the witness, that both statements were identical.

Exchange Seats Included.

Contrary to all previous testimony, Lyss held that Richard Whitney & Co. was solvent by $393,000 when its most recent partnership agreement was signed on June 30, 1931. The witness confessed he was able to reach this conclusion only by including as firm assets five exchange seats which, under the agreement, might plausibly be regarded as individual property of the partners. There were three memberships in the Stock Exchange in the names of Richard Whitney, Edwin D. Morgan Jr. and Henry D. Mygatt, valued at $300,000 each; membership on the New York Produce Exchange belonging to Whitney, valued at $20,000, and a membership on the Curb Exchange, in the name of John F. McManus, valued at $130,000. The total of these partnerships was $1,050,000.

LABOR CANDIDATE FOR MAYOR OF ST. PAUL 471 VOTES BEHIND

McDonough Defeated by Fallon in Unofficial Returns But Recount Is Expected.

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 27.—By a margin of 471 votes on the basis of complete unofficial returns, William H. Fallon, Independent candidate, apparently was elected Mayor over John J. McDonough in yesterday's municipal election.

Complete unofficial returns gave Fallon, an attorney, 46,922 votes, to 46,451 for McDonough, also an attorney, who had the indorsement of labor in the non-partisan election. A recount appeared certain.

Comptroller Harold F. Goodrich was re-elected by nearly 10,000 over his Labor-indorsed opponent, Paul C. Trimmer.

On the basis of nearly complete returns, five of the six incumbent councilmen were re-elected. Two of these had labor indorsement.

RECEIVER GETS COOGAN RING

Mrs. Bernstein Turns It and Watch Over to Court Agent.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, April 27.—Jackie Coogan's mother, Mrs. Arthur Bernstein, turned over to the receiver in her son's $4,000,000 accounting suit yesterday a 17-carat diamond, set in a platinum ring. It was purchased by young Coogan's father, the late John R. Coogan, for $25,000, and presented to his wife.

Another article surrendered was a $2500 diamond-studded platinum pocket watch given to young Coogan several years ago, which the son said his stepfather had appropriated for his own use. Mrs. Bernstein voluntarily turned over the articles, said John Biby, receiver appointed by the court.

CITY COUNSELOR FINED $5

Edgar H. Wayman Admits Driving Past Stop Signal.

City Counselor Edgar H. Wayman was fined $5 and costs yesterday by Police Judge James F. Nangle when he entered a plea of guilty to failure to stop at an automatic stop signal April 9 at Grand boulevard and Gravois avenue.

Wayman, who lives at 5527 Pershing avenue, did not appear in court. His plea was entered and his fine—$8 in all—was paid by Assistant City Counselor Martin P. Hart, who is in charge of prosecutions in Judge Nangle's court.

VON VERSEN PROPERTY AUCTIONED FOR $10,190

Children of Countess to Get 80 Pct. of Proceeds of Sale by Government.

The Von Versen properties, 13 pieces of real estate seized by the Government during the World War, were sold by auction yesterday for $10,190, slightly less than half the value fixed by the Government in a recent appraisement, subject to approval of the Attorney-General.

Of the net proceeds, 20 per cent will go to the Government and 80 per cent will be held for the five children of the Baroness Maximillian von Versen, the former owner, who was Miss Alice Clemens of St. Louis, daughter of James Clemens Jr., and granddaughter of John Mullanphy. As in other similar cases, ultimate payment to the German heirs will depend on satisfactory arrangements by Germany for payment of claims of American nationals for properties seized in Germany.

Highest bid for any of the properties was $5000 for a 29½-acre farm near Affton, St. Louis County. Second highest bid was $3200 for an undivided one-fifth interest in property at 600 North Third street, occupied by a transportation terminal at the west end of Eads Bridge and under lease to the St. Louis Bridge Co. for $1500 a year.

Other bids tentatively accepted ranged from $50 to $700 for vacant lots, mostly in North St. Louis, originally part of the John Mullanphy holdings. Of much greater value when they were seized, these properties, at that time, were occupied by buildings which deteriorated and have been razed.

The Von Versen heirs are Friederich, Wilhelm, Maximillian and Lotte von Versen and Mrs. George von Arnim. The first street north of Delmar boulevard was named for the Von Versen family, but was re-named Enright avenue during the war for one of the first American soldiers killed in action.

CHICAGO MURDER LAID TO ALCOHOL RACKET

Widow Says Victim Was in It During and After Prohibition.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 27.—Police Captain Joseph Goldberg said last night the only clew in the investigation of the murder of Rudolph Sabatino was a statement from the widow that the 33-yearlold fur merchant had been in the alcohol business during prohibition.

Sabatino's body was found on a street in a sparsely settled district of the Northwest Side early yesterday. He had been shot six times.

Capt. Goldberg questioned the widow, Georgiana, 25, a former dancer and recently propiretor of a Michigan avenue dress shop. Sabatino conducted a fur business from the shop.

Mrs. Sabatino said she assumed her husband had continued in the alcohol business and that at one time when she asked him to get out of it he assured her: "You have nothing to worry about because all of my pals are either dead or in the penitentiary."

Capt. Goldberg said the widow told him her husband went out alone Monday night to keep an appointment with a woman named "Ann," who called him at the dress shop in the afternoon. He told his wife he was going to sell "Ann" a fur coat.

Mrs. Ann Cammarata, who admitted she went out with Sabatino before her marriage a year ago, was detained but she denied telephoning to Sabatino.

COALITION EGYPTIAN CABINET

Premier Retained But King Has His Way About Make-Up.

CAIRO, Egypt, April 27. — A new Egyptian Cabinet was formed today by Mohammed Mahmoud Pasha, whose resignation as Premier was accepted last night by young King Farouk, with whom he had differed over the composition of the Government.

The new cabinet represented a victory for the King's insistence on a coalition of its 13 members with only six belonging to the Premier's Liberal party. Mahmoud had planned to form a Liberty party cabinet, which he held justified by the victory of his following in recent elections.

TOWER GROVE PARK RULES TO BE STRICTLY ENFORCED

Board Votes Action to Protect Children and Other Visitors, and Grass and Trees.

Rigid enforcement of all rules governing the use of facilities at Tower Grove Park was voted yesterday by the Board of Commissioners of the park.

Commissioners said that efforts would be made to control recreational activities for the protection of children and other visitors, and to keep grass and young trees from harm. Bicycle riding will be limited to a mile of road set aside for the exclusive use of bicycles, and, as in the past, the driving of golf balls will be prohibited.

Baseball playing is limited by ordinance to fields provided with backstops, and permits may be obtained from the superintendent.

Information in regard to the use of tennis courts this year will be announced later.

7 KILLED, 11 HURT IN PENNSYLVANIA MINE EXPLOSION

By the Associated Press.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., April 27.—A gas explosion, followed by fire deep in an anthracite mine, killed seven men today and injured 11.

Rescue workers, struggling against black damp, removed six bodies within seven hours after the blast shook the St. Clair Coal Co. mine, four miles from here. The seventh was buried under coal.

Physicians said several of the injured were in grave condition. All were burned.

Twenty men were in the level. Two, who were standing near an exit and were not injured, spread the alarm.

The dead:

Frank Montgomery, 30 years old; Paul Sikra, 40; Wasil Holovak, 45; Luke Chuchran, 40; Richard Barnes, 43, all of St. Clair, and John and Michael Terris, brothers, of Port Carbon.

Michael Terris, a bridegroom of only a week, was the one buried in coal and his body was not recovered immediately.

Flames shot up after the explosion and spread to mine chambers where diggers toiled. Some miners were enveloped, their clothing burned off.

Andrew Potts, 42, mine fire boss, was among the critically burned. He was about to enter the No. 9 tunnel when the blast occurred.

Blast Two Miles Back.

The blast let go about two miles from the main entrance to the mine at St. Clair, a village near the center of Pennsylvania's great lower anthracite field.

A witness said: "There was a loud report that rocked the mountainsides two miles from the colliery office. Within 10 minutes, a half hundred miners had formed a rescue party. In no more time, the emergency station was operating and every ambulance in the region was en route to the mine."

Outside the mine, in a few minutes after the blast, relatives arrived, waiting for some world from below. Suspense among the anxious men, women and children increased as it became evident recuers were having great difficulty in reaching victims. Three priests mingled with relatives at the mine entrance.

Through Mountain Top.

The rescue squads entered the mine through a release slope on a mountain-top a mile away, and reliable news of developments was delayed because the nearest telephone was a mile and a half over the mountain.

The engine house near the main shaft was cleared and turned into an emergency hospital with six doctors and nurses present.

Six hundred men normally are employed in the mine, run by an independent operator, Harold Smyth of New York. He was absent.

Harvey Harrison, assistant superintendent, said the mine fire boss had inspected the affected level only a few minutes before the miners entered and had pronounced conditions satisfactory.

CARDINALS 5, CINCINNATI 0; BROWNS 2, TIGERS 1 (2 Innings)

By J. Roy Stockton.
Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

CINCINNATI, April 27.—The Cardinals finally won a ball game here this afternoon, defeating the Cincinnati Reds in the third and final game of the series after the Redbirds had suffered four straight defeats.

The score was 5 to 0.

Joe Medwick, leading major league batter in 1937, reported to Manager Frisch today, and, though still handicapped by traces of lumbago, played left field. It was Medwick's first appearance this season.

Frisch rearranged his batting order, with Brown leading off, Bucher batting second in place of Stu Martin, Slaughter third and Medwick fourth, followed by Mize, Johnny Martin, Gutteridge and Owen.

Lon Warneke, whose only previous start was against the Cubs in a game credited to Ray Harrell, the team's only victory of the year, pitched against the Reds, with southpaw Lee Grissom on the hill for Cincinnati.

Grissom yielded 11 hits and four runs in six innings and was replaced on the mound by Vander Meer to start the seventh inning. None of the Cardinal scores, all coming in different innings, was driven in with a hit.

It was Ladies' day and the attendance was announced as 10,748, including 3979 paid.

FIRST INNING — CARDINALS — Frey threw out Brown. Bucher was out the same way. Frey made a good stop and threw out Slaughter.

REDS—Owen missed Goodman's high foul by such a wide margin that no error was charged. Goodman was called out on strikes. Riggs walked. Cooke was called out on strikes. V. Davis popped to Bucher.

SECOND — CARDINALS — Myers threw out Medwick from deep short. Mize grounded to Frey. J. Martin singled to center. Gutteridge lined to Myers.

REDS—Brown threw out McCormick. Craft struck out, but had to be thrown out, Owen to Mize. Frey flied to Medwick.

THIRD — CARDINALS— Owen doubled against the left field wall. Warneke bunted safely toward third, Owen moving to third. Frey made a good running catch of Brown's foul. Bucher fouled to Goodman, Owen scoring. Slaughter's high fly fell safely in center field for a double, Warneke stopping at third. Medwick was intentionally passed, filling the bases. Mize flied to Cooke. ONE RUN.

REDS—Myers was called out on strikes. Warneke threw out Grissom. Goodman doubled to center. Riggs popped to Gutteridge.

FOURTH—CARDINALS—J. Martin lined to Craft. Gutteridge bunted safely towards first. Gutteridge stole second and continued to third on V. Davis' wild throw. Owen flied to Cooke, Gutteridge scoring. Warneke singled to center. Grissom threw out Brown. ONE RUN.

REDS—Cooke flied to J. Martin. V. Davis popped to Bucher. McCormick fouled to Mize.

FIFTH — CARDINALS—Bucher bunted and was safe as McCormick dropped the ball as he tagged him. Slaughter singled to center and when Craft missed the bounding ball, Bucher scored and Slaughter reached third. Medwick popped to Frey. Mize hit to Myers and Slaughter was out at the plate, Myers to Davis. J. Martin beat out a slow roller down the third base line, Mize stopping at second. Grissom threw out Gutteridge. ONE RUN.

SIXTH — CARDINALS — Owen doubled down the left field line. Warneke singled to right for his third straight hit, Owen stopping at third. Craft ran back for a leaping glovehand catch of Brown's line drive, Owen scoring. Bucher hit into a double play, Riggs to Frey to McCormick. ONE RUN.

REDS—Goodman flied to Slaughter. Riggs flied to J. Martin. Cooke struck out.

SEVENTH — CARDINALS— Vander Meer went in to pitch for the Reds. Slaughter struck out. Medwick drove deep to Goodman. Mize flied to Cooke.

EIGHTH — CARDINALS — J. Martin was safe on Rigg's wide throw. Gutteridge struck out and J. Martin was out trying to stead second. V. Davis to Myers. Owen hit to left center for his third double. Warneke struck out.

REDS — Frey grounded out to Mize. Myers singled to center. Lombardi batted for Vander Meer and was thrown out by Warneke. Goodman flied to Slaughter.

NINTH — CARDINALS — Barrett went in to pitch for the Reds. McCormick threw out Brown, Barrett covering first. Bucher walked. Slaughter forced Bucher, McCormick to Myers. Medwick singled to right, sending Slaughter to third. Mize singled to right, scoring Slaughter and sending Medwick to third. J. Martin flied to Goodman. ONE RUN.

The Reds failed to score.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, April 27.

A NEW slant on the potential value of base hits was presented today when it was learned that Enos Slaughter, the Cardinals' young outfielder from Columbus had more than doubled his salary since he reported at the spring training camp.

Slaughter, who led the American Association last year with .382, went to St. Petersburg with a contract that called for $150 a month, a 50 per cent increase over his minor league salary. Then he went on to perform so brilliantly that recently his salary was increased from $150 a month to $400, which will make his 1938 salary approximately $2200.

Slaughter is a serious-minded young man, however, and is not likely to permit his new-found affluence to go to his head.

BOURNEMOUTH, England, April 27.—The defending singles champions, Anita Lizana of Chile and Henry Wilfred (Bunny) Austin of England led a parade of favorites into the quarter-final round of the British hard-court tennis championships today.

Recovered from an ankle injury she suffered yesterday, Senorita Lizana defeated Gem Hoahing of China, 6-0, 6-4. Kay Stammers defeated her British compatriot, Freda James, 4-6, 8-6, 8-6, in another feature match of the women's division.

Austin, who had reached the quarterfinals yesterday, will face Henri Boelli of France tomorrow. C. M. Jones and Don Butler, named Monday to Great Britain's Davis Cup team, both won their matches today. Jones defeated M. D. Deloford, 5-7, 8-6, 7-5, 4-6, 6-4, and Butler disposed of J. S. Olliff, 6-1, 6-4, 8-6.

MONTANEZ ILL, SUBSTITUTE TO BOX WALLACE TONIGHT

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 27. — Pedro Montanez, welterweight contender from Puerto Rico who was booked to meet Frankie Wallace of Cleveland in a 10-round main bout at the New York Hippodrome tonight, was ruled out today by New York State Athletic Commission physicians.

During the physical examination at the weighing-in, doctors discovered a streptococci infection in Montanez's throat and also found that the ligaments in his left wrist were torn. They ordered him to bed.

Hippodrome officials secured George Zengaras of New York to substitute for Montanez. Zengaras weighed in at 138, and Wallace at 137¾.

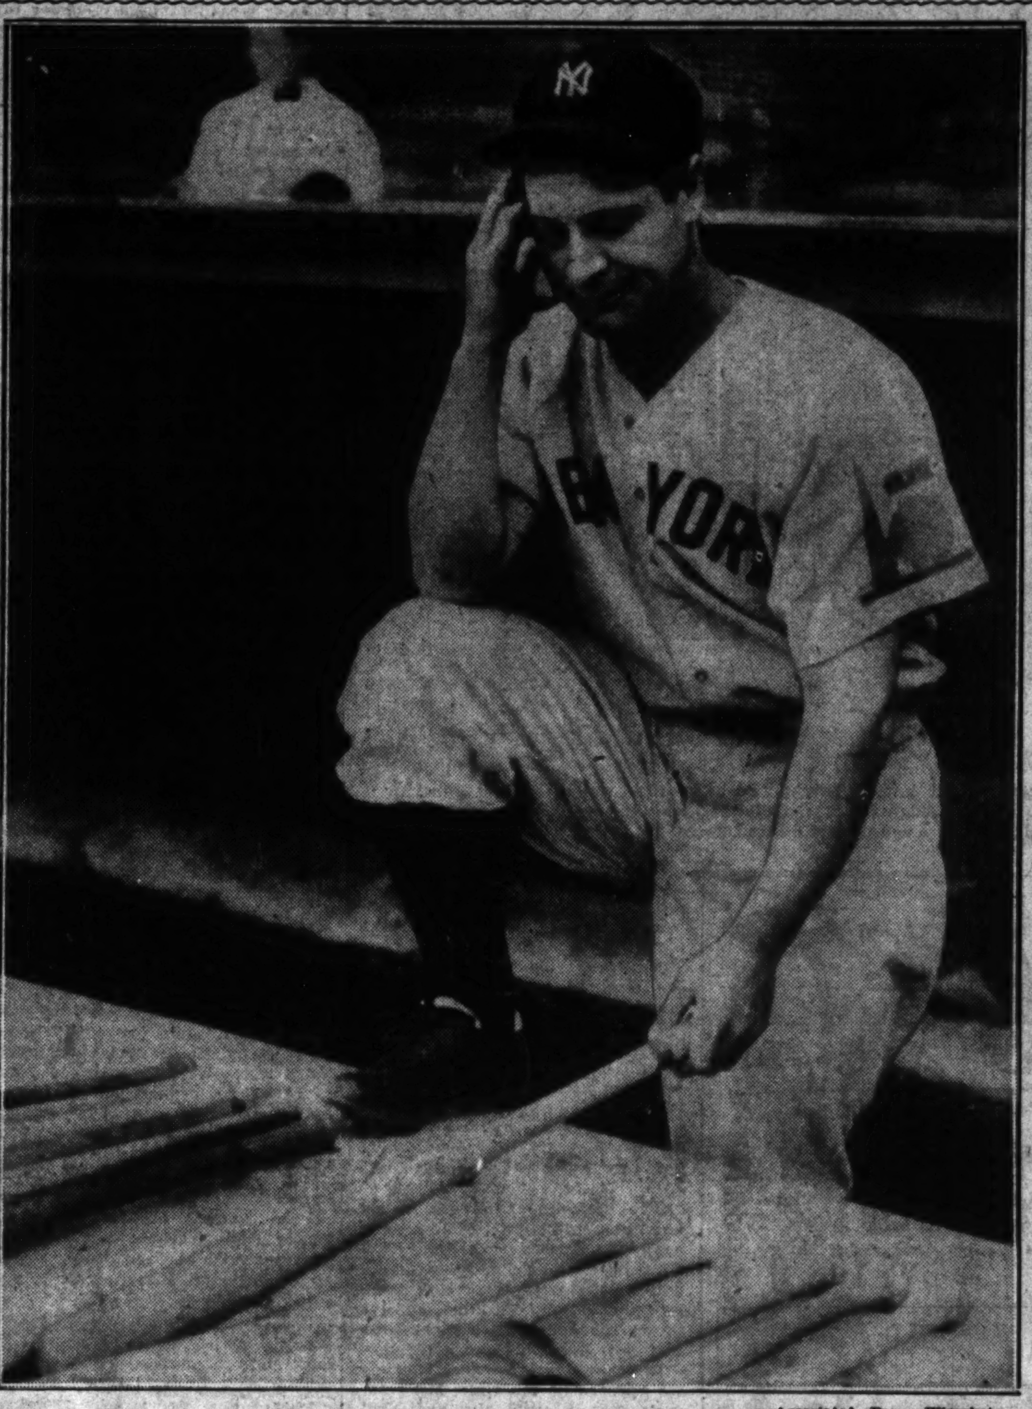
MUNGO WILL BE ABLE TO TAKE HIS TURN

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, April 27.—Dr. Charles Van Ronk, Philadelphia osteopath, said yesterday Van Lingle Mungo, Brooklyn's ace righthanded pitcher, would be able to take his regular turn on the mound tomorrow.

Mungo, who has complained of a sore arm, was brought here for treatment. Dr. Van Ronk said he treated Mungo five times and that after another treatment he would be ready to pitch again.

Two Hits in Nine Games!



—Associated Press Wirephoto.

Lou Gehrig, first baseman of the world champion New York Yankees, appears worried as he picks out a bat. And no wonder—for in his first nine games, Lou made exactly two hits in 27 times at bat. And his salary is $39,000 for 1938.

KAREL KOZELUH BEATS HUNTER

By the Associated Press.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., April 27.—Nimble Karel Kozeluh, Czechoslovakian ace from Greenwich, Conn., defeated the veteran Francis T. Hunter of New York in straight sets 6—2, 6—1, 6—1, in the quarterfinal round of the Greenbrier open tennis tourney today.

Hunter fought for every shot, but could not cope with the powerful baseline drives of his opponent. Badly winded at the end of the second set, he rallied only long enough to take two games.

FAN WANTS TO SELL CARDINALS SHORT

A baseball fan, apparently wishing to sell, today inserted an advertisement in the "Business Personals" column, which read as follows: "One second-row box for the remaining games of the Cardinals; home season; reasonable."

Six Straight for Giants.

NEW YORK, April 27. — The Giants stretched their winning streak to six straight today by whipping the Phillies, 7 to 3, behind the effective six-hit pitching of Harry Gumbert in the opening game of a doubleheader. Chuck Klein did Gumbert the most damage with a two-run homer. Jim Ripple also hit for the circuit.

Helen Wills Moody Arrives in London

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 27. — Helen Wills Moody, full of confidence and loaded down with 25 racquets, arrived today and prepared to practice at Wimbledon tomorrow.

After glancing over the English tournament schedule, Mrs. Moody, seven times winner of the American and British singles championships, said she probably would play in the Chiswick Park and St George's Hill competitions. PASCH WINS 2000 GUINEAS AT NEWMARKET

NEWMARKET, England, April 27.—Making the second start of his career, H. E. Morriss' Pasch today won the 2000 Guineas, first of the British season's racing classics for three-year-olds.

James V. Rank's Scottish Union was second and the Aga Khan's Mirza II third.

Pasch, which did not race as a two-year-old and won the Coventry Stakes on April 16 in his only previous start, captured the 130th running of the classic by two lengths. Scottish Union saved the place by a length and a half.

J. E. Widener's Unbreakable, the only American-owned colt in the field of 18, ran unplaced.

SULLIVAN DOUBLES, SCORES ON TRIPLE BY MEL MAZZERA

By Herman Wecke.

SPORTSMAN'S PARK, April 27.—In an effort to get more good out of the hitters who have been hitting, Manager Gabby Street shook up his Browns' batting order for the final game of the series with the Tigers this afternoon.

Sam West was moved to the leadoff position, with Don Heffner second, Clift third and McQuinn in the cleanup position. Beau Bell, with only two hits for the season, batted fifth, followed by Kress, Sullivan and Mazzera.

Buck Newsom, the big right-hander obtained in the trade which sent Joe Vosmick to the Red Sox last winter, was seeking his third consecutive victory of the campaign for the Browns.

He did not get an easy assignment as Tommy Bridges, a pretty fair right-hander, was on the hill for Micky Cochrane's team.

In his previous outs, Newsom beat the Indians, 6-4, and the White Sox, 5-4.

Manager Cochrane made a change in his battle front, benching Don Ross, young third sacker, and sending Mark Christman, the Maplewood boy who last season was in the Texas League, to the far corner.

Among those present at the game was Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York, who occupied a box near the Browns' dugout as the guest of Mayor Bernard Dickmann.

The attendance was estimated at 1000.

The umpires were Hubbard, McGowan and Grieve.

The league-leading Indians call tomorrow for a two-game series to end the Browns' current home stand.

The game:

FIRST INNING — TIGERS — Fox beat out a slow roller to Clift. Walked walked. Fox went to third on a snort passed ball. Gehringer singled to right, scoring Fox, Walker stoppin gat second. Greenberg fouled to Sullivan. On an attempted double steal Walker was out at third, Sullivan to Clift, Gehringer reaching second. York was safe on Clift's fumble, Gehringer stopping at third. Laabs fouled to McQuinn. ONE RUN.

BROWNS — West singled over second. Heffner walked. Clift forced Heffner, Rogell to Gehringer. McQuinn popped to York in front of the plate. Bell struck out.

SECOND — TIGERS — Rogell walked. Christman struck out. Bridges walked. Fox fouled to Sullivan. Walker again walked, filling the bases. Gehringer flied to Mazzera.

BROWNS MAKE ONLY FIVE HITS AND LOSE SECOND OF SERIES

In the second of the series, yesterday, it was a real ball game until Oral Hildebrand, Brownie pitcher, became peeved at Umpire Bill Grieve's calling of balls and strikes in the fifth inning and was tossed out of the pastime. Hildebrand had two out, when Gehringer walked on four pitched balls. Hildebrand did not like the last call. He tossed his glove to the ground and Grieve waved him out of the game. The Browns' hurler earlier in the day had complained in no uncertain language, which could be heard in the press box. But on this particular pitch, Hildebrand says he did not open his mouth, merely tossed his glove to the turf to show his disgust. But it was enough, and he was through for the day, and right there ended what had been a tight pitching duel with Eldon Auker.

Les Tietje came in without being able to warm up properly and he was pounded for two hits and walked a batter, before Russ Van Atta came in. Van Atta also was "cold" and greeted by two hits to give the Tigers four runs in the frame to turn a 2-1 game into a 6-1 rout. Later, the Tigers scored another to make the final 7-1.

All told, the Browns managed only five safeties against Auker, who won his second game of the season. Mazzera's double and a single by West produced the Browns' only run in the first.

In the Tigers' third, Ross, Fox and Gehringer singled to give Cochrane's men a pair. Then the fifth. Two out, when Gehringer walked and Hildebrand went out. Greenberg and York singled against Tietje and Lanbs walked. Here Van Atta came in and was greeted by a double by Rogell, which drove in three runs. Gehringer tripled in the ninth and scored on Greenberg's tremendous fly to West against the wall in left-center.

"Another Jack Dempsey"

WRAY'S COLUMN

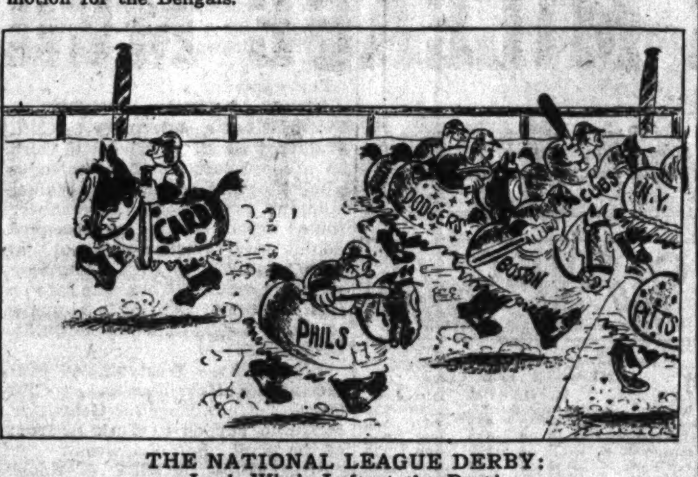
IF the Cardinals and Tigers were almost left at the post at the start of the National and American League baseball derbies, charge it up to the hitters. The heavy artillery of these two clubs did not function well in early games. The Cardinals sadly missed "Muscles" Joe Medwick and the mighty Greenberg was slow to get in motion for the Bengals.



THE NATIONAL LEAGUE DERBY:

That the Yanks also had a slow beginning can be traced to the absence of that other slugging Joe, DiMaggio, and to the failure of the fence-busting Lou Gehrig to bust anything, particularly the apple.

Even the Browns can be extremely thankful that they were able to win three of their first seven games with that battery of big guns, West, Bell, Clift and Kress almost completely silenced. They compiled a grand batting average for the seven contests of .140!

• • •

WHEN THE HITTERS begin to punch something besides the time clock, there will be numerous changes in the standings. Not the least speculative of such movements will concern the two St. Louis clubs.

Although the Cardinals have started off like the worst team in the league, that astute judge of baseball values, Branch Rickey, has declared the club is just about the best Cardinal team he remembers!

No, we do not attribute this statement to loss of memory—Branch probably knows something the rest of the world doesn't.

We can guess that this team will not finish last; but whether it will be sixth, seventh or fourth depends on what ace pitcher, if any, the officials can pick up. Ace pitchers at this time of the year are about as easy to pick up as a globule of mercury.

• • •

THE BROWNS got away to a fair start without the aid of their Big Berthas, which may be ground for belief that they may remain about where they are, after the hitting begins.

A long, hot race confronts both of our clubs, however. There seems no need for our musical composers to start work on any "March of the Pennant Winners," for use in local fall celebrations.

You may even have to strain your optimism to voice that old slogan: "It looks like first division!"

And, say, Bo—imagine the state of baseball in a city that became so baseball-minded it was satisfied with a mere first division berth for its teams! About that time the country's idea of St. Louis was: "First in shoes, first in booze and last in the major leagues."

• • •

Just a Good Prospect.

JIMMY ADAMICK, one of the country's most highly publicised fighters, will give local observers an eyeful tomorrow night at the Auditorium, where he boxes the Pittsburgh Negro, Red Bruce, a sparmate of John Henry Lewis, light-heavyweight champion.

Like many another fighter, Adamick has been overplayed. Too much has been expected of him in most of his appearances.

"He can hit harder than Jack Dempsey," or "He's better than Jack Dempsey was at his age," and other publicity comparatives and superlatives have put the young fellow out on a limb.

His recent record under Jack Kearns indicates that he's a nice young fellow with a kick, courage and a lot to learn about the game.

His future depends on how far he can advance beyond his present form. If he has what Dempsey had—a real fighting heart—he seems to have the physical equipment to go somewhere.

To pit him against a finished fighter like Schmelinig or Louis would be sending him to slaughter, in all reasonable probability.

New York Gets It.

THE NEXT "MILLION-DOLLAR fight"—that's a hope, not a promise, of the promoters—will take place in Yankee Stadium, New York, with Joe Louis battling the German challenger, Schmeling. It will follow by about a month that first big outdoor show in New York, the Battle of Long Island Bowl, in which the featherweight king, Henry Armstrong, will face Barney Ross for the welterweight championship of the world. This is set for May 26 and the heavy title combat June 22.

The assignment of the world championship battle to New York evidently means that the anti-Nazi boycott, so loudly exploited when Schmeling tried and tried in vain to get Braddock to live up to his contract to meet him, just now doesn't mean a thing.

In other words we fear that, as we guessed at the time, Mike Jacobs merely used the anti-Nazi opposition as a smoke screen to conceal his plans for making Joe Louis the champion.

Schmeling, however, should not now complain. He probably is just as well off as if he had won the title from Braddock. Max at least will get his chance at the crown and in the meantime he has fought three profitable fights to help out his hope chest.

If he repeats his knockout of Louis he will achieve what he has long been trying to do—win back the championship he lost to Jack Sharkey.

• • •

OF COURSE, SCHMELING did not really win the title, when he was credited with gaining it. Under existing New York Commission rules his victory on a foul would be termed a defeat via knockout, if it occurred today.

If the dark-browed German should polish off Louis once more, there would still remain the question of the title's future. Although it is said that Max has promised, or perhaps signed a contract to defend his crown in this country in event of victory June 22, there's really nothing to prevent him from taking the next boat to Germany and putting the title in escrow there, until some challenger agrees to go to that country to strive for it.

In all fairness, it is just as reasonable for foreign fighters who hold world titles to insist on defending their honors in their home country as it is for American champions to do that selfsame thing.

Many challengers have had to come to America for a chance—so why not the reverse?

It would be too bad if Max, in event of victory, decided to retire to Germany and impound the title without defending it. Undoubtedly he would be forced to forfeit it, before a year; but even then it would leave the championship situation in the air, as it was after Jeffries retired and again following the retirement of Tunney.

ADAMICK READY FOR HIS FIGHT HERE TOMORROW

By W. J. McGoogan

Jimmy Adamick, Michigan heavyweight, who meets Red Bruce at the Auditorium tomorrow night in a 10-round bout, will have a chance today to go to a ball game, his favorite pastime.

Adamick has been in almost constant training, and he found when he came here from Detroit the warmer weather made it easier for him to put the finishing touches on his conditioning for his meeting with Bruce.

That's why his trainer, Julius Gonzales, decided Jimmy would have to do no work the day before the match.

Bruce has worked hard, too, and is ready. He has not fought many heavyweights, most of his campaigning being done in the light-heavyweight division recently, but he has considerable experience and should prove a real test for the younger and more inexperienced Adamick.

Belanger in Condition.

Charley Belanger, former Canadian light-heavyweight champion, and a real veteran of the ring wars who boxes Otis Thomas in another 10-round contest on the program, arrived in good condition, for he just fought and won a bout the other night.

Belanger has been around a long time, and he will need all the knowledge he has gained to stave off the hard-punching Thomas.

It is likely that if Otis Thomas and Adamick win their bouts, they will be matched here at a later date, particularly if Otis is able to straighten out his legal entanglements arising from his association with a former manager.

Change in Program.

A change was necessitated in one of the preliminaries because Jack Devasher, heavyweight, who was to have met Dan Dowling, was injured in an automobile accident yesterday and forced to withdraw from the match. Bob Sikes of Kansas City will take his place.

Courtland Sheppard, local middleweight, opposes Johnny Owens, Kansas City, in a preliminary. Owens suffered a technical knockout at the hands of Allen Matthews in East St. Louis recently when they butted heads and Owens was badly cut. He had knocked Allen to the floor previously.

Spavor Sweeps Matches.

Paul Spavor of the St. Louis Police Department swept all four matches held at the outdoor range of the Glendale Shooting Club. Results:

The Cloud Behind the Silver Lining

Or the Sad Story of the Cardinals, Leading by 7-0, Losing Game by 8-7.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, April 27.—It looks like a long summer over which $185,000 will have to do a lot of stretching.

Frankie Frisch, manager of the Cardinals is in a quandary. Yesterday he shot the works, trying to protect a seven-run lead gained in the early innings, and he was wondering this morning if it might have been better if he had shot a few of what he is packing around as ball players.

Shackles and Hobbles.

However, there are several ways of looking at it. Perhaps one way is to say that one of these days the Cardinals are going to break the shackles of their batting slump and throw off the hobbles that have tripped them defensively and that then, my little chickadee, somebody is going to take an awful beating. But then anybody in the Cardinal camp hates to mention an awful beating, but that's about all they've seen, and the Cardinals, except on one sweet afternoon at Wrigley Field, have been the recipients.

It does seem that there should be a turn in the road soon, but thus far every detour has been just that much more trouble for the Cardinals.

However, occasionally a little silver appears in the clouds. Take the second game with the Reds, for instance. For six innings there was so much silver lining that you couldn't believe it was a cloud. Curt Davis, obtained in the notorious Dizzy Dean trade (and that probably would seem better if written notorious trade for Dizzy Dean), was a master pitcher for six frames. Not only was Curt a great pitcher, but also a great hitter. He bashed a home run with the bases filled, accounting in no small part for the seven-run lead that towered on the scoreboard as the Reds went to bat in the seventh.

Lombardi Breaks the Spell.

Then things happened. Ernie Lombardi whacked a tremendous home run over the center field wall. McCormick and Craft singled. Kampouris flied out but Myers singled to left, filling the bases. Gamble batted for Ray Benge and popped out, but Ival Goodman singled to center and you could begin to see the cloud behind the silver lining as two runs scored.

Determined to save this victory if it took his last man, Frisch called Si Johnson from the bullpen. Si stopped that rally, but Dusty Cooke opened the eighth frame with a double to right and then, after Gutteridge threw out Hershberger and McCormick on excellent plays, forcing Cooke to hold second, things began to happen and the silver began to tarnish. Craft scratched a single off Jimmy Bucher's glove, moving Cooke to third. Kampouris shot a good single to right, scoring Cooke. Myers hit sharply to short and it looked like the end of the inning, but Gutteridge, who hadn't made an error all year (it seems like two years), let this ball slip between his hands and another run scored. Jordan batted for Vander Meer and when he walked, Frisch derricked Johnson and called on Max Macon, who had pitched a long game Sunday afternoon.

Don't criticise Frisch for that. The Cardinals were still two runs ahead and Frank, who like the rest of us, was weary looking at so many deuces, wanted to play his ace in the pinch, to save the game. And Macon had looked like an ace.

Mother Nature, Too.

Max delivered, too. In that crisis he threw low curves to the hard-hitting Goodman and Goodman finally spanked a grounder straight at Bucher. It looked like payday for the Gas House gang, but there was a clod out there and the ball was not a clod hopper. It hit the clod head on, bounced crazily against Bucher's shoulder and another run scored to cut that margin to one and the bases were still filled. Macon then lost his control, as who wouldn't in the face of such unprintable luck, and walked Riggs to force in the tying run. Max then struck out Cooke to leave the score tied.

That didn't do any good, however. The club that had gone 30 innings without scoring prior to the frame in which Davis hit for the circuit with three on, had lapsed into a non-scoring stride again and it was just a matter of time. Ten innings to be exact, for in the tenth Myers singled, Frey walked, Lanier, the kitten of the Mudcat band, replaced Harrell and a pass to Goodman and a single by Riggs broke up the ball game and made the Reds winners, 8 to 7.

Redland customers, accustomed to teams low in the second division, went home laughing at the boyish Cardinal outfit, and wondering how St. Louis came up with that kind of a club, instead of Cincinnati. Of course the Cardinals won't be that bad all year. When Medwick shakes off his lumbago and Mize swings into his normal hitting stride and Padgett starts to hit and Stuart Martin gets over the "charley horse" he pulled yesterday afternoon and the catching improves and the defense tightens, it won't be a bad Cardinal team. But meantime a steep hill can raise its ugly head.

Manager Frisch this morning was considering what to do. He may switch Gutteridge back to third base and put Brown at short. Then he'd have the advantage of two men in position, that's where they played in the past. Certainly the infield hasn't been anything to make pitchers — Cardinal pitchers —happy.

Yes, it looks like a long summer, over which $185,000 will have to do a lot of stretching.

Jefferson County's track feature, the second annual Mineral Area relays, will be held Saturday at the Crystal City athletic field. Twenty-two teams in the Mineral Area, comprising over 200 athletes, will compete.

HEMSLEY SAYS HE'LL BEHAVE, REJOINS TEAM

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 27.—Oscar Vitt, manager of the pennant-leading Cleveland Indians, sighed with relief today.

Vitt was pleased because Rollicking Rollie Hemsley, the "bad boy" of the Indians, has rejoined the club with another promise to behave himself. No more looking at back bars lined with shiny bottles and glasses, Hemsley promised with a solemn face.

"I'm sure glad to hear it," Vitt said, clasping the catcher's hand.

Hemsley, arriving by airplane yesterday from Cleveland, was in uniform but did not take his place behind the bat against the Chicago White Sox. Frank Pytlak caught instead. Vitt said Hemsley might return to the game in a day or two.

Hemsley was suspended in Detroit Sunday night and fined $250 for violating training rules. He showed up at the hotel, after catching Bob Feller in the latter's triumph against the Tigers, wobbling a bit and bumped into Manager Vitt. Vitt ordered him to report to C. C. Slapnicka, vice-president of the Indians, in Cleveland, while the rest of the team went on to Chicago.

In Cleveland yesterday Hemsley had a 35-minute conference with Slapnicka, during which he agreed to behave himself and Slapnicka levied no additional fine. Hemsley was a completely subdued athlete when he rejoined the team.

Hemsley, who lost $5000 in payless suspensions for misdeeds while a member of the St. Louis Browns last season, admitted "having a couple of drinks" in Detroit Sunday night.

Woolf's Colt Betters Track Mark for Five-Eighths of a Mile Going Distance in :58 4-5.

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 27.—H. M. Woolf's handsome bay colt Lawrin clipped off a mile today in a workout for the Kentucky Derby that amazed veteran turfmen. He was clocked in 1:38 flat, said by the oldtimers around Churchill Downs to be the fastest time ever made in a Derby prep here.

The colt's time at the various posts was clocked at :23 for the quarter, :34 3-5 for the three-eighths, :46 for the half, :58 4-5 (better than the track record) for the five-eighths, and 1:11 4-5 for the three-quarters. He then galloped out a mile and an eighth in 1:52 4-5.

Lawrin, like some other thoroughbreds, usually shows a disinclination to extent himself in morning workouts, but today his trainer, B. A. Jones, gave him competition. He worked two other horses against him, one for the first half mile and the other cutting in there to take up the race.

Stagehand and The Chief, Maxwell Howard's pair, trained by Earl Sande, clipped off a workout that was considered outstanding until Lawrin came along. The Howard colts were clocked in :24 for the quarter, :48 for the half and 1 minute for the five-eighths.

Mountain Ridge was clocked in 1:04 1-5 in a workout over five-eighths of a mile.

Central seniors had a difficult time nosing out Maplewood, 58 5-6 to 54 1-6.

Hancock, with a total of 46½ points, won a four-cornered meet at Jennings High field yesterday. Ferguson was second with 35½ and Bayless and Jennings each had 10¼.

SPORT SALAD by L. Davis

FOR three straight days the Gas
House Gang
Those old rip-snorting terrors,
Had crashed the sport page with a bang—
No runs, 11 hits; four errors.

Watts the Matter.

THE scoreboard out at Sportsman's Park
Is shy on the electric spark;
The batting numbers didn't click,
But the Tigers didn't fail to stick
In fact they stuck with such effect
The left-field fence was nearly wrecked.

Everywhere the Redbirds go they run into some former teammate whose life is dedicated to the proposition of pinning back the Cardinals' ears.

There are enough former Cardinals scattered around the league to clinch a pennant by 15 games. They might do it at that, but not for the Cardinals.

The Tigers blew into St. Louis Monday in the midst of a batting slump. But before the sun had sunk behind the Grampian hills, the slump had resolved itself into a batting orgy.

As the flashing of hits and errors on the scoreboard is against the policy of the American League, the Brownie customers will not be supplied this information. If they don't like it they can stay home and get the information by radio.

See where Joe DiMaggio signed up for $25,000 less what he will be docked for time out. However, Giuseppi will try to retrieve his shrunken fortune with his stick. Col. Ruppert is a generous victor.

The Colonel won a tough one from "Red" Ruffing last year, but "Red lost nothing in the end. He got what he originally asked for by earning it.

Big Jim Weaver, who spends his time commuting between the American and National leagues, has been sold by the Browns to Cincinnati. So long, Jim; take care yourself.

The Cardinals got off on the straw foot this year and have been out of step ever since the season opened. Their ramifications have become so extensive that like many farmers they are land poor.

At the present time there seems to be a concerted effort on the part of the other members of the league to plow them under.

The American League frowns on the flashing of doubtful hits and errors on the scoreboard, not so much because it upsets the morale of the players, as that it aids and abets the gay gamboliers in plying their nefarious trade at the ball park. It doesn't make sense, but take it or leave it.

The Yankee Stadium has been decided on as the site for the Louis-Schmeling fight. No matter what the Yanks do, the Colonel is assured of one world championship being pulled off in his ball yard.

And the customers can rest assured that there will be a couple of good hard hitters in there, even if Gehrig and DiMaggio don't make it.

He's out of the crowd of mere "oil-changers" ...: because

ONLY YOUR MILEAGE MERCHANT OIL-PLATES YOUR ENGINE

CONOCO
GERM PROCESSED PARAFFIN BASE MOTOR OIL

. . . You'll split your expenses all right by giving that job to Your Mileage Merchant. Real citizen. Too busy, of course, to come along in person. His Conoco Germ Processed oil, however, will stay right with you, clear up to "Full." Older cars especially prove it's all full of mileage, besides being the one way to OIL-PLATE your engine, so as to end "dry starting" and other rapid wear. Note the solid reasonable basis for making that statement about OIL-PLATING.

The patent papers legally describe how Germ Processing gives this oil its known power of attraction for metals. Thus Germ Processed oil really unites with inner engine surfaces to preserve them behind unbroken OIL-PLATING. Other oils must wait for the oil-pump, and try to worm through tiny oil-tubes, and hope to squeeze into thinnest little spaces, and even then these oils are always in a hurry to drain right down again.

While all that's going on, an engine gets starved for oil, but not your OIL-PLATED engine! All its parts are lastingly encased in rich slippy OIL-PLATING that can't drain down or come loose. Hence no "holes" in your lubrication—or in your pocket...WANTED—at once—your right Summer grade of Germ Processed oil, from Your Mileage Merchant only. Continental Oil Company.

FARM CONFERENCE TOLD OF VALUE OF POWER ALCOHOL

Corn Used in Production Takes Up Some of Surplus Due to Non-Use of Horses.

OMAHA, Neb., April 27.—Fred Hawthorn, of Monona County, Ia., an agricultural engineer, told the farm chemurgic conference yesterday that power alcohol, made from corn and other farm products at Atchison, Kan., and blended with gasoline, provides an excellent tractor fuel.

Through use of this fuel, Hawthorn said, the farmer is able to raise on the farm some of his power and the corn that goes into power alcohol takes up some of the surplus thrown on the market as a result of the change from horses to tractors for farm power.

Dr. Leo M. Christensen, general manager of the company which produces the power alcohol, said grain sorghums had proved an excellent raw material in the manufacture of alcohol.

DUTIES OF AN AUSTRIAN PRIEST

Must Lead Holy Life, Avoid Politics, Says Cardinal's Paper.

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, April 27. — Theodore Cardinal Innitzer's Wiener Diocesan Blatt informed the Austrian clergy today that "henceforth the Catholic priest in National Socialist Germany must lead a holy life and be a model citizen."

"He is a missionary and must educate his parishioners to be good Christians and good citizens," the publication said. "Politics, however, no longer have a voice in the pulpit."

PLAY 'HARVEST TIME' WINS LITTLE THEATER CASH AWARD

"Harvest Time," a three-act drama by Everett Glass of Berkeley, Cal., has been selected as the winner of the 1938 playwriting contest of the Little Theater of St. Louis. The award carries a $250 prize.

Glass, who also submitted another play in the contest, places the action of "Harvest Time" on a farm in Maine and the nature of the play, according to members of the play-reading committee, resembles that of certain plays of Eugene O'Neill. The main character is Jim Webster, a dour farmer 58 years old, who is about to marry a woman much younger than himself, when the mother of his son appears on the scene, bringing the grown son with her. Soon the son and younger woman have fallen in love.

In contrast to prize plays of former years, "Harvest Time" will not be included in the Little Theater's subscription series next season but will be played as an extra or as a laboratory production. The playwriting contest is open to writers from all parts of the country and last year was won by "The Young Elizabeth," by the Princess Amelie Rives Troubetzkoy, who lives in Virginia.

WILLIAMS COLLEGE BOYS FIGHT OVER BURNING OF 'MEIN KAMPF'

Effigy of Dictator Stolen Before Students Can Get It Afire; Fists Fly, Eggs Thrown.

By the Associated Press.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., April 27.—A copy of Adolf Hitler's book, "Mein Kampf," was burned on the Williams College campus last night and an effigy of the German dictator was stolen before it could be burned as 500 undergraduates fought in Berkshire quadrangle.

Fists and ancient eggs mingled freely and many shirts were torn in the fracas.

H. V. E. Mitchell III of West Pittston, Pa., dressed as a preacher, was doused with water when he touched flames to "Mein Kampf." Then, as the effigy was dragged toward a bonfire amid shouts of "Down with Hitler," a group of students seized it and fled.

The student fight came two days after a group of Williams students sent a telegram to the Vienna National Library asking for the non-Aryan books which German officials have said would be burned.

Students also have sent telegrams to President Roosevelt, Secretary of State Hull and the German Ambassador to the United States in their efforts to have the books sent to this college.

Reports of condemnation commissioners, fixing damages for property in two blocks of the riverfront memorial area, were filed in United States District Court yesterday, bringing the number covered so far by such reports to seven, out of 37 blocks in the district.

For these two blocks, damages, as recommended by the commissioners, total $277,580, compared with assessed valuations, for taxation, of $166,500. For the seven blocks so far reported, damages have aggregated $1,134,623, compared with $849,150 assessed valuations.

One report covers the block at the southeastern corner of the memorial site, city block 2, bounded by the Wharf and Poplar, Main and Valentine streets. The commissioners, W. W. Butts, E. R. Kinsey and Fred W. Tirre, report damages at $210,200. The assessed valuation is $104,280.

There are only three parcels of property in this block. For the seven-story brick building of Ed. F. Mangelsdorf & Bros., Inc., 500-02 South Main, covering the northern half of the block, $93,200 is allowed by the commissioners. This structure is used as a seed-cleaning plant and warehouse.

The southern half of the block is occupied by a one and two-story brick warehouse, covering 41,000 square feet, owned by the Valentine Warehouse Co. The commissioners award was $115,600 for this. The occupants, under lease, are the St. Louis Terminal Warehouse Co., Diamond Match Co., Mundet Cork Corporation and E. R. ODonnell Mercantile Co.

Albert H. Mangelsdorf, vice-president and treasurer of the seed company, and E. R. O'Donnell, president of the Valentine company, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter that their concerns would oppose the awards as insufficient.

The third piece in the block is a triangle, 70 feet long, with a base of 13 feet, at the Poplar-Wharf corner, owned by the St. Louis Merchants' Bridge Terminal Railway Co., a Terminal Railroad subsidiary. It is occupied by foundations and superstructure holding part of the elevated riverfront railroad line, where the line curves west into Mill Creek Valley. The rest of the elevated route within the memorial site is on city property in the Wharf. For this triangle the commissioners award $1400. What effect Government ownership of the triangle would have on the future status of the elevated line is part of an involved series of undecided legal questions.

The other block reported is city block 8, bounded by the Wharf and Chestnut, Main and Market streets. The commissioners, Butts, Kinsey and Ancel A. Skaggs, allow $67,380 damages. The assessed valuation is $62,220. Awards for the 14 parcels involved are:

T. L. Guntzler, $3066; T. L. and Lena Guntzler, $2765; J. Peebles, $3586; C. M. Cherry, $3163; W. G. and A. I. Cherry, $3584; St. Louis Union Trust Co. and A. C. Orrick, $2382; Chase Bag Co., $9859; Bertha Tamm and others, $2840; N. P. Ring, $2713; Terminal Realty Co., $8440; J. le Torney, $4262; Terminal Realty Co., $16,750; Gottlieb Realty Co., $2343; Harper Realty Co., $1627.

Suits have been filed so far to condemn 33 of the 37 blocks in the memorial site and the other four suits are expected to be filed soon.

Commissioners were appointed by Judge Charles B. Davis yesterday for city block 35, bounded by Main, Second, Walnut and Elm streets. They are Carl G. Stifel and Henry R. Weisels, real estate dealers, and Elmer L. Moone, lawyer.

Four of National Park Service Advisers to Visit City.

Four members of the National Park Service Advisory Board will be in St. Louis Sunday for an informal inspection of plans for the proposed Jefferson Memorial on the riverfront, John L. Nagle, superintendent of the memorial, said today to a Post-Dispatch reporter.

Nagle said the visitors would stop for "first-hand information on the project" on their way to Santa Fe, N. M., where the board will hold a meeting early in May. They are Dr. Edmund H. Abrahams of Savannah, Ga., head of the Savannah Commission for the Preservation of Landmarks; Richard Lieber of Indianapolis, former director of Indiana State parks; Dr. Waldo G. Leland of Washington, executive secretary of the American Council of Learned Societies, and Mrs. Reau E. Folk of Nashville, Tenn., regent of the Ladies' Hermitage Association.

A special committee of the board, which was created under the Historic Sites and Buildings Act, the legal basis of the riverfront memorial proposal, was here last summer to prepare a report for the board.

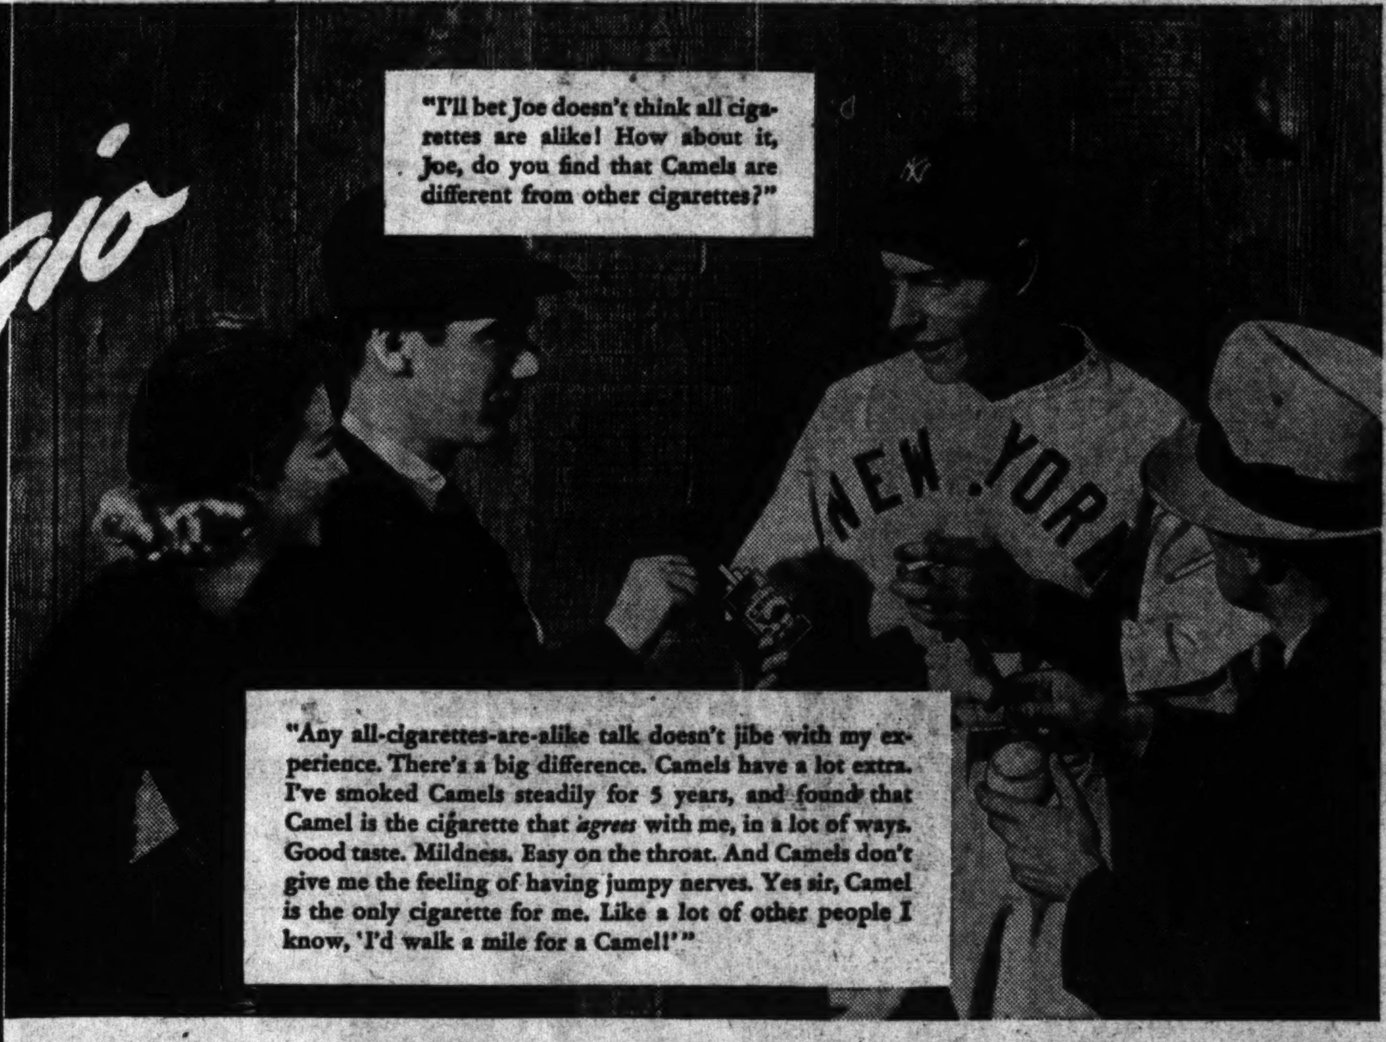
Joe DiMaggio has something to say about how different cigarettes can be!



"I'll bet Joe doesn't think all cigarettes are alike! How about it, Joe, do you find that Camels are different from other cigarettes?"

"Any all-cigarettes-are-alike talk doesn't jibe with my experience. There's a big difference. Camels have a lot extra. I've smoked Camels steadily for 5 years, and found that Camel is the cigarette that agrees with me, in a lot of ways. Good taste. Mildness. Easy on the throat. And Camels don't give me the feeling of having jumpy nerves. Yes sir, Camel is the only cigarette for me. Like a lot of other people I know, 'I'd walk a mile for a Camel!'"

WHEN BILL GRAHAM saw Joe DiMaggio pull out his package of Camels, he asked Joe's opinion on smoking. Joe came straight to the point: "There's a difference, a big difference, between Camels and the others." Like Joe DiMaggio—like millions of other Camel smokers—you, too, will find in Camels a matchless blend of finer, more expensive tobaccos—Turkish and Domestic.

JOE KEEPS his hand in on mending nets. His family are fisher folk from away back. DiMaggio is 6 feet tall—weighs around 185 pounds. His nerves are h-e-a-l-t-h-y!

DURING THE WINTER, Joe's busy at his restaurant. Ask Joe what he does when tired—"I get a 'lift' with a Camel—another reason I say Camels are the cigarette for me. They set me right!"

BACK IN THE KITCHEN of his picturesque water front restaurant, Joe says: "I eat pretty much what I like all season long and smoke Camels with my meals and afterward—'for digestion's sake.' I think Camels are just made to order for mealtime contentment."

CLOSE-UP OF JOE'S GRIP. "Ball players go for Camels in a big way," he says. When someone mentioned that he had a sensitive throat, Joe remarked: "I'm a steady smoker and I find that Camels don't irritate my throat. That shows Camels have real mildness all right."

"TOBACCO GROWERS FAVOR CAMELS FOR THEIR SMOKING!"
—is the majority opinion in a survey of well-known tobacco planters

"When Camel says 'costlier tobaccos' I know it's right," says Mr. Edward Estes, capable young planter. "Camel bought all the best parts of my last crop—paid me the most I've ever gotten. The men who grow tobacco know what to smoke—Camels!"

"Last year I had the dandiest crop ever," says Mr. Roy Jones, another experienced planter who prefers Camels. "I smoke Camels because they pay more at the auctions for the choice lots of leaf tobacco. They paid the highest price I ever got from anybody. It's not surprising that Camel is the leading cigarette with us planters."

Mr. Harold Craig knows the kinds of tobaccos that go into various cigarettes. "I'm the fellow who gets the check—so I know that Camels use more expensive tobaccos. Camel got the best of my last crop. That holds true with most planters I know too. You bet I smoke Camels."

Last year, Mr. Walter Devine's tobacco brought the highest price in his market. "Camel paid top prices for my best lots," he says, telling what happened at the auction. "Other planters got top prices from the Camel buyers too when their tobacco was extra-choice grade. Being in the tobacco growing business, I'm partial to Camels. Most of the other big growers here feel the same way."

Top prices, that's what J. B. Jackson, another successful planter, got from the Camel buyer last year. "Camel buyers don't buy just any tobacco—they pay more to get the best. That means finer tobaccos are used for Camels. I say cigarette quality has got to be grown in the tobacco. That's why I smoke Camels."

YOUR OIL FREE
(UP TO THE FULL MARK) IF I FORGET TO CHECK IT

It's dangerous to RUN LOW ON OIL. You can just about wreck your engine if you do. New bearings cost plenty. So do new rings and pistons.

To keep your car out of the shop, we Shell dealers make this proposition:

Drive into any one of our stations. If we don't check your oil—and you call us—we'll bring your oil level right up to the full mark free.

We'll put in Golden Shell, too—the oil that has been refined especially for today's stop-and-go driving.

Maybe you never knew that stop and go calls for a certain kind of oil. Well, it does—and here's the reason why:

You average ten cold starts a day. If your oil is slow-flowing, one start can cause as much wear as 50 miles of steady running.

Golden Shell changes this. It's fast-flowing. The second you step on your starter, it coats each engine part with a tough oil film that doesn't break down ... even under the heat of your steady running.

GOV. EARLE FIRES OFFICIAL, AUTHOR OF GRAFT CHARGES

He Ousts Attorney-General Margiotti and Three Deputies Associated With Him.

MADE DEMAND FOR EVIDENCE

By the Associated Press.

HARRISBURG, Pa., April 27. — Attorney-General Charles J. Margiotti, an hour after he had insisted on a grand jury investigation of his charges that legislation was "bought" in Pennsylvania, was dismissed today by Gov. George H. Earle.

Earle namde Herbert F. Goodrich, dean of the Universtiy of Pennsylvania Law School, as Margiotti's successor.

In a letter addressed to Margiotti, the Governor said:

"I hereby, effective immediately, remove you as Attorney-General because you have refused to substantiate before the people of Pennsylvania the most serious charges you made last night against three of your political opponents.

"I herewith appoint Dean Herbert F. Goodrich, of the University of Pennsylvania, as Attorney-General and will request him to make such arrests and take such other action as the evidence submitted to him warrants."

Governor Demands Evidence.

Margiotti, an independent candidate for the Democratic nomination for the governorship in Pennsylvania's May 17 primary, returned to the capital this morning after making the charges in a speech last night.

The Governor—who is the State committee-endorsed candidate for the nomination for United States Senator—called Margiotti to the mansion. He asked for evidence.

The Attorney-General had asserted that "brewing interests" paid $[illegible]0,000 to Democratic State Chairman David L. Lawrence and State Democratic Secretary Ralph M. Bashore. He said "these interests" had been told by Lawrence and by Matthew H. McCloskey, contractor and chairman of the party's State Finance Committee, that for the money favorable legislation would be passed.

Both Lawrence and Bashore have denied the charges. McCloskey could not be reached today.

Governor's Demand Refused.

Earle demanded that Margiotti submit all his evidence to Col. C. M. Wilhelm, deputy commissioner of the State Motor Police, with instructions to arrest anyone involved. Wilhelm was present at the conference to which capital correspondents had been asked also.

Margiotti refused. He said a grand jury investigation was the only orderly way to proceed.

"If you have confidence in me, trust me," Margiotti said to the Governor. "If you have no confidence in me, fire me."

The Governor said a grand jury investigation would be too slow—with the possibility it would not be completed before the primary.

Public Utility Commissioner Richard J. Beamish, who had been called in by Earle, agreed.

Margiotti left the conference shaking hands with the Governor and with Beamish, to go to his office and draw up a petition, asking the Dauphin County Court to convene a special grand jury.

Margiotti told a mass meeting at Butler:

"In 1935 legislation to regulate the distribution and sale of beer was introduced, providing that brewers must get cash for beer, and for a $900 license fee for distributers of out-of-State beer and $400 license for distributers of local beer.

"Certain brewers were interested in having the legislation passed. They wanted a monopoly.

"An attorney for these interests was told by McCloskey and David Lawrence that for $20,000 the legislation would be passed and they would be given what they wanted.

"The legislation passed in the form desired.

Tells of Payments.

"Then in June, 1935, at the direction of McCloskey and Lawrence, the attorney representing these interests met Ralph M. Bashore, secretary of the Democratic State Committee in the Adelphia Hotel in Philadelphia and paid him $10,[illegible]00 in cash.

"Later, this same attorney met Lawrence and paid him the balance in cash. These payments were made for the passage of the beer bills."

Margiotti said his investigators had determined beyond doubt that Gov. Earle had no knowledge of these transactions.

Margiotti commented that Lawrence had failed to answer his earlier assertions that Lawrence and McCloskey demanded that architects on the General State Authority's $65,000,000 institutional building program "kick back" half of their commissions, amounting to $1,200,000.

Ford Tells What He Thinks About the Country's Problems And What to Do About Them

First of Series of Articles in Which He Discusses Commodity Dollar, Unemployment and Production.

By JOHN BRADFORD MAIN.

(Copyright, 1938, by the Boston Evening American.)

BOSTON, April 27.—Henry Ford has given a message to the people of the United States which will appear in a series of articles in the Post-Dispatch, of which this is the first.

These articles are the result of an exclusive interview with Mr. Ford, during his recent visit to historic old Wayside Inn at Sudbury, Mass. There, at his ease, his long legs jack-knifed upon a convenient chair, his face Lincolnesque in the flickering light of the burning logs in the huge and ancient fireplace, Mr. Ford for more than five hours discussed with this reporter the problems and perplexities that confront people of this country today.

For the first time, Mr. Ford reveals for publication his own philosophy of living, his own beliefs as to what is happening and will happen to America, his own answers to the problem of unemployment.

In that conversation in Wayside Inn, rain dripping from the eaves, all snug and warm within and surrounded everywhere by reminders of the sturdy Americanism that was colonial New England, Mr. Ford touched more or less on every conceivable subject.

He did not say, "This is what I will tell the President." He did say, "This is what I think; these are the things that I believe; these are my answers to the questions, the problems, the perplexities confronting America."

And he made it clear that he intended to tell the President exactly what he thinks.

"There were some questions you asked yesterday," said Mr. Ford, leading the way into the Inn. "I liked them. I want to answer them. There's some other things I want to say."

Commodity Dollar.

"I said something yesterday about making wheat, instead of gold, the basis for the dollar. I want to clarify that, if I can," he said.

"You mean you want a 'commodity dollar,' Mr. Ford?" the reporter asked.

"I believe in it," said Mr. Ford, decisively. "I've talked about it before—perhaps that's why you fellows sort of ignored it yesterday. You want 'news'—always something that's new. But sometimes it takes a little time for an idea to trickle through.

"I've had my statisticians look up the records for the past 60 years. Over that period, come good times and bad, they tell me, wheat has average $1.06.

"Mind you now, there's been times when wheat has been low, and there have been times when wheat has been high—during the war, for example, when it sold for $2 or more. But by and large, that's been the average—$1.06.

"And that's been our measure, too, of national prosperity.

"Dollar wheat always has been synonymous with prosperity. Dollar wheat always has meant prosperity to the farmer, and when the farmer has prospered the rest of the country has prospered likewise.

"Now we have gold—gold is our 'standard'—and what have we done with it? We dig it up in the West, in Alaska, in Australia, in Africa, or wherever we find it—and we bury it again in an underground vault in Kentucky.

"Is it a true measure of value of any kind? Is it a true measure or standard of production?

Money and Prosperity.

"Young man, believe me, money —gold—in itself is nothing. Money, in itself, is not prosperity. All the money in the world will not bring prosperity."

"Then you are opposed to the President's 'pump-priming' program?"

"Don't put words into my mouth," was Mr. Ford's quick reply. "I told you yesterday, I'm not going to Washington 'opposed' to anything. I'm not going to Washington to give any advice.

"What I'm saying, simply is this: You're putting the cart before the horse. People have a misconception of what money is.

"Money—oh, how I wish this might be made clear to everyone!—money is merely a token of something that has been done. Money—just money—is valueless, loses its value, unless it does truly represent that 'something done.' It must represent production—something that has been accomplished. If money doesn't represent that, then its value goes down and down and down.

Money and Our Standard.

"That's why, as everyone knows, 'printing press' money isn't any good. If the Gvernment were just to go ahead and print a lot of money, you know what would happen. People would simply say it wasn't any good.

"Why? Well, perhaps they wouldn't just exactly know, but they'd know it wasn't.

CZECHOSLOVAKIAN NEW NAZI DISTRICT LEADER

Later, His Province Is Likely to Be Region of Sudeten Germans.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, April 27.—The press announced today that Hans Krebs, formerly of Iglau, Czechoslovakia, had received the rank of gauleiter, or district leader.

This is a rank similar to that held by Julius Streicher for Franconia, Joseph Buerckel for the Saar and now, temporarily, for Austria, and Erich Koch for East Prussia.

No gau, or province, was given to Krebs to administer.

The general deduction is that his job is one that does not exist at the moment, but will soon present itself—that of gauleiter for the Sudetic German region.

Krebs, who was 50 years old yes-
Krebs, who was 50 yearse old yesterday, was a deputy in the Czechoslovakian Parliament from 1925 until October, 1933, when he resigned his seat after having been in jail for four months for alleged subversive activity.

A German official of Cabinet rank told the Associated Press today that anschluss (union) of Czechoslovakia's Sudeten Germans with Germany "is inevitable and the only question is whether it can be done without shedding blood."

"Before long the Sudeten Germans will raise a demand for union with Germany," this official said.

He said one of the chief concerns of German diplomacy was how to make France understand it would be violating no agreement if it declined to go to Czechoslovakia's aid at that time. He said:

"If the French can be made to understand that peace in Europe can and will be safeguarded, if only they will understand that people of the same blood and language have the right to form one Reich, another great step forward toward the pacification of Europe will have been taken."

CHAMBERLAIN AIDS TO ENTER ENGLISH ELECTION CAMPAIGN

Rule Rescinded to Permit Speeches as Result of Recent Victory of Laborite.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 27.—It was announced today at 10 Downing street, the Prime Minister's official residence, that a six-year-old rule against active ministerial participation in by-election campaigns had been rescinded. The reason given was that Laborite ex-Ministers have been speaking for Labor candidates, but the real reason was the Government's loss of the West Fulham election April 7 to a woman Laborite who campaigned against Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's foreign policy and the approach of the Lichfield by-election May 5.

The National Labor (Government) party won in Lichfield in the last general election, but since then the district has acquired 10,000 new voters, and Laborites are hopeful of making capital of budget tax increases, especially that on tea.

The Downing street announcement said Chamberlain and other Ministers, such as Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, who have "special responsibilities," would continue to refrain from by-election speeches, but junior Ministers would present the Government's arguments.

21 KILLED IN RIOTS IN INDIA

Hundred Wounded in Week and 2171 Arrested.

BOMBAY, India, April 27.—twenty-one persons have been killed in Hindu-Moslem rioting in the last week. An official report said 100 were wounded and 2171 arrested. It said the situation was under control.

Ten died when police of the State of Mysore fired into a crowd which insisted on hoisting the flag of the Indian Congress at a meeting in Biduraswathan. A court had forbidden raising the flag.

U. S. URGED TO BUY WARTIME RESERVE OF NINE MINERALS

Bureau of Mines Director Tells Zinc Institute Lack of Domestic Supply Is Major Weakness.

Inadequate domestic supplies of nine important minerals—tin, manganese, chromium, aluminum, tungsten, nickel, mercury, antimony and mica—are "major weaknesses in the national deefnse," Dr. John W. Finch, director of the United States Bureau of Mines, said in an address yesterday before the American Zinc Institute, in convention at Hotel Statler.

As a remedy he suggested that the Government buy stock piles of the strategic minerals, creating reservoirs from which industry could draw in time of war. The cost of securing adequate supplies would be little more, he estimated, than the cost of a modern battleship. The last United States battleship to be built cost $27,000,000.

Reviewing developments since the World War, Finch said the nation had found new sources for several minerals and was no longer dependent on foreign supplies as far as they were concerned.

Our dependence on Chile for nitrates is no longer vital, he said, because a substantial part of our need for the material is filled by a synthetic product made from the air. Our production of pyrite has made us independent of Spanish sources, he said.

Other minerals in which the country has achieved virtual self-sufficiency are potash, molybdenum, vanadium and sulphur, Dr. Finch said.

Minerals Still Lacking.

But Europe and Malaya continue to supply our tin, and two-thirds of our aluminum is derived from South American ore, and we must depend on other countries for virtually all of the nickel we use, 60 per cent of the tungsten, 40 per cent of the mercury, and large portions of manganese, chromium, antimony and mica, he said.

The Bureau of Mines, the director continued, is seeking to promote further national independence by discovering new ways of producing manganese, chromium, antimony, aluminum, nickel and tungsten. He told of an electrolytic process of recovering manganese from iron ores, and said processes for making chromium from domestic chromites and antimony from domestic refractory ores were under development. Use of alunite in the manufacture of aluminum, recovery of nickel from complex native ores and the concentration of scheelite for tungsten production also were the subjects of experiments, he related.

Outlines Buying Program.

Turning to the program of creating mineral reserves, Dr. Finch recommended an annual Federal appropriation of $500,000 for study by the Bureau of Mines and the Geological Survey of methods of solving the deficient mineral problem permanently.

ALASKAN NATIVES GIVE CLEW TO MISSING RUSSIAN FLYERS

Army Radio Operator Sends Report That They Saw Crash of Large Object in Sea.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—From natives of an isolated Northern Alaska village came reports today indicating the Russian flyer, Sigismund Levanevsky, and five companions may have crashed into the sea on their Moscow-California flight last August.

An army radio operator at Point Barrow, Master Sergeant Stanley Morgan, reported to the War Department that three Eskimos at Oliktuk, 140 miles southeast of Point Barrow, said they saw "a large object," apparently a plane, disappear beneath the waves.

The Soviet Embassy immediately asked the army for full information, and expressed hope a search would be pressed.

Morgan's message said the Oliktuk natives reported finding oil on the water where the "large object" disappeared. A week later, he said, a white trader, Jack Smith, also noticed oil on the water and made an investigation.

JEWS IN GERMANY ORDERED TO REGISTER POSSESSIONS

Exemption Granted Under Goering Decree If Property Is Worth Less Than $2000.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, April 27.—German Jews must register and evaluate their entire German and foreign possessions, provided the possessions have a value of more than 5000 marks ($2000). Under a decree issued today by Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, director of Germany's four-year plan to attain economic independence.

Possessions worth less than 5000 marks are exempted. Foreign Jews living in Germany must register their German possessions.

The decree provides that sale or rent of Jewish business undertakings, farms or forest preserves must be reported to authorities. Establishment of new Jewish businesses or even branch offices must be approved by authorities.

GREAT BRITAIN AND POLAND SIGN NAVAL AGREEMENT

Limitations on Individual Ships and Exchange of Construction Information Provided.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 27.—Great Britain and Poland today signed a naval agreement along the lines of the 1936 Naval Treaty of London, providing limitations for individual warships and the exchange of naval building information.

The British Government will publish the agreement shortly as a White Paper.

This is the third bilateral naval pact concluded by Britain. The others are with Germany and Soviet Russia. Informed sources say similar agreements will be concluded shortly by Britain with the Scandinavian Power and probably with Turkey.

The United States, Britain and France are signatories of the 1936 London treaty. The first two recently announced their intention to abandon the 35,000-ton limit on battleships.

ST. LOUISANS, INC., TO COMBAT UNFAIR CRITICISM OF BUSINESS

Organization to Conduct Information Campaign As to Capital and Government.

St. Louisans, Inc., formed last year by business men to promote the city's industrial growth, will undertake a "straight-from-the-shoulder" campaign of public information to combat untruthful criticism of the American business and governmental system, Arnold G. Stifel said yesterday at an Advertising Club luncheon at Hotel Statler.

Stifel, president of Stifel, Nicolaus & Co. and a member of the executive committee of St. Louisans, Inc., spoke of capitalism, "as represented by the huge shoe manufacturing investment in St. Louis," as "a vital factor in every home in the area."

"St. Louisans, Inc., believes that management in St. Louis is far-sighted, prudently conservative, social minded, and that it assumes its public obligations to the extent that it provides employment to 386,000 persons; that it staggered employment during the bad years; that it provides the best municipal entertainment in the country; that it provides recreational activities in many of its industrial plants; that to the greatest degree possible it provides hospitalization and medical service for its workers; that it provides pension plans and profit-sharing plans to an increasing degree, and that by reason of prudent management St. Louis suffered less acutely from the depression than virtually any other city in the United States."

MERCHANT MARINE EXPANSION PROGRAM PLANNED IN FRANCE

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 27.—Louis de Chappedelaine, Minister of Merchant Marine, announced today he was planning a three-year merchant marine construction program to augment French coastal defenses in wartime.

The plan, which would embody reconstruction of the fishing fleet, contemplates building fast boats suitable for use as patrol ships.

News of the program was made public after conferences at the Merchant Marine Ministry between Chappedelaine and members of the boat building unions.

WOMEN VOTERS' HEAD UP FOR RE-ELECTION

Miss Marguerite Wells on List of Nominating Committee —Today's Program.

Miss Marguerite M. Wells of Minneapolis was nominated to succeed herself as president of the National League of Women Voters today as the thirteenth convention of the league swung into its second day of sessions at Hotel Jefferson.

The nominating committee, reporting at the morning session, recommended also re-election of Mrs. Harris T. Baldwin of Washington as first vice-president; Mrs. Paul Eliel, Stanford University, Cal., as secretary, and Mrs. La Rue Brown, Boston, Mass., as one of four directors.

For second vice-president Mrs. Donald Hutchinson, New York, was nominated to succeed Miss Anna Lord Strauss, New York, who is retiring. Mrs. Walter Fisher, Winnetka, Ill., was named for treasurer to take the place of Mrs. Robert Taft of Cleveland, resigned.

St. Louisan On List.

Mrs. George Gellhorn of St. Louis, Mrs. Ruric N. Smith, Tulsa, Ok., and Mrs. Elliott Corbett, Portland, Ore., were nominated for the other three places on the board of directors, succeeding Mrs. O. Shepard Barnum, Pasadena, Cal.; Mrs. Florence Fifer Bohrer, Bloomington, Ill., and Mrs. Augustus M. Roan, Atlanta, Ga.

Mrs. Gellhorn has been chairman of the league's special campaign in behalf of qualified personnel in public service and has been a leader in league affairs since it was founded in 1920.

The election will be held all day tomorrow, with two voting machines, of the type adopted by many cities, in use. About 400 women from all parts of the country are attending the sessions. The principal speakers however are, almost without exception, men.

Guests From Capital.

Three women who occupy major Government posts at Washington attended today's sessions as honor guests. They were Miss Katharine Lenroot, chief of the Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor; Miss Mary Anderson, chief of the Women's Bureau, Department of Labor, and Mrs. Ruth Shipley, chief of the Passport Division, State Department. They will not participate in the program, but will have special places at the league banquet tonight.

Today's session included the second of three "Behind the Issues" symposia, dealing with the scope of

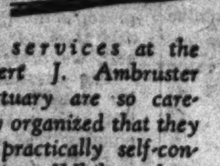
Kindness to the Living



The services at the Robert J. Ambruster Mortuary are so carefully organized that they are practically self-conducting. While nothing escapes the vigilant eyes of the director, there is no directorship to be discerned.

This accounts in great part for the esteem in which this Mortuary is held. The tranquillity of the family is all important. Hence the quiet orderliness of the services.

ALL your life you have been thoughtful of those near you. The giving of gifts, the enhancement of happiness, the surrounding with comforts—nothing has been denied those who love you.

But comes the time when you must leave them. You have made provision for this and that. You have left directions that your funeral shall be paid first, and then follow your benefactions. You are content that all you could do is now done.

But this is really not quite so. You are leaving your bereaved ones the complications attending your funeral. And by no means are these dear ones, unsettled by grief, capable of their usual good judgment. Over-expenditures occur only too frequently.

THE ROBERT J. AMBRUSTER
PREARRANGED FUNERAL PLAN

By this all confusion and perplexity are obviated. In the vigor of health you arrange for your funeral in advance. You select the casket and type of vault. You decide on the various details and procedure of the services. The amount you feel justified is agreed upon.

Simple as this transaction may appear as you read along, it entirely alters the situation for those who must otherwise attend to it in the midst of extremely distressing circumstances. This final expression of your thoughtfulness in definitely providing for your funeral will always accompany the tender memories of your kindness.

An interview is invited. Call CAbany 2522 for appointment.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

He Admires Stalin.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

MY nomination for the greatest man in the world today is none other than Stalin of Russia.

Almost everybody mentions Stalin in the same breath with Hitler or Mussolini. I think it is an injustice and an insult to Stalin.

My reasons are as follows: I have never as yet read that Stalin is envious of some other nation's territory or possessions. Nor have I ever heard that he blabs about what wonders he will accomplish and how great a guy he is. But all of the above is true of Hitler and Mussolini. Both are always garbed in splendid uniforms while Stalin dons the garb of the average man in his country.

There is no question that Russia today is one of the richest countries on the face of the globe, where unemployment is practically unheard of, where the poor can get the same medical treatment as the next one, where the streets, subways, hotels and buildings are as modern as anywhere else. Not many will admit it, but Russia's five-year plans really show results.

Certainly Russia is a militaristic nation; anyone can see that it would be suicide for Russia not to be armed to the teeth.

I guess some of your readers will ask why, if I think so much of Russia and Stalin, I don't go there. Well, for the same reason that I don't own a Rolls-Royce. I can't afford to. I would if I could.

"DOHOKCINDAYA."

Those Barcelona Photographs.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

CAN'T you just imagine how proud our brave Government officials must feel when their little children gaze at the reproductions of scenes in Barcelona as depicted in Sunday's Post-Dispatch?

They probably say, "Yes, sonny, that's the way the dictators do in Europe, but it can't happen to you here in this land of the free and home of the brave." And then they turn the page.

I wonder if they think: "We could stop these horrible atrocities by lifting the embargo on sorely needed materials and granting American citizens the right as brave and free men to assist these sorely-pressed seekers after democracy."

But perhaps it would not be profitable.

A Relief Client's Experience.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I HAVE been a relief client since 1932 and wish to lay some facts and figures before the public. I speak as the breadwinner of the family, having a wife and one child as dependents.

I have had four major operations, the second forcing me out of private industry and the last two out of W P A jobs. We had to go back on direct relief again in January of this year. Consider these figures, with reference to warding off starvation and keeping from being a dead-beat: We received five grocery orders, totaling $59.14 for 118 days, or an average of 50 cents per day. We owe a three-month gas bill, $4.65, and also a three-month electric bill, $5.10. We received two tons of coal for three months. No clothing and rent have been included.

I am denied the chance to work, because I am unable to walk very far and they can't furnish carfare.

EX-WPA WORKER.

Plea for a New High School.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE city school building program, as outlined in the Post-Dispatch of April 17 by Arthur A. Blumeyer, will undoubtedly receive the approval of the majority of St. Louis citizens.

I note, however, that Mr. Blumeyer believes no new high school is necessary. I think investigation will prove that a high school is very necessary in northwest St. Louis. There are families in this district (west of Union and north of Bircher) who find it difficult to supply carfare for their children so that they may attend high school.

This district is crowded with children of high school age, and I believe it is only fair to them and their parents that plans for a new high school are included in the building program.

As to Pay in the Orchestra.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I WAS not a little amazed to read of the recent peculiar "new deal" in the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, whereby the members of the orchestra, for reasons of economy, "accepted" a 5 per cent salary cut, while Mr. Golschmann received a raise from $28,000 to $30,000 a year.

According to the published figures, the 5 per cent cut yields about $8000, of which one-fourth goes to pay Mr. Golschmann's $2000 raise. The conductor should feel deeply moved by the generosity of his orchestra members.

Inasmuch as the Symphony Orchestra is a semi-public activity, I feel justified in protesting against what I consider to be a grossly unfair allocation of any necessary economies.

REAPPORTIONMENT—A NATIONAL PROBLEM.

Not St. Louis alone, but practically all the larger cities of the United States, suffer from under-representation in the state legislatures. Writing in the National Municipal Review, Dr. David O. Walter of the Department of Political Science of the University of Illinois shows that several cities, notably those in the South, suffer from an even more severe discrimination than is the case with St. Louis.

The following table shows the disparity of representation, as compared with population, for six representative metropolitan districts over the country:

	Per Cent of State's Population.	Per Cent of Representation. Senate.	House.
St. Louis	28.6	20.6	14.7
Chicago	54	41.2	41.2
Baltimore	58.2	27.6	38.3
Birmingham	14.5	2.9	4.7
Los Angeles	40.8	5.0	40.0
New York	62.3	54.9	46.7

Although not as pronounced as in some other cities, legislative under-representation in St. Louis is bad enough to offend several generally accepted principles of democratic government. In practical effect, a citizen of St. Louis has only half as much voice in determining issues in the lower house and only two-thirds as much voice in deciding issues in the upper house of the Legislature as the average citizen residing elsewhere in the State.

The Missouri Constitution does not contemplate that representation in the House shall be strictly in proportion to population. Each county, however small, has a Representative. But the Constitution does say that representation in the Senate shall be according to population. It provides that the Legislature shall reapportion membership in the Senate after each decennial census, but the Legislature has steadfastly disregarded this provision since 1901.

Just such a contingency was foreseen and provided against by the framers of the State Constitution. If the Legislature failed to reapportion the Senate after a Federal census, it was to become the duty of the Governor, the Attorney-General and the Secretary of State to make the reapportionment. But the State Supreme Court, usually dividing on straight party lines, has held repeatedly that this wise provision of the Constitution was repealed with the adoption of the initiative and referendum amendment in 1908. A proposed amendment to overrule these decisions was rejected by the voters in 1924.

In Chicago, an even more determined effort to obtain legislative reapportionment has proved equally futile. The issue was dramatized two years ago, when a leading champion of reapportionment, arguing in a Chicago court that the Legislature was invalidly constituted because of disregard of the redistricting law, shot and killed the opposing counsel and shot at the Judge. Even this did not bring action. Chicago is still badly under-represented.

After surveying the reapportionment problem on a nation-wide scale, Dr. Walter concludes that:

> The legislature is not a reliable agent for the passage of reapportionment statutes which change the balance of power within its own membership. A change of method is necessary so that there may be at least a guarantee of some legislative action, enforced by the possibility of popular initiative or apportionment by an administrative body in case the legislature fails to act.

This conclusion is amply confirmed by the experience of Missouri, for even if it is conceded that some provision is needed to keep the rural sections from being overshadowed in strength by the cities, this protection can be given without discriminating against the cities in both legislative chambers. As is the case with the national Congress, the representation in at least one chamber should be so apportioned that a vote is of the same weight regardless of the locality or type of constituency in which it is cast.

The framing of a provision to insure the fair apportionment of legislative representation is something which the citizens of Missouri should bear in mind in connection with the approaching referendum on a convention to revise the Constitution.

MR. NOYES RETIRES.

The retirement of Frank B. Noyes, publisher of the Washington Evening Star, from the presidency of the Associated Press, comes as a reminder of the nation's debt to the development of reliable, unbiased news reporting. The late Melville E. Stone conceived the idea of such a fact-gathering agency to be operated as a co-operative, non-profit making service. Under the presidency of Mr. Noyes from 1901—the year of McKinley's assassination and Marconi's first signal from England to Newfoundland—the Associated Press has remained true to that ideal of disinterested, honest reporting. Expansions and extensions, both geographical and technical, which the pioneers of the early years could not possibly have foreseen, have come in this third of a century span. Great news events—the worst war in history, the years of economic floundering and now of war again—have put the business of gathering the news to the full test. Mr. Noyes has headed with distinction an important institution in a most important period of history.

ALBANIA'S WEDDING BELLS.

Wedding bells pealed merrily across Albania yesterday as 150 couples were joined in the bonds, by way of romantic and loyal gesture to the marriage today of King Zog and the American-Hungarian Countess, Geraldine Apponyi.

The King is a Moslem, the Countess a Catholic. East and West. The twain that Kipling told us never could meet have, of course, clangingly met on shaken earth and crimsoned sea. They met at the gates of the Countess' own Vienna as Italian genius was faintly lighting the somber skies of the Dark Ages. They met a century later in the Gulf of Lepanto, when Austria in the gay personage of Don John answered the Pope's agonizing appeal while

The cold Queen of England was looking in the glass,

They are meeting again today, in the happy auspices of nuptials, in the splendor of ancient oriental ceremony, in the high presence of courtly assemblage, with gifts of royal friendship from many lands.

But eyes look covetously on little, unchanging Albania. Writing in the New York Times, Anne O'Hare McCormick, who knows Europe of yesterday and today, speculates thus uneasily on tomorrow. "To Italy, Albania is more important today than Portugal, reinforcing Gibraltar at the Western gates of the Mediterranean, is to Great Britain. As Germany moves south, Yugoslavia is more important than Spain. . . . (and) Albania becomes a link between Italy and Yugoslavia instead of a bone of contention as in the past. The countries on both sides of the Adriatic have a common fear of German expansion."

The postage-stamp country, with its Mohammedan court and archaic customs, may lie athwart the path of aggressive destiny. Among the wedding presents is a Mercedes-Benz automobile from Adolf Hitler. Will Zog and Geraldine roar across the impossible Balkan roads in that car some trembling night to a waiting plane? Grim sentiments for a hymeneal hour, but history wields a sardonic pen.

BRITAIN'S NEW TAX BURDEN.

Of greater interest to most Englishmen than any declaration of foreign policy was the annual budget speech delivered yesterday by Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer. The two topics have a close relationship, however, for Britain's growing tax burden is attributable in great part to the colossal rearmament program now under way as a result of the unsettled world situation.

To help meet the need for more revenue, the Government has increased the income tax from a base rate of 25 per cent to 27½ per cent, the highest peacetime level in British history, and has raised the levies on tea and on oil. The income tax increase will fall chiefly upon the great middle class and those whose incomes are derived from investments. Exemptions are granted that relieve some 2,000,000 taxpayers with small incomes from the added 2½ per cent. At the other end of the scale, a concession is made to big industries which permits them to deduct 20 per cent instead of 10 per cent as formerly for depreciation. This wipes out the 2½ per cent increase, Sir John explained.

Despite its huge outlays, the British Government has not resorted to deficit financing. Last year's budget, in fact, showed a surplus of 29,000,000 pounds, made possible by the fact that the Government borrowed 65,000,000 pounds toward its arms program. Expenditure of 1,500,000,000 pounds in five years for this purpose has been authorized, but it is now indicated that the cost will be nearer two billion pounds. Drastic as is the present tax program, the real pinch will not come until next year and possibly the year after.

Britain's tremendous tax program brings home again the ruinous cost of the arms race in which the world is engaged. It lends special point to the Chancellor's statement: "Nothing could contribute so much to the ultimate reduction of the burden of taxation as an increase in international good will and reduction of armaments."

The taxpayers of all the world, bowed down by their share of the arms debt, fervently hope for those blessings.

A CODE FOR THE AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY.

The codes of fair competition of N R A days had great potential value, had they not been surrounded by bureaucratic restrictions and a plethora of impossible details. The Federal Trade Commission, which had long worked toward a similar end, is continuing its activities under far more favorable conditions than the N R A ever enjoyed. Just now, it is occupied with co-operating in drafting standards for the automobile industry, and seven provisions of a fair trade code have been approved at a meeting of 400 representatives of motor interests.

The provisions are in keeping with the accepted principles of business honesty. They would outlaw misrepresentation in advertising, guarantees and statements about the age or mileage of used cars; defamation of competitors; misleading price quotations; tampering with speedometers; espionage on competitors. The end of such practices would be a protection both to the public and to the honest dealers who, of course, comprise the great majority. The F T C plan does not operate by means of compulsion, but primarily by industrial self-policing, with use of the courts only as a last resort.

Similar codes have been prepared or are being drafted for other fields of business. Their universal adoption will create an increase in confidence between consumer and seller.

DILEMMA AT PRAHA.

Konrad Henlein's demand for self-government for the 3,500,000 Germans living in Czechoslovakia confronts that country with a dilemma of grave proportions as it prepares for communal elections.

The Czechs realize that their Republic occupies a perilous position, lying as it does across the path of Adolf Hitler's avowed ambitions for expansion toward the East. Their present policy is one of persistent efforts toward conciliation. By every means, they seek to avoid giving any offense that may serve as a pretext for demands from Germany or for actual intervention.

If the Czechs give in to the present demands of their domestic Nazis, however, they surrender a part of their democratic country to dictatorial rule, and give Hitler a new territorial outpost. If they refuse, they give Henlein an excuse for fresh trouble-making and a possible armed uprising. Compromise will doubtless be sought, but the statesmen at Praha must be wondering today what sort of compromise will be acceptable to the audacious Sudeten leader, confident in the plain-spoken support of Greater Germany across the border.

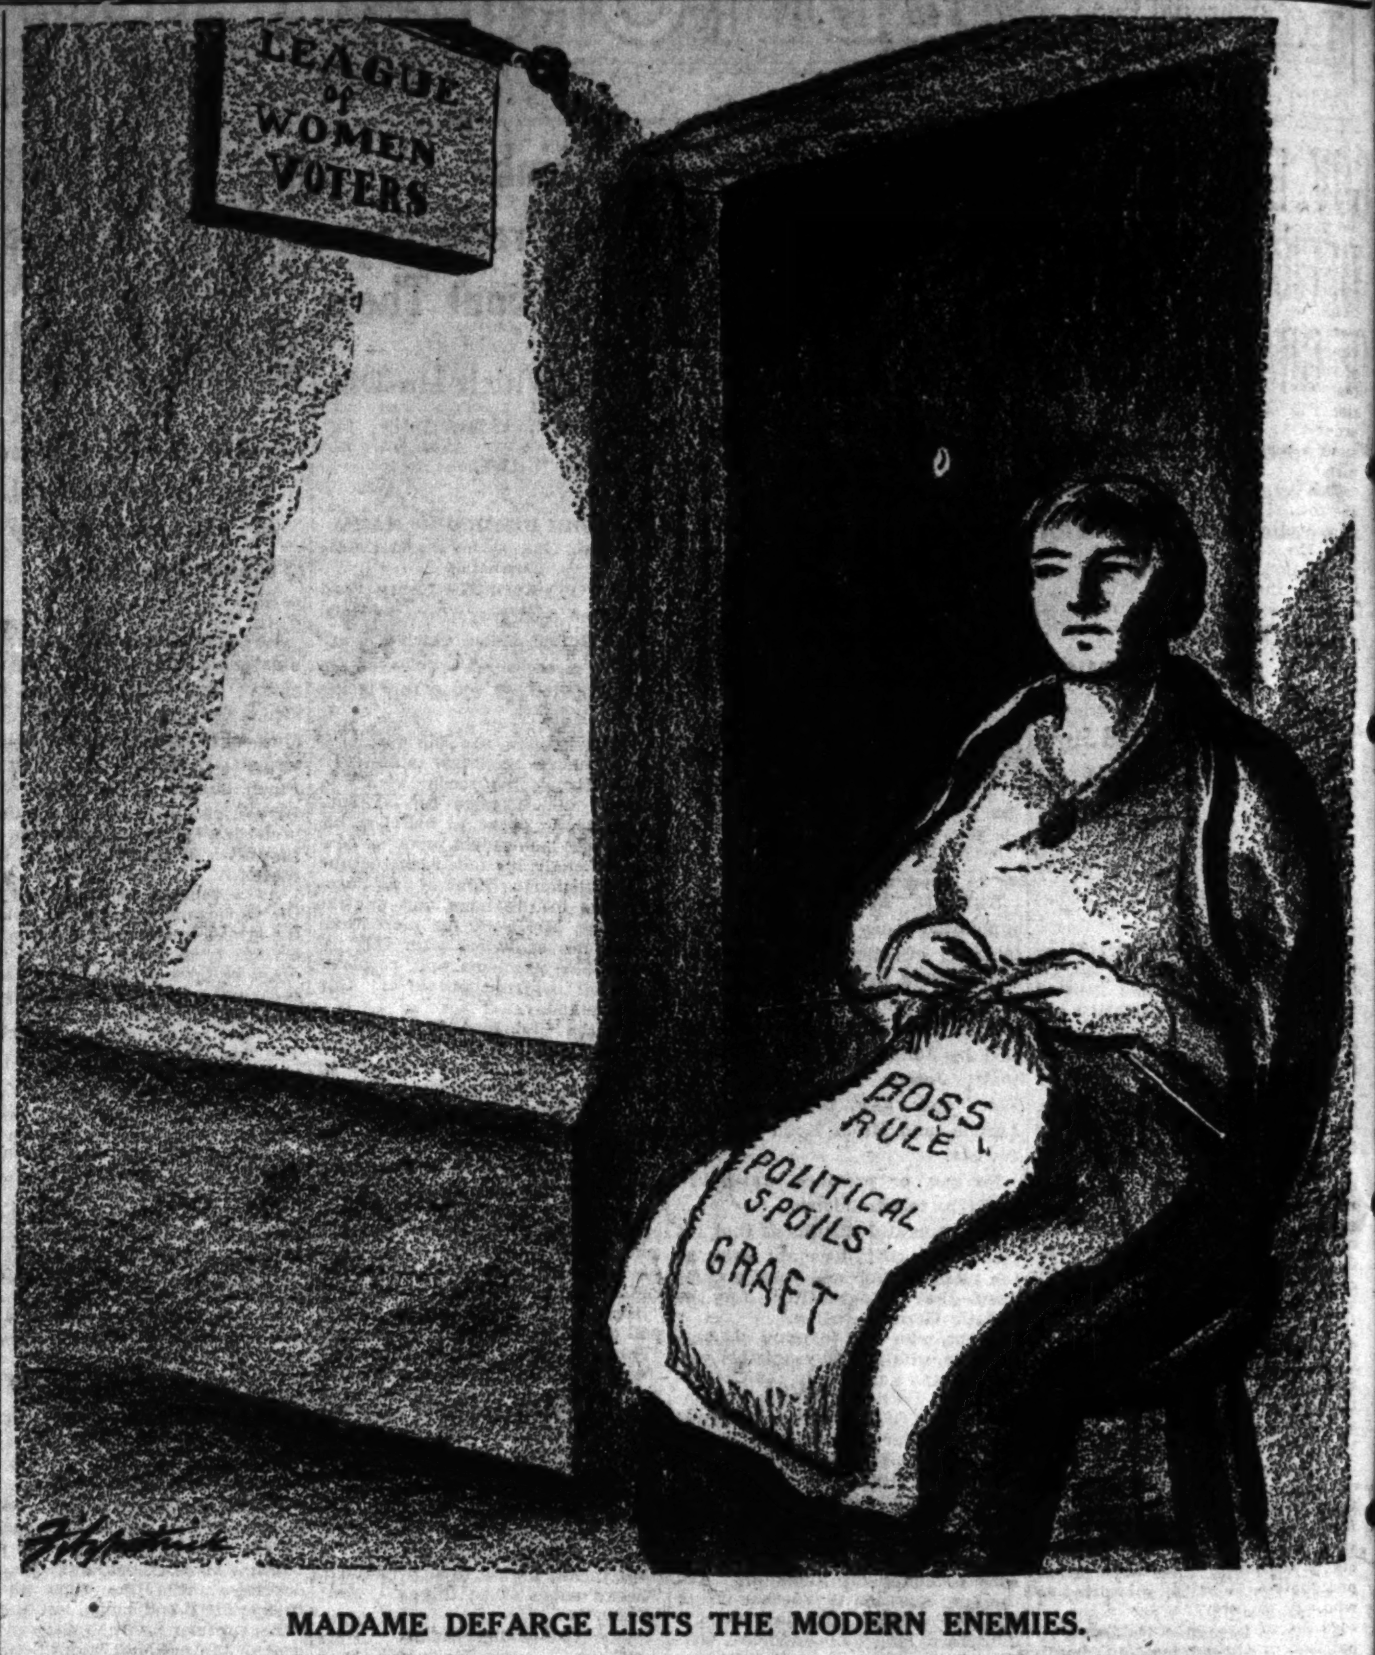
CHICAGO'S COUNTY CHAIRMAN.

The Democrats of Cook County, Ill., met in convention Monday afternoon and elected Patrick A. Nash chairman of the County Committee without a dissenting vote. That is, of course, the perfect score. It is completeness, factual and symbolical, which neither Hitler nor Mussolini has achieved. Mr. Nash is understandably pleased.

Following the debacle of April 12, when the Kelly-Nash partnership was routed on virtually all the primary fronts, this testimonial from the home bailiwick may seem a vindication. As an intangible, it cannot dangle ornately like that decoration recently suspended from a gold chain on the chest of Tom Pendergast. Mr. Nash is not yet a Knight Commander of the Order of the Crown of Italy, but a County Chairmanship is a position of authority as gratifying, one fancies, as any jeweled bauble.

We learn from Chicago that Mr. Nash debated whether to stand for re-election to this organization office. He concluded finally to put fortune to the test, not because of a surging sentiment beseeching him to carry on, but because "a few people seemed anxious for him to retire."

Politicians often thrust aside personal inclinations and return to the firing line in compliance with the demands of their friends. Mr. Nash chose to disappoint his enemies. Either emotion is as valid an alibi as the other.



MADAME DEFARGE LISTS THE MODERN ENEMIES.

World Trade—Lifeblood of America

Refusal to exchange goods with other nations threatens regimentation "from one end of the economic structure to the other," says industrial leader; cites farmers' acceptance of crop control as example of how tariffs tend to throttle free enterprise; sees reciprocal trade pacts as bulwark to world peace and democratic institutions.

WHAT is foreign trade—WHY and HOW?

It seems to me the peoples of the world are concerned primarily with happiness; with getting the most out of their daily lives.

But foreign trade does more than simply advance the standard of living. To an important degree, it promotes the other essential attributes of human happiness—peace and security.

I say this because it seems clear to me that political disturbances within any country or political differences between countries, resulting too frequently in armed conflict, develop primarily through the urge of economic necessity, such as a protest against an unjustifiably low standard of living or a demand for a broader opportunity to capitalize the resources of the nation and the ambitions of its people.

• • •

If this be true, the more we stimulate industry within each country by co-operating with other countries through foreign trade, the less becomes the urge for conflict and the greater becomes the probability of peace and security.

Many do not fully appreciate the fundamentals of world trade. To travel in a foreign land—or to purchase from a foreign country—is a relatively simple procedure. Every such transaction, however, involves a vital fundamental. The transfer of money through the medium of exchange is merely a symbol. What actually must and does take place, somewhere and at some time, is an exchange of goods and (or) services. To sell, we must buy.

The elimination or reduction of our ability to sell overseas means the loss of just that much wealth, or income. The purchasing power of all communities involved is reduced. They are able to consume less of the products of our land, our mines and of our factories, therefore less is produced; the whole tempo of our national life slows down; employment is reduced and prosperity is affected adversely.

I am satisfied that, looking at this problem from even the most selfish standpoint, we cannot adequately capitalize the resources of our great country and obtain what our people are entitled to if we assume a position of isolation. Also, such a policy involves adjustments of our national economy—appalling to contemplate.

We can do far better for ourselves, according to my beliefs, by recognizing that we are a part of the world, in fact, and a vital factor in its economy.

That is WHY foreign trade, as I see it.

• • •

Now a question of policy arises. Should we readjust our national economy to a minimum of essential outside purchases by limiting our ability to sell because we are unwilling to buy, or should we readjust our policy and permit the broadest possible equitable exchange with the other nations of the world—buy freely because we desire to sell freely?

Expressed otherwise, should our policy be one of isolation or one of international co-operation?

Up to the recent past, we have dealt with world trade as a political question.

We have permitted the interests of minority producers to overbalance the interest of the community as a whole. It might be argued that our country has grown both big and great under such a system; yet in a large measure that was because we are richly endowed with natural resources and have had broad frontiers to develop. Different circumstances now prevail.

For the first time in our history, there has been provided recently legislation permitting us to deal with this problem in a business way. We can now arrange for the freeing of world trade by lowering the barriers that have been erected, in return for the same consideration on the part of other peoples.

This more intelligent treatment is the result of the courage, aggressiveness and statesmanship of our Secretary of State, Cordell Hull, who, something like four years ago, approached the problem in the only way that it can be attacked intelligently.

As a result of the most-favored-nation treatment which our Government grants under this plan, new discriminations and additional restrictions that unquestionably would have been imposed upon us have been avoided to an important degree. Progress is being made.

That is HOW, acording to my belief.

• • •

A question arises: As we must sell in order to buy, is it possible that our buying might prejudice the economic strength of our domestic markets?

Whichever way we go, adjustments are essential. Sacrifices must be made. Again, whatever the policy may be, it should be firmly founded upon the principle that its validity, in the final analysis, depends upon its effects upon the economy as a whole.

There lies the real test! Under no circumstances should the results be to increase the standard of living of other peoples at the expense of our own people, or to reduce our level to that of others. Neither could be tolerated. Neither is necessary.

It seems to me that this question of foreign trade and its expansion is far more fundamental than might appear on the surface. For instance, unless agriculture can sell its surplus in overseas markets and is permitted to raise and sell its products on a businesslike basis, agricultural producers are bound to accept, in some form or another, the principle of governmental regimentation. And it is not inconceivable that this might spread to some other groups of producers as well.

A policy of isolation threatens the adoption of artificial means of control from one end of the economic structure to the other. There appears on the horizon the specter of an ever-expanding governmental bureaucracy and an ever-increasing overhead, reflecting itself in a continually increasing burden of taxation, thus prejudicing the efficiency of every phase of our productive system.

Thus my thinking leads me to the belief that the efforts of Secretary Hull to promote foreign trade mean more to us than merely the expansion of our industries and the creation of more wealth. They may well serve to protect our free and democratic institutions, and assure the continuation of individual enterprise—the American system, in other words.

"Never Say Die!"

From the Toronto Daily Star.

SIX weeks ago, Gen. Pershing, the only surviving Commander-in-Chief of a great Power in the World War, was supposed to be dying in Arizona with a rheumatic affection, uremic poisoning and heart trouble. The other day, at the age of 77, he attended the wedding of his son in New York. Never say die!

Six or seven years ago, the world's economic system was said to be in a hopeless condition. But it is with us still and, if war can be avoided, the system, with much-needed improvements, should continue for many more years. Never say die!

International law never looked as sick as it does today, and peace and justice appear only as illusions. But other black periods in the long history of human affairs have given place to brighter days, and so it may be again. Never say die!

Religion—faith in goodness and God—is not as prevalent as it used to be. Whole nations have turned away from the church and adopted materialistic conceptions of life. But that is not a new, but an oft-repeated, experience. The world has been plunged to much lower depths in other eras. In these times the peoples of the earth, generally speaking, have truer ethical standards than in any period of the past.

A handful of misguided despots are responsible for most of the evil tendencies we see at work. There is no occasion for despair. While there is life there is hope. A "what's-the-use?" attitude would be as culpable as superficial optimism.

SORRY, WISCONSIN.

From the Kansas City Journal-Post.

WISCONSIN is the latest State to complain of old-age pension pains. Let Missouri, which has had experience in this malady, take a sympathetic glance at Wisconsin's plight.

The population of Wisconsin is 3,000,000; of Missouri, 3,500,000.

Wisconsin is paying pensions to 40,000. The Missouri pension rolls contain 72,317 names, or around 50 per cent of the population over 70.

The cost of Wisconsin pensions is $9,600,000 a year; of Missouri's, $18,000,000.

A writer in the Milwaukee Journal says: "The Wisconsin pension list is jumping at the rate of 500 to 1000 newcomers a month, and the end is nowhere in sight."

Wisconsin must pardon Missouri's lack of sympathy. So far, she has undergone only the preliminary symptoms and is not fully broken out. There will be ample time in which to compare aches after Wisconsin's rate of increase has continued a few years.

PRODIGIES AND THEIR INCOMES.

From the New York Post.

THE moral of the Jackie Coogan suit is the need for changing the law which says that the earnings of a child under 21 belong to his parents. That is the old common law and that is the law in most states today, including California. It seems to us a particularly bad law in the movie-industry State, where there are many children earning big salaries. These earnings should be protected—even against parents.

The idea of protecting the income of children even against their parents is an ugly note. But it is an ugly note likely to arise where child stars earn fabulous sums. The most basic human relationships are apt to be distorted by money, especially when it comes in enormous gobs. Young Coogan's suit against his mother and his stepfather is the most shocking example of what Hollywood affluence can do.

TODAY and TOMORROW

By WALTER LIPPMANN

A Case for the Civil Liberties Union

LAST Thursday, newspaper men in Washington learned that the President had ordered the Treasury to let Senator Minton's committee inspect the income tax returns of individuals and corporations for 1936 and 1937. The order was actually issued two days previously but, curiously, at least three of the five members of the committee, Senators Schwellenbach, Frazier and Gibson, did not know the order had been issued until they were asked about it by newspaper men.

This is the committee of which the former Senator from Alabama, now Justice Black, was chairman. It is the committee which was set up in 1935 to investigate lobbying against the holding company bill and is now, with Mr. Minton as Mr. Black's successor, investigating the opposition to the reorganization bill. The Treasury order giving Mr. Minton the right to inspect income tax returns was signed by the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Magill, on Saturday, April 9. The reorganization bill was defeated in the House on the evening of Friday, April 8.

* * *

Under the power vested in Senator Minton, he may now put any taxpayer or any corporation on trial before his committee, he being the judge, the prosecutor and the jury. He may now make public the financial condition of any taxpayer who was opposed to the reorganization bill, and his victims have no protection. Senator Minton may attack anyone he chooses. He can destroy his reputation. There are no rules of evidence. There are not the ordinary legal safeguards which even the worst criminal enjoys.

Can there be any question that this is a lawless abuse of official authority, and that it is irreconcilable with any American conception of justice through law? In order to obtain revenue, the Government compels individuals and corporations to disclose the facts about their financial condition. Then, under an administrative ruling, this information is made available to a Senator engaged not in studying the tax laws, but in investigating something wholly unconnected with the raising of taxes.

The information concerns only a relatively small number of citizens. Of this small number, some must face the ordeal of having their private affairs published to the world; others will not be subjected to this punishment. The selection of those who are to be punished is the prerogative of a Senator engaged in a partisan campaign. He alone has the authority to decide who is to be punished and who is not to be punished.

There is no pretense that all citizens are to be treated alike, that every citizen must have his private affairs published. There is no pretense that all income taxpayers are to be treated alike. There is no pretense that all income taxpayers who might be charged with tax evasion or avoidance are to be treated alike.

Senator Minton is authorized by the President to embarrass, worry, terrorize and destroy those particular taxpayers who, Mr. Minton feels, had no right to oppose a bill sponsored by Senator Minton's party. If this is not to be described as arbitrary government and capricious tyranny, what is the accurate way to describe it?

* * *

To be sure, this same power to inspect income tax returns has been granted to other congressional committees. But I think I am right in saying that never before Mr. Roosevelt entered the White House have income tax returns been opened, except by special authority of Congress, to any committee concerned with anything but the tax laws themselves.

The law itself, Section 257 B of the Revenue Act of 1926, opens the returns to "the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives, the Committee on Finance of the Senate, a select committee of the House or Senate specially authorized to investigate returns by a resolution of the Senate or House, or a joint committee so authorized by concurrent resolution." The intent is clear, that returns should be open to committees that are legislating about taxes.

Until Mr. Roosevelt's time, it had never, I think, occurred to anyone that other committees not named in the law, committees not interested in taxes but in altogether different matters, should also have the right to delve into tax returns. Nor had it ever before occurred to anyone that the President had the power to say which committees of Congress might do this and which might not.

* * *

I do not know, not being a lawyer, whether any justification can be found in the letter of the law for the power which Mr. Roosevelt has conferred so quietly upon Mr. Minton. But surely it is contrary to the spirit of the revenue law or of any law that conforms with the American conception of civil rights.

Since the beginning, it has been a fundamental principle of the income tax law that the returns are confidential, it is, in fact, a prison offense under Federal law "to divulge or to make known in any manner whatever not provided by law" the financial facts disclosed in an income tax return.

Can it be argued that the law intended to give a committee like Senator Minton's the authority to divulge such information? It would be a strange law if it did. For Senator Minton is not investigating taxes, and it seems highly improbable that Congress ever meant to let income tax returns be disclosed by committees that are not studying taxes.

* * *

If Senator Minton and the members of his committee wish to act in the spirit of law, they will not accept this power on the extremely uncertain authority of the President. They will take the open and honest course, which is to ask Congress itself to say whether it means to give the committee this power. Let the matter be debated, and let us at least find out whether there exists a majority in favor of the grant of such inquisitorial powers.

The issue is an important one, for it turns upon a fundamental conception of civil liberty and of the limitation of official power by law. It is as fundamental a question of civil liberty as Mayor Hague's recent performances; the only difference, which ought not to be considered a difference at all, is that here the victims are to be rich men and in Jersey City they were members of the CIO.

In Jersey City, the Civil Liberties Union went into action. In this instance, it is the American Liberty League. If only the roles could be reversed, one would feel more certain about the future of liberty in this country. It would be exhilarating indeed to see the American Liberty League defending the rights of CIO against the lawlessness of Mayor Hague in Jersey City and to see the Civil Liberties Union leading the fight against the lawlessness of men like Black and Minton. I have a notion that if this happened, even once, both organizations would rise greatly in public esteem.

EPISCOPAL WOMEN TO GIVE VIEWS ON MARRIAGE, DIVORCE

Three-Year Referendum Decided on by Auxiliary—Survey to Be Reported in 1940.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 27.—Every woman communicant of the Episcopal Church in the United States is to be asked during the next three years what she thinks about marriage and divorce.

This problem was decided on by the Committee on Marriage and Divorce of the Executive Board of the Woman's Auxiliary of the church, in quarterly meeting yesterday.

Each of the nine members of the committee, headed by Mrs. Robert G. Happ of South Bend, Ind., was assigned to make a special study of one of such phases of the subject as: Legal and theological aspects; family standards; training for marriage as a carrer; economic backgrounds of marriage.

When these studies are completed and questions formulated, the committee will approach provincial officers of the auxiliary to ask that during the coming year they take the matter up with diocesan presidents. The succeeding year will be occupied by the diocesan presidents taking up the study with the parish branches of the auxiliary and submitting their reports. The complete survey will be presented to the general convention in 1940.

The Rev. Albert Mayer's Funeral.

LUCY STONE'S CAREER PORTRAYED IN PLAY

Scenes in Fight for Suffrage Presented at Women Voters' Convention.

Vivid scenes in the long fight for woman suffrage were portrayed before the National League of Women Voters' convention last night with presentation of two episodes from the life of Lucy Stone, nineteenth century pioneer of women's rights.

The scenes were from the chronicle play, "Lucy Stone," written by Mrs. Maud Wood Park of Portland, Me., first president of the league, who is attending the convention.

One of the scenes, titled "Mixed Audience," described how in 1847 Miss Stone refused to write a college graduation essay when the faculty and "ladies' board of managers" ruled that a man professor would have to read her paper. A public platform was no place for a woman, even in co-educational Oberlin College, the board ruled.

The second phase, "Taxation Without Representation," depicted the sale of her furniture at auction in 1858, because she had refused to pay her taxes on her Orange (N. J.) home when not allowed to vote.

Miss Stone, one of the first married women to continue use of her maiden name, was portrayed as a common sense, intelligent woman who managed to champion her cause in such a way as to insure the greatest amount of publicity. When Oberlin College refused to let her speak, she lectured under abolitionist sponsorship, with the stipulation that in every address against slavery she might speak also for women's rights.

The part of Lucy Stone in last night's presentation was played by Natalie Sacks and that of Antoinette Brown (later the Rev. Antoinette Brown Blackwell, first woman minister) by Martha Jensen. Others participating were Mary Ellen Wilfley, Edward Oresmans, Margaret Mooney, Mary Alice Hart, Robert Karnes and Harold Elbert. The director was Mary Jane Roach.

Play of Ten Episodes.

Mrs. Park's play, complete in 10 episodes, is based on the biography of Lucy Stone, by Miss Stone's daughter, Alice Stone Blackwell. Mrs. Park, herself a long-time campaigner for woman suffrage, was attracted to the cause when a senior at Radcliffe College in 1898, after hearing a speech by Miss Blackwell.

She was presented to last night's audience by her fellow suffrage worker of years ago, Miss Katharine Ludington of Old Lyme, Conn. president of the Connecticut League of Women Voters.

Mrs. Park, first president of the national league, referring to the Lucy Stone program, said, "Every present is engrossing to those living in it, but when the connection between present and past is concretely pointed out, interest in the past can be aroused to stimulate activity in the undertakings of the present."

An additional bit of interest was added to last night's program by the presence in the audience of a distant kinsman of Lucy Stone, Meyric R. Rogers, director of the Art Museum. He explained the relationship in this way: "Lucy Stone's husband, Henry Blackwell, was the first cousin of my grandmother."

Also in the audience were Anna Lord Strauss, president of the New York City league and a great-granddaughter of Lucretia Mott, one of the five women who called the first suffrage convention at Seneca Falls, N. Y., in 1848, and Miss Ruth Mitchell, president of the St. Cloud (Minn.) league and a great-niece of Jane Grey Swisshelm, and early campaigner for women's rights.

St. Louis Women in Cause.

Among St. Louis women who were campaigners in the suffrage cause and still active in the league are Mrs. George Gellhorn, Mrs. E. M. Grossman, Mrs. Henry Lodge, Mrs. Fred Taussig, Mrs. Willard Bartlett, Mrs. Ernest Stix, Mrs. Fred English, Mrs. Aaron Rauh, Mrs. Scott Porter, Mrs. Eugene Senseney and Mrs. E. H. Harford.

15 Group Dinner Meetings Held by Delegates.

Fifteen group dinner meetings were held by delegates to the League of Women Voters convention last night at Hotels Jefferson and Statler for discussion of various subjects relating to organization and activities.

Leaders of the discussions were: Mrs. Walter Neale, publicity chairman of the New York City League; Mrs. George G. Bogert, president of the Illinois League; Mrs. Carl L. Voss, president of the California League; Mrs. Louis Ottenberg, president of the District of Columbia Voteless League of Women Voters; Mrs. Harold A. Prince, president of the Nebraska League; Mrs. Charles Poletti, president of the New York League; Mrs. C. C. Shively, education chairman of the Ohio League; Mrs. Florence Fifer Bohrer, director of the National League; Mrs. Walter S. Greenough, national chairman, Government and Its Operation; Miss Ruth H. Mitchell, president of the Minnesota League; Mrs. Carl V. Stafford, organization chairman of the Tennessee League; Mrs. Ruric N. Smith, president of the Oklahoma League; Mrs. C. M. WOMEN VOTERS' LEAGUE HEAR DISCUSSIONS ABOUT GOVERNMENT

American government, with addresses by Alvin H. Hansen, professor of political economy at the Harvard University Graduate School of Public Administration, and Herbert Emmerich of Chicago, associate director of the Public Administration Clearing House.

An optimistic picture of the efficiency of the Federal Government was given by Hansen, who is president of the American Economics Association and in 1934-36 was chief economist of the Division of Trade Agreements of the State Department.

Defends Government Methods.

"As a people we are disposed to underrate rather than overrate the efficiency of the Government," he asserted. "We have been schooled to assume without question or argument, and too frequently without any knowledge of the situation, that everything which is done in Washington is in a hopeless mess.

"Let me say that this is definitely not the case. In such a vast enterprise it is of course not difficult to find cases of incompetence and ineptitude. But anyone who has come in contact with numerous departments and divisions, as I have, will, I think, in fairness have to admit that on the whole the standard of performance is high. The new trade agreements division in the State Department, which, in conjunction with the Tariff Commission and certain divisions in the Departments of Agriculture, Commerce and Treasury, is entrusted with the making of the reciprocal trade agreements, has performed its task on a high scientific plane and in a thoroughly competent manner."

Among other bodies which the speaker thought had functioned efficiently were the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, Federal Housing Administration, Farm Credit Administration, Reconstruction Finance Corporation, Public Works Administration and the Social Security Board. There are many competent university-trained men and women in the various departments and the universities, he said, were making real progress in helping to provide an adequate public service.

Workability the Real Test.

Earlier in his address Hansen outlined factors in the social, political and economic history of the country which have contributed to present-day problems. The essential structure of any economy was likely to continue to prevail so long as it functioned with reasonable efficiency, and the final test of its survival was its workability, he asserted. "For myself, however," he added, "I should say that the great changes taking place before our very eyes in all industrial countries are the product of serious shortcomings in the functioning of the modern economy."

Emmerich, speaking on "If We Equip Government," outlined reasons why the people place obstacles in the way of government, hindering it from doing the jobs expected of it. Some of these reasons were good, and some not so good, he said.

"There is a healthy skepticism whenever it is proposed that government enter new functions because of our jealousy of civil liberties," he continued. "The Bill of Rights is a very fundamental part of our democracy. Increasingly, however, people are coming to believe that economic security is an essential of democratic liberties, and as we add to our conception of the Bill of Rights we will require improvement of our social services. Too often, too, government has failed to supply good administration in the past, and we are skeptical of its ability to handle new problems."

Difficulties of Government.

The speaker listed some of the obstacles to proper equipping of the government. One of them, he said, was fear on the part of many that a strong government might become a tyranny. Others, he continued, were lack of public interest in administrative problems, influence of pressure groups, too arbitrary limitations on administration, favoring of amateur administrators and professional politicians and lack of confidence in the officials elected.

Presiding at the morning symposium was Mrs. Marion A. Cheek of Snyder, N. Y., member of the league's national board of directors and chairman on government and economic welfare problems.

Discussion of Program.

The principal speaker on the afternoon program was G. Lyle Belsley, director of the Civil Service Assembly of the United States and Canada, speaking on "What is the League Worth?" The League's proposed program during the coming biennium also was discussed, with Miss Strauss, second vice-president, presiding.

At tonights session, a banquet at 7 o'clock, an address will be made by Dr. Herman Finer, head of the department of public administration of the London University School of Economics and Political Science. His speech, the third phase of the "Behind the Issues" symposia, will be on "The Democratic and the Fascist Idea of Government." Dr. Finer is the author of "Mussolini's Italy."

Also on the evening program will be Harry D. Gideonse, associate professor of economics at the University of Chicago, who will speak on "Conducting Foreign Policy in a Democracy," and Mrs. Eugene Meyer, part owner and special writer for the Washington Post, who will discuss "Democracy and Human Values." Mrs. Louise Leonard Wright of Chicago, a league director and chairman on government and foreign policy, will preside. Convention sessions are scheduled to continue through Friday.

Ford Gives His Views On Country's Problems

it wouldn't have anything back of it. It wouldn't truly represent anything done—anything produced.

"Well, now, we've made gold our 'standard.' We say that so much gold represents so much production. We value production—things done—in terms of so many ounces of gold. In other words, we're using gold dollars as tokens of things done.

"So, now, we've come to think that the thing to get is gold—money. Why? That's not important at all! We're simply using all this gold—this money—as counters to keep the score.

"The important thing, really, is production. Don't you see? If we get production, then it doesn't matter, really, what kind of money—what kind of counters—we use to keep score with.

"Only—and here's the real rub—we must keep score truly. We shouldn't use counters that don't add up accurately.

Token of Production.

"That's why I say, what better token of production is there than production itself? What better token of production is there than the thing itself—the thing produced?

"If you find one thing—just one actual thing that's not a counter or a token, but that is an actual 'something done' itself—and if you can make that your standard instead of gold, why, then you see what you'll have done? You'll have taken your emphasis—your wrong emphasis—off of money, and you'll have put it where it belongs, on producing the things that money stands for.

"I say wheat, because wheat, in this country, always has been a true standard of national prosperity. I say wheat, because the farmer who grows a bushel of wheat has produced something, a something that's vital and real—indeed, a something that's life itself. The man who digs up gold merely has produced some material from which counters are manufactured to 'pay' the farmer for his wheat. Gold 'production' isn't an actual measure of anything."

Mr. Ford leaned back and shook his head a litle wearily. His gaze traveled to the dancing flames on the big logs in the fireplace. With some trepidation, this reporter said:

'Mr. Ford, you say that production, not money, is the answer to the problem of recovery. A wheat dollar would, of course, be revolutionary. But, right now, what is the answer? You say 'production'—yes—and right now there are thousands of persons willing, anxious, begging to be put back to work—to go back to producing things. How can that be accomplished?"

The industrial magnate's eyes twinkled. Once again, this reporter was reminded of the fabled Lincoln, gaunt, rangey, sitting somewhere before an open fire perhaps just like this one, illustrating his arguments with pointed anecdotes.

"When I was still a young man," said Henry Ford, "an old man once told me: 'Henry, if you ever want anything did, you must did it yourself.'

"I've remembered that and made it my rule all my life. I think that's what we've got to do now—we've got to 'did it' ourselves.

"We can't just sit around waiting for something to happen. I don't think we're going to sit around waiting for something to happen. Something's going to happen—I'm as sure of that as I am sure that I am sitting here today.

"Our economic structure's all out of kilter, they say. I wouldn't call it that at all. What I'd say is, it's become unbalanced.

Back to the Farm.

"That's why, yesterday, I said I favor a back-to-the-farm movement. There's got to be a movement back to the farm.

"Understand me now — I don't mean a movement back to the farming industry, if I may call it that. I don't mean a movement away from industry and back to the farm. I mean we've got to have a movement back to industrial production and back to the farm, both at the same time.

"Take any industrial worker whose labor is seasonal. Has it never occurred to you how much better off he and his family would be, in the event of a lay-off, if they had their own little farm, even though it be only a truck garden, to fall back on?

"We've built a huge machine called 'industry', that's all, and we've allowed ourselves—too many of us—to become too utterly dependent upon it. When the machine slows down, we starve—and all around us is Mother Earth, waiting, ready, willing to provide us with at least the necessities of life if only we will ask her.

"As for the rest of it—look around you!

"What's to start the wheels of the industrial machine turning again? I'll tell you what.

"People. Just ordinary people.

"If you want anything did, did it yourself—remember that.

What Painting Could Do.

"Right here in New England, there are enough houses and barns in need of paint—why, if people, just ordinary people, all would get started hiring painters and buying paint, that alone would be enough to bring us out of this 'depression' or 'recession' or whatever you call it.

"Money? It's not money that will do it. I'm not thinking of the amount of money that that would mean. That's where we've gotten off on the wrong foot.

"It's not the money that's spent that counts—it's the people put back to work.

"Don't think of people out of work as the unemployed.' Think of them as a lost market.

"Of course, you can't sell shoes, or clothing, or radios, or an automobile, or anything else short of the barest necessities, to a man who's out of work. He needs things—now more than ever, probably, if he's been out of work very long, he needs things—but he can't buy them. You've lost your market—do you see?

"We'll come out of this depression when the people 'did it' themselves. One good push, anywhere along the line, will do it—and I am firmly convinced that push is coming. Let one industry get really started putting people back to work, and the thing will pyramid up and up and up and up.

"I am dead certain that the day is coming, not far distant, that will usher in the greatest era of prosperity American has ever seen."

Lose Bad Breath—Keep Your Friends

This gentle bile-producer might help*

In spite of all that has been written about bad breath, thousands still lose friends through this unpleasant fault. Yet sour stomach with its resultant bad breath is frequently only the result of constipation. Just as it can cause loss of appetite, early weakness, nervousness, and mental dullness.

So keep regular. And if you need to assist Nature, use Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. This gentle laxative can help bring relief. Extremely important, too, is the mild stimulation it gives the flow of bile from the liver without the discomfort of drastic, irritating drugs. That's why millions use this laxative yearly. All druggists, 15¢, 30¢, 60¢.

*Your liver secretes from 20 to 30 ounces of bile every day to aid in the digestion of fats and stimulate muscular action of the intestinal system. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, besides helping keep you regular, contain an ingredient which definitely assists in the secretion of bile. That is one of the reasons why Olive Tablets have unsurpassed effectiveness.

LABOR BOARD UNFAIR, A. F. L. COUNSEL SAYS

House Witness Wants Wagner Act Administered by Justice Department.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 27. — An American Federation of Labor spokesman accused the National Labor Relations Board today of unfairness in administration of the Wagner Labor Act.

Joseph A. Padway, Federation counsel, told the House Judiciary Committee:

"The A. F. of L. has a lack of confidence in the board. There exists a feeling on the part of a very large element in the labor movement that the Act is not being administered fairly as far as the A. F. of L. is concerned. We are disappointed in the administration by the board."

Padway made the statement while registering conditional Federation approval of a bill before the committee intended to deny Government contracts to corporations which the board declared had violated the Wagner Act.

He predicted "all hell will break loose," particularly in the construction industry, if the legislation is enacted as it now is written. The Federation, he said, desires an amendment which would place responsibility for enforcement in the Justice Department, rather than the Labor Board.

Padway said he did not question the honesty, integrity or sincerity of the board members but said that "the economic bias of members of the board has asserted itself as it does in any other board."

"We never intended to give to the board our right to make contracts with employers, yet we are finding that in decisions every day," Padway declared. "We don't want the Wagner Act repealed but we want to change the procedure under it.

"It would be disastrous and tragic to repeal substantive provisions of the Act. But the economic bias of members of the board prevails and controls many decisions of the board. We're not asking for a change in personnel. We must allow for a situation that was imposed on them."

MRS. NORA F. COATS FUNERAL

Funeral services for Mrs. Nora Florence Coats, former president of the St. Louis County Business and Professional Women's Club, will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. at the Bopp undertaking establishment, Hanley road and Forsythe boulevard, Clayton. Mrs. Coats, who was 48 years old, died Monday after a two years' illness at her home, 7611 Maryland avenue.

A native of Dent County, Missouri, she had been associated with her husband, J. B. Coats, in a drug business in Clayton, but retired from that in 1936 because of illness. Surviving besides her husband are her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Godbey of Salem, Mo.; three sisters and a brother.

tion, he said, would prevent our dependence in a future war on such "haphazard undertakings" as marked our struggle for vital materials in the last war. The industrial machine was kept going during the World War by a "combination of good fortune, bluff, smuggling and other extreme measures," he said.

Asserting that the public would be in favor of buying strategic minerals for national defense, Dr. Finch said the principle of such a program had been approved by Congress when it provided funds last year for the purchase of materials for a reserve supply for the navy.

Stock piles for war-time use should be of the best materials money could buy, he said, because they would "cushion the inevitable readjustments that result from being thrown into a state of war."

Would Prevent Confusion.

"They would prevent the confusion and inefficiency that resulted from the forced use of off-grade materials and substitutes during the last war, and millions of dollars would be saved. The fleet would be relieved to some extent from protecting sea lanes."

Encouraging industrial co-operation in the program, Dr. Finch said it would benefit the mining industry by supplying reliable information as to reserves of different grades of ore and probable costs of production, data for a sound basis for appeals to Congress for tariff protection.

Howard I. Young, St. Louis, president of the American Zinc, Lead and Smelting Co., was re-elected president of the institute. Another St. Louisan, J. A. Caselton, vice-president of the National Lead Co., was elected to serve again as treasurer. Other officers, also re-elected, are Merrill C. Chapin, New York; John A. Robinson, Miami, Ok., and J. O. Elton, Salt Lake City, Utah, vice presidents, and E. V. Gent, New York, secretary.

Suicide Note in Bottle on Shore.

KEOKUK, Ia., April 27.—A note signed "J. P. Gibson" taken from a bottle found last night on the Mississippi River shore said "My body will be found somewhere in the Mississippi." It asked the finder to "notify my brother, M. T. Gibson, at New Franklin, Mo.," and added "I did this April 12." Mrs. M. T. Gibson in a telephone message told authorities her brother-in-law had left New Franklin about three weeks ago.

COTTON MARKET CLOSES 9 TO 14 POINTS HIGHER

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 27.—Cotton advanced today in quiet trading on commission house and local buying. With only a few May notices issued, offerings were light.

July advanced from 8.83c to 8.89c and in midafternoon was selling at 8.85c, with prices 5 to 7 points net higher.

May opened 8.78; July 8.86; October 8.96; December 8.97b; January 9.01; March 9.05.

b—Bid.

The trade gave a constructive interpretation to Washington developments and some commission house buying appeared. Liverpool bought early, but on slight rallies turned to the selling side and prices reacted partially. July sold off from 8.89 to 8.83 and shortly after the first half hour was quoted at 8.85 with the list 3 to 9 points net higher.

After reacting partially, the market rallied under some support attracted by the weekly weather report, which said that April rainfall had been about twice the normal amount in considerable areas, resulting in delayed planting.

July sold up from 8.83c to 8.87c, with prices by midday 7 to 10 points net higher.

WHEAT MARKET IS IRREGULAR, CLOSING LOWER

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 27.—Wheat prices in Chicago averaged lower today, especially in the late dealings.

Minimizing of likelihood of damage by rust Southwest became an outstanding feature as the day neared an end. R. O. Cromwell, a leading unofficial expert, wired that it was fairly sure neither black stem rust nor orange leaf rust would be winter crop factors worthy of much consideration this year.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were ⅝@1¼ lower compared with yesterday's finish, May 80⅞@81c, July 79⅞@80c; corn ⅛@⅜ down, May 58¼@⅜c, July 60@60⅛c, and oats ⅛@⅜ off.

Wheat prices slumped almost a cent a bushel to near the season's lows, but then early losses were wiped out at times in subsequent rallies. Export sales of dark hard wheat to the United Kingdom were estimated at 100,000 bushels, but otherwise business to importing nations was quiet. Export sales of domestic corn were estimated at 500,000 bushels.

Black rust report Southwest, especially Oklahoma, tended to offset the depressing influence of Liverpool market weakness and announcement that big supplies were secretly acquired by the British Government. Oklahoma comment emphasized Oklahoma rust had developed in April, as against June 6 last year.

Liverpool quotations, due ⅝@¾ of a cent higher, showed in some cases an overnight loss of 1⅛ cents. An added weight on Chicago prices was widespread rain in the American grain belt. Little or not export business in United States wheat was apparent.

Corn and oats displayed relative firmness due to moderate export demand for corn. Rye followed wheat.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, April 27.—The local market was not quoted during the session.

Winnipeg wheat opened ⅜@¾c lower and early was ⅜@1c net higher. Late in the forenoon the market was ⅛@⅜c higher. The close was ⅜@⅞c lower.

Liverpool wheat opened ¼d higher but later cable was 1¼@1½d lower. The close was ¾@⅞d up.

Argentine wheat opened unchanged and corn ¼c higher. Wheat at noon was ⅜@¾c lower and corn ⅛@¼c higher.

St. Louis Cash Grain.

In the cash grain market today wheat was steady to ½c lower, corn unchanged to ¼c higher and oats unchanged. Sales made on the floor of the exchange were as follows:

Corn receipts which were 27,000 bu., compared with 63,000 a week ago and 24,000 a year ago included 18 cars local. Oats receipts which were 20,000 bu., compared with 4000 a week ago and 16,000 a year ago, included eight cars loca and two through.

STOCKS FIRM BUT LEADERS LOAF AFTER EARLY SPURT

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 27.—Stocks idled by the wayside today after the market had taken a brisk stride forward at the opening.

Gains of fractions to about 2 points—reversing a slow decline the last few sessions—were held in face of apathetic buying, although most shares had difficulty trying to improve on the opening prices.

Public interest seemed to have been stimulated overnight by the pledge of a group of prominent business men for co-operation with the administration on recovery efforts. Professional traders, however, were content to wait for more tangible reassurance improving sentiment and business confidence would be translated into production gains.

Corporate and U. S. Government bonds perked up a bit with stocks. Major commodities walked a narrow path, wheat at Chicago finishing ⅝ to 1⅛ lower while corn was down ⅛ to ⅜ of a cent a bushel.

Steels Among Gainers.

Quick to respond to buying, although early gains were pared before the finish, were United States Steel, Bethlehem, International Harvester, American Can, Eastman Kodak, Douglas Aircraft, Johns Manville, du Pont, International Nickel, Consolidated Edison, United Aircraft, Standard Oil of New Jersey, United States Rubber preferred, and Cerro de Pasco.

Favorable comment came out of financial sources on Washington developments which were interpreted as intended to embolden business to borrow from the huge supply of potential credit placed at disposal of industry under the loan expansion aspects of the administration's recovery program.

But quarterly earnings statements and comment of executives in corporate meetings kept realities of the business slump before the market.

Fractionally higher at the close were American Tobacco B, Armstrong Cork, National Distillers, Commercial Investment Trust, Borg Warner, Curtiss Wright A, International Paper preferred and Crane Co.

At mid-afternoon the British pound was up ⅝ of a cent at $4.99. The French franc was 3.12 cents, up .00¾ of a cent.

News of the Day.

Industrial production continued on an even, though low, level throughout March and the first three weeks of April, the Federal Reserve Board reports. The board's index of production remained at 79 per cent of the 1923-25 average, compared with 118 per cent a year ago.

Rated by brokers as a pleasant surprise to most Wall streeters was United States Steel's first-quarter earnings report, showing a smaller loss for the period than had been predicted generally. Analysts noted, however, depreciation charges were less than in the same 1937 period. Significant of widespread inventory reduction in recent months, business observers noted, was the fact Big Steel's shipments in the first three months ran ahead of production.

But Wall street was reminded of a sharp decline in backlogs of producers in the heavier lines of industry by Westinghouse Electric's report that unfilled orders at the end of March totaled $53,555,900, against $73,735,326 a year ago.

Westinghouse shares, up nearly 3 points around the opening, were hit by announcement the directors had halved the payment on the common, cutting it to 50 cents. It quickly yielded the earlier gain on the news, then rallied.

Midweek Industrial Reviews.

Trade observers found signs of a little improvement, mainly under the surface, in some of the more sensitive industries producing goods for the ultimate consumer. However, actual production figures showed little change in the recent week.

The "Iron Age" review said sentiment in the steel industry was "somewhat better, which is partly attributed to the fact that Congress has become more assertive."

It noted building was aiding some mills. Production rate unchanged. Steel business 10 to 12 per cent smaller in April than March.

Weekly electric power output figures of the Edison Electric Institute showed a drop of 10.8 per cent compared with the same week last year, against a year-to-year decline of 9.9 per cent in the previous week.

LIVERPOOL, April 27.—Wheat futures rallied partially at the close following today's strength in Winnipeg, and finished ⅜d to ⅝d net lower. The early decline of more than a penny was attributed to favorable American and Canadian weather reports. Cotton futures recovered their early losses and closed unchanged to 1 lower. Proposed British tax increases and easier overseas markets were factors on the early decline.

S. Bayard Colgate Is Elected Chairman of the Board.

By the Associated Press.

JERSEY CITY, April 27.—E. H. Little, vice-president in charge of sales and advertising of Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Co. since 1933, was elected president of the company by the directors today following the annual meeting of stockholders.

S. Bayard Colgate, former president of the company, was elected formally to the post of chairman. He had filled the duties of both offices since the resignation last summer of Charles S. Pearce, former chairman.

Colgate told stockholders at the annual meeting today that an upturn in the company's business "is unlikely until general business conditions improve."

Dealer buying, he said, is on a "hand-to-mouth" basis and added that more substantial buying could not be expected until there was a decided "firming up" of the fats and oil markets.

Stockholders approved a profit incentive plan which provides for additional compensation for the president and vice-presidents after 6 per cent has been earned on the preferred stock and 5½ per cent on the stated value of the common stock and on the corporate surplus.

SOCONY-VACUUM 1937 NET PROFIT, $1.82 PER SHARE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 27.—Socony-Vacuum Oil Co. reported a net profit of $56,808,264, equal to $1.82 a share, for 1937. This compares with $42,909,363, or $1.38 a share, in 1936.

John A. Brown, president, in his letter to stockholders, said "gasoline inventories for the whole country for the industry were too high at the close of the year, and inventories of fuel oils were increasing with reduced general business activity.

"At the time of writing this report, it seems probable that 1938 will see a slight increase in gasoline consumption, a decline in consumption of other products, and lower profits.

"However, we believe in the continued progress of our industry. We are going ahead with a heavy program of capital outlay which will probably result in a total of such expenditures of around $65,000,000 in the United States in 1938, which is about the same as 1937."

APRIL STEEL BUSINESS DOWN 10 TO 25 PCT.

Ingot Production for Industry as Whole Remains at 32 Per Cent.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 27.—"Iron Age" said today in its weekly review of the steel industry:

"April steel business has been disappointing to all producers, having run from 10 to 25 per cent below that of March, depending upon the company and the product.

"Ingot production for the industry as a whole remains at last week's average of 32 per cent, but there has been wide fluctuations by districts in line with the irregularity of previous weeks.

"The Wheeling-Weirton district leads the country with an average rate of 68 per cent, a gain of 11 points over last week, brought about partly by demand for tin plate and sheet bars.

"In the Chicago district there has been a rise of 4 points to 34 per cent caused chiefly by the receipt of a few rail orders.

"In other districts production is unchanged from last week or downward. The Pittsburgh district has dropped 2 points to 26 per cent, the Youngstown district 7 points to 25 per cent and the Eastern Pennsylvania area 2 points to 27 per cent.

Public Works Dominate.

"Building construction projects recently awarded, for which steel is now being specified, have given aid to some mills. Reinforcing bars have been relatively more active than structural shapes. In the past week about 10,600 tons of reinforcing bars have been awarded.

"Public work continues to dominate the construction field, but the jobs now current are not a part of the new Government spending program. Projects started under that program probably will not filter down to the steel mills for some months.

"An automobile company has issued inquiries for bumper stock for 1939 models, the first that have been reported for the new cars. No appreciable improvement in buying of steel by the automobile industry is expected before July, when material for the 1939 cars will be required. The industry is believed to have passed its peak of production on 1938 models. The fresh outbreak of strikes in the Detroit district has brought irregularity in assemblies and has caused the holding up of some steel shipments.

"Steel scrap appear sto have hit a bottom at Chicago, but prices continue downward at Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, where 50-cent reductions have occurred this week. There is said to be an abundance of No. 2 heavy melting steel, but a potential scarcity of No. 1 steel, which might quickly reverse the price trend if mills came into the market to buy. The Iron Age scrap composite price has decliend to $11.92."

RAIL AND U. S. BONDS IN THE HIGHER GROUP

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 27.—The bond market jogged ahead to higher levels today under leadership of railroad liens and U. S. Governments.

Stimulating news from Washington overnight with reference to transportation problems brought fairly good inquiry for obligations of Pere Marquette, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Illinois Central, Nickel Plate and Missouri Pacific, most of which were major fractions to more than a point higher around the start of the final hour.

Other corporate issues improving included International Paper 5s and American & Foreign Power 5s. Brooklyn City Railroad 5s and Pennsylvania Co. 4s, both inactive issues, slipped badly.

U. S. Governments maintained early gains of 1-32d to 6-32ds, with most of the trading in shorter term Treasuries and guaranteed obligations.

The higher trend continued to the close. Missouri Pacific 5s of '77 fell back in late trading and closed unchanged at 17¼. Other railroad loans, however, turned in sizable gains, including New York Central 5s at 51¼, Union Pacific 3½s of '71 at 89¼ and C. & O. 4½s at 113½.

Youngstown Sheet & Tube 4s at 99¼, and Western Union 5s of '60 at 57¼, were fractionally higher.

U. P. HEAD ON REVENUE LATER FROM THE CROP PROSPECTS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 27.—W. A. Harriman, chairman of the Union Pacific Railroad, said today crop conditions in the West "look pretty good."

He mentioned crop prospects as a point in favor of rail traffic later in the year. However, for the present, he added, business continues to move at the recent slow pace.

His comment supplemented the road's 1937 pamphlet report, showing earnings equal to $6.15 a share on the common stock against $8.20 in 1936. The surplus for the common stock amounted to $13,673,792 against $18,226,810 the previous year.

A decline of $2,921,386 in dividends on stock investments and $363,817 in return on bonds, notes and equipment trust certificates was offset in part by net income of $428,521 from oil operations in Southern California.

The road's oil properties in the vicinity of Los Angeles and Long Beach harbors, the report noted, started producing a year ago and at the end of 1937 the output from 72 wells, "under rigid curtailment," exceeded 20,000 barrels a day.

Operating revenues increased $6,850,727 to $162,064,310. The increase was overshadowed by a rise of $8,106,463 in operating expenses and $187,121 in taxes.

Cash at the end of the year amounted to $9,739,058 against $25,995,814 at the end of 1936 while inventories of materials and supplies were up $8,859,352 at $30,498,241.

"The volume of freight traffic (net ton miles) transported in 1937," the report said, "was approximately the same as the volume transported in 1927 and the freight srevice in 1937 was approximately 38 per cent faster than in 1927. But the compensation (freight revenue) received by the company in 1937 was more than $27,000,000 (17 per cent) less than that received in 1927, the average revenue per net ton-mile having decreased 16.8 per cent from 1.181 cents to .983 cents."

Construction of 2650 more steel freight cars in the company's own shops has been authorized, the report pointed out.

LABOR OBSTREPEROUS, SAYS PUBLISHERS' HEAD

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 27.—James G. Stahlman, president of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, said in an address today that labor, generally, had been "extremely obstreperous" during the last year and said that "the virus seems to have been injected into a portion of newspaper personnel." He did not name the unions he criticised.

Stahlman, publisher of the Nashville (Tenn.) Banner, also criticised what he described as "lower bracket" journalism schools, tax increases, the proposed rise in newsprint costs, and "that section of the press which has surrendered the ideals of an honorable profession for the tinkle of the cash register.

Speaking at the A. N. P. A.'s annual convention, Stahlman reviewed his year as president of the organization and mentioned some of the problems which have been faced and some of those which lie ahead. He began with labor, saying:

"It has been necessary for this association, in conjunction with other organizations of newspaper publishers, to put itself squarely on record against certain movements which the press of this country considers inimical, not solely to its welfare, but contrary to the interests of a free people and the preservation of free institutions in a democracy."

Stahlman said much of the public's distrust of the press had been engendered by "demagogues in all walks of life, who would seek to destroy the power of the press, because it is the last bulwark between them and their selfish exploitation of a great people."

"On the other hand," he added, "we cannot overlook the instances of delinquency on our own part."

The Radio Committee of the Publishers' Association said today in its report "the inescapable task of the American press is to guard against any encroachment upon American democracy by the Federal Government with radio as an instrument of political power."

"In the totalitarian countries," the report said, "radio has been made an instrument of dictatorship by which not only the freedom, but the very soul of the press, has been destroyed."

"One fact, however, is outstanding: In 1922, when radio broadcasting was in its infancy, there were only a few thousand receiving sets in the entire country; today, the total number of receiving sets is estimated as high as 37,000,000.

"Sixteen years ago there were 2382 daily newspapers in the United States with a total daily circulation of 29,780,328; today there are about 2000 daily newspapers in this country with a total circulation of 41,468,917.

"In other words, since the advent of radio, newspaper circulation has increased more than 33 per cent, and today's total is the greatest in history."

WELL, I'LL TELL YOU—By BOB BURNS

SOMEHOW people have got the idea that my folks down home are easy going and listless, but I wanta tell you if you give 'em a goal to work for, they'll surprise you.

Not long ago, a fella was visitin' my home town and he noticed that while all the other citizens were mostly just sittin' around, every time he saw my Uncle Hod, he would be dashin' up and down the street on the run. The stranger called my uncle over and says "You seem to be the most ambitious man in town."

Uncle Hod says "Am I ambitious—brother, I won't be satisfied until my wife is doing all the first-class washings in this town."

Along The Potomac

By HARLAN MILLER

WASHINGTON, April 27.

WITH all the furore about spies that's going on, it's comical to discover that a young American not only has charge of the household staff at the Japanese Embassy, but also sleeps there.

The rumor that a few Americans prominent in Washington's social life are suspected of accepting "foreign gold" for propaganda—much of it merely conversational—and for occasional "reports" has been confirmed by a high Government official.

"FOREIGN GOLD FOR A PATRIOT."

Recently this important official was invited to address a select high-grade group at lunch. His remarks were to be confidential and strictly off the record.

"I'd like to come," he said, "but I can't, because Mr. So-and-So will be there. Anything I said would be known at a certain embassy by 3 o'clock."

—o—o—

Such propaganda is so subtle as to be almost imperceptible. . . . It is well flavored with lofty patriotism and 100 per cent Americanism. . . . It aims to show that this country's interests would be most wisely served by taking certain positions and doing certain things—which would play into the hands of certain foreign Powers.

—o—o—

A FEMININE tourist got the shock of her life the other day. . . . She was admiring the facade of the Supreme Court Building when suddenly she espied a young man wearing nothing but a pair of shorts on the roof above the frieze, looking just like a Greek god, almost.

Fearful lest it might be another impious assault on the high court, she sailed straight in and reported the phenomenon to the uniformed guardians.

It developed that some of the court attaches, starved for sunshine after a long legalistic winter, have taken to spending most of the noon hour sun-bathing on the court roof under Washington's warm April sun. . . . They've been chided and hope Chief Justice Hughes won't hear of it.

THERE'S JUST a ghost of a chance that the SEC probe of the Richard Whitney bubble may bring J. P. Morgan again to a Washington witness stand, and the capital is prepared for an influx of midgets.

"MAYBE ANOTHER MIDGET WOULD DISPEL FEAR."

Incidentally, a Morgan partner's assertion that his "conservatism" made him begin to wonder a little about the Richard Whitney loan of $500,000 for 90 days, after it had run for three years, brought Washington its smile of the week.

"If that's conservatism," wise-cracked a reporter, "then I'm a conservative, too."

POTOMAC PIFFLE: If Franklin Roosevelt Jr. plans to broadcast for a hair tonic, he'd better do it before his hair goes the way of Jimmy Roosevelt's. . . . A telephonic voice asked a young matron in Alexandria the other day if a new child might join the neighborhood's play group. "We'd like to see you first," said the young matron. Next day the newcomer showed up; it was Mrs. Black, wife of the Justice. Her child go in O K.

Modern Mothers

By Elsie Robinson

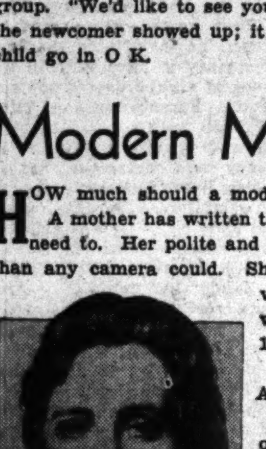
HOW much should a modern mother know?

A mother has written to me. She did not enclose a photograph, or need to. Her polite and precise words give a clearer picture of her than any camera could. She was born at the turn of the century—vintage 1900—married immediately after the war. Her children, a boy and girl, are now 18 and 16, respectively.

And she's "frightfully worried" says she. And plainly horrified.

She's worried and horrified because here, on one side, are her Lovely, Innocent Children. And here, on the other side, is "all this Frightful Depravity . . . these awful Exposures of Sin and Crime and Disease. . . . Discussion, right in public print, of things that were never mentioned when she was a girl—things she can't explain even yet." And so, wails she—

"How can I possibly keep my children innocent under such circumstances?"



ELSIE ROBINSON.

For no 1938 Mother should desire, or be given the right, to "keep her children innocent under such circumstances" . . . nor to remain innocent under such circumstances!"

It is as cruel for a 1938 mother to keep her child uninformed of current conditions as it would have been for a 1738 mother to keep her youngster unaware of the bears, venemous snakes, savages and other wilderness perils which then beset his path.

Never has Youth so needed reliable information as it needs it today. All around is incredible confusion. Wrecked standards . . . smashed conventions . . . discarded principles. The old-fashioned Home has gone. The School doesn't know—or doesn't tell—what it's all about. And Industry—which hitherto has carried Youth through its floundering bewilderment—now offers only closed doors. So what?

Where is Youth to learn what-life-is-all-about? How is Youth to determine what's right . . . what's wrong? And who's to tell Youth what pays . . . what doesn't?

The average Nice Mother shrinks in horror from these questions. Generally she says, "They're perfectly silly. Things aren't as bad as that. It's all newspaper scareheads . . . just trying to frighten people."

But the average Nice Mother is wrong. Things ARE as bad as that. In fact, they're worse. There is UNEMPLOYMENT, for one thing—angry, agonized masses of idle men which no one could have imagined back in 1900. There is PROPAGANDA, constantly and insidiously at work, teaching any curious, eager youngster to suspect and despise everything which his fathers respected, loved and fought for. There is a POST-WAR MACHINE AGE, with its new freedom and sophistication, its chaotic relationships (or lack of them) between parents and children . . . children and society. And, most pressing of all, there are those intimate, personal problems which go hand in hand with vast social changes.

And behind it all, the wailing of the lost and lonely human heart seeking a Haven and a Hope in its fellow man and God.

These things are not "newspaper scareheads"—they are Twentieth Century Reality. They touch, to a greater or less extent, every Twentieth Century youngster. They strike terror to young hearts . . . they brake young pride . . . they infect young dreams.

And the mother who hasn't informed herself on these subjects, and isn't prepared to discuss them with her child in a frank and friendly manner, is a disgrace to her high calling and unworthy of trust and respect.

The New York Scene

The Footlights: What was probably the last gathering of the "too-too-divine" set took place the other night when they greeted "The Circle" at the Playhouse . . . Grace George and Ze Dainteh Bankhead divided the handclapping at this revival, and next day's editions were perfect darlings to the show . . . However, Brooks Atkinson of the N. Y. Times and John Anderson, the Journal-American's literate, wrangled on the play's rating . . . Atkinson labeled it Somerset Maugham's most brilliant, and Anderson, the dissenter, said it was not Maugham's best . . . It'll cost you the price of a ticket to take sides . . . "The Wild Duck," another revival, came to the 49th Street Theatre and turned out to be a dead one. It was embalmed a few evenings later . . . Another arrival was "Trojan Incident," a WPA item . . . The critics decided it was a dance recital and refused to incriminate themselves . . . The final event was "Escape This Night," which came too tardy for listing here . . . The most amazing part of the N. Y. Critics' Circle's choice for Best Play ("Mice and Men") is that George Jean Nathan, the "againster," agreed with the majority . . . Must be getting tired of being alone.

The Magic Lanterns: Just what is a Broadway rep worth in the cinema center? Joseph Downing, a big click in the leading role of "Dead End" for two seasons, has a bit part in "Wide Open Faces," Joe E. Brown's "B" filler . . . "The Volga Boatman" is hairy-chested stuff from that so gay France. It's about the old Russia, and excuse enough, according to the Times' Mr. Crisler, for the dictatorship of the proletariat. It has been retained for a third week, at any rate . . . There are skimpy menus at the big-time temples, due to holdovers . . . Columbia Pictures urges newspapermen to nominate a boy to play the fighter in "Golden Boy" for the film version . . . One thing at a time, please. We're still finding Scarlett O'Hara . . . The Rivoli will shortly re-issue "Count of Monte Cristo" with Robert Donat, rather than offer poor new films. The first time, we think, a Grade A movie place has done that.

The Networks: It is the guess of one dialer that two more mentions of his Sonny Boy by Jolson will get the tot a Crossley rating . . . Dorothy Thompson, whose continuities are invariably listenable, ought to make her sponsor junk that musical introduction to her quarter hour talks. All cymbals and spookiness, the sort that used to bring on the Living Pictures in the two-a-day . . . If you wonder whatever became of the ill-tempered, tough reporter that got too tiresome for the screen, then be informed that he worked on "Her Second Husband" last week—and just as irritating as ever.

The Magzeens: The newcomer Ken has been feuding with its staff again, and has lost George Seldes . . . The same editors, however, have reconciled with Burton Rascoe, who will resume for Esquire, and keep batting for the holidaying Sinclair Lewis over at News-Week . . . Will Irwin has a first rate article called "It Is the Law" in the May Good Housekeeping . . . It concerns the shooting of Sgt. Kilpatrick (of the N. Y. gendarmes) by a criminal, who had character witnesses! . . . Harold Lord Varney, former editor of a deceased Fascist mag, will bob up as editor of a new weekly soon. It will parade as an anti-Roosevelt mag . . . "See," a nickel photo leaflet, has gone to Heaven . . . The New Yorker amusingly clowns Life's "Birth of a Baby" feature . . . Brubaker says FDR isn't worried about the press because he knows that when their towns get relief gravy, the editors' hearts will be in the right place . . . Since when did editors have hearts?

The Press: The meanest crack Margaret Marshall takes at Walter Lippmann in her Nation profile (and we're merely quoting) is that he "began with a wealth of thought and ended with the thought of wealth" . . . What was all that juggling of position for the World-Telly columnists? Broun had top spot one day after being chased off the page among the editorials, presumably the publisher's idea of Siberia, and Heywood's too, judging from his New Republic piece.

The Proletariat: Henry Ford stated he is going to have lunch with the President so that "he can look at somebody who doesn't want anything" . . . Want or need, Mr. Ford? . . . "Making a hole in one," said Irene Dunne, "gave me more confidence in myself than anything that has ever happened to me" . . . That's Hollywood for you—even when making a hole in one—they won't give any part of the credit to luck . . . Dizzy Dean remarked: "The reason I picked St. Louis to win the pennant is now with Chicago" . . . Put that ham on rye! . . . "Jack" for short, Mrs. Coogan? . . . Said General Johnson: "Many people are growing weary of F. D. R.'s charm" . . . You can't grow weary of charm, General. . . Charm is what keeps you from growing weary.

It's all right for the Wildlife Authorities to be aroused by mosquitoes—but the mosquitoes, too, need to be aroused. There is a real danger in biting a wildlife authority.

It will all end up with the North American Wildlife Institute advocating new game laws to protect mosquitoes—with mosquito netting.

Understanding Man.

More and more, science is turning its gaze upon man and realizing what a truly marvelous combination of physical, intellectual and emotional sets of responses he has. Much of the proof of man's relation to sun and planets lies buried in musty reports filed away in archives of colleges, probably because considered incomplete. These proofs should be released and compared publicly.

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead from this anniversary is one of personal searching and possible restlessness; make no too sudden moves, but do plan self-development and profitable changes. Danger: July 26-Sept. 8; and Dec. 8 to Feb. 6, 1939.

Pecan Icing

A lovely rich frosting to use when the cake itself does not abound in richness. One cup dark brown sugar, one cup granulated sugar, three tablespoons butter, one cup water, one teaspoon vanilla, two-thirds cup broken pecan meats. Mix sugar, butter and water and boil until the soft ball stage. Set aside for a while to partly cool. Add vanilla and pecans and beat until creamy. Spread immediately, using a silver knife dipped in warm water.

Proper Discard Is Important in Five-Suit Bridge

South Defeated When He Makes Wrong Exchange for Widow Card.

By Ely Culbertson

AS I have been writing and preaching from time immemorial, bidding is essentially a process of imaginary play. In the new game of five-suit bridge imaginary play becomes an even more important factor, because there now are two phases of the game in which it must be employed. It still applies to the bidding, of course, and, in a more concrete form, it applies to the proper placement of the widow card. After the opening lead is made, declarer places that card either in his own hand or in dummy, as he sees fit, and discards a loser. But the term "loser" is too general and superficial to be descriptive of the advantage declarer can gain from the correct discard. A "loser" may be one trick or, paradoxically, may be two or more. Let me illustrate this by means of an actual hand.

South, dealer.

Widow: Royal queen.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 royal	Pass	2 hearts	Pass
3 royals	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
5 royals	Pass	6 royals	Pass
Pass	Pass

During the bidding, South mentally added the widow, the royal queen, to his own holding and mentally discarded a losing spade. This left him with an excellent hand and accounted for his slam-urging bid of five royals over three no trump. North, with two aces and club strength, felt justified in accepting the slam invitation.

West opened the spade king. Declarer took the royal queen into his own hand and got rid of his spade loser. After winning with the spade ace, he drew trumps. On the third round, East signaled dramatically with the diamond king. Now, when declarer went about establishing dummy's heart suit, he met a sudden setback. West, winning the second heart, did not waste a precious tempo in the vain effort to cash a spade trick. He shifted immediately to a diamond and this spiked declarer's plan. The heart suit still needed another concession for its establishment. East won with the heart queen and cashed two diamonds, to defeat the small slam contract one trick.

Now let us see what the proper exchange for the widow would have done for the declarer. He should have realized that if he were to concede two heart tricks in order to establish dummy's suit, a diamond shift would be fatal. Hence, he should not have worried so much about a losing spade but should have laid his plan to establish the heart suit with only one concession and, thereby, only one loss of the lead. He should have taken the royal queen into his own hand and discarded, not a spade, but a heart. The play then would have gone: First trick, spade ace; three rounds of trumps; a heart lead from the closed hand, ducked in dummy. East would win, and let us concede that the defenders would cash their spade trick before shifting to diamonds. Now the diamond ace would win and declarer would lead his remaining heart to dummy's ace, then would ruff a third round. Two long hearts then would be established in dummy for the discard of two losing diamonds. In all, only one spade and one heart would have to be lost.

Mostly Imagination

By Elizabeth Boykin

OUR Nellie is a blonde and very much alive. Right now she's thrilled to pieces over what she's been doing with her house—using mostly imagination and energy.

Take that back hall, for instance. An insipid looking spot it was, mostly doors with just one decent wall space. Nellie papered it with silver paper (it didn't take so much because of the small amount of wall space, so she could afford metallic paper even at the higher per roll figure). Then she painted the woodwork—don't gasp — brilliant Chinese red. And did that nondescript little room sit up and take notice! It really acquired personality and poise all in the same breath and was literally "furnished" with color, which was important since there really wasn't much space for furniture.

Of course, this room required a bit of living up to as far as the adjoining rooms were concerned. But Nellie was prepared for that. Her bedroom in powder blues and yellow flowered chintz got a pair of little footstools covered in bright red.

The guest room in pale greens and grays got the loveliest cretonne, yards and yards of it so flowered that it really seemed fragrant. And the ground color of this cretonne was white with splashy red flowers for its design.

The kitchen repeated red in the checked curtains that hung at the windows and in the linoleum on the floor.

So Nellie's little hall is vindicated for its boldness. And it certainly adds zest in the very place most houses fall down—in the hall that can so easily become a catch-all.

Mock Hollandaise Sauce

One tablespoon flour.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
One-fourth teaspoon paprika.
One-fourth teaspoon celery salt.
One cup boiling water.
Two egg yolks.
One tablespoon lemon juice.

Melt one tablespoon butter in a small pan. Add flour and seasonings and heat until well mixed. Add water. Let boil for one minute. Cream rest of butter until soft. Add yolks and juice. Add a little of the sauce mixture and when blended pour into the rest of the sauce mixture. Stir for one minute and serve immediately, with hot drained vegetables.

Rice and Giblet Casserole

Mix together two cups boiled rice, one and one-half cups chopped chicken giblets, one tablespoon minched onion, two tablespoons chopped celery, one beaten egg, salt, pepper and two cups of liquor in which the giblets were cooked. Turn into a buttered baking dish, sprinkle the top with buttered crumbs and bake until nicely browned, using a moderate oven.

Answers to Questions to Social Usage

Arm or Elbow Should Never Rest on Table While Eating.

By Emily Post

Dear Mrs. Post:

IS it better manners to keep the left hand in the lap when not using it, or on the table?

Answer: Part of the time in the lap and part of the time with wrist against the edge of the table, perhaps holding a small piece of bread. The only definite rule is not to lay your arm on the table cover, nor to put your elbow on the table while you are eating.

Dear Mrs. Post: The other evening I asked a girl who was sitting in a restaurant with another man for a dance. I have known this girl for several years. After the dance I took her back to the table and thanked her and left immediately. Later, I heard that her companion considered me rude and impolite because I had not asked his permission to dance with her. Ought I to have asked him as well as the girl?

Answer: If the man was not a friend of yours and you were not invited to join them at their table, you should not have asked her to dance. On this one occasion when a girl goes out with a man to a public restaurant, friends of hers are not supposed to cut in, which they would of course have a perfect right to do were they at a private dance. I don't think asking his permission to dance with her would have helped matters.

Dear Mrs. Post: When a man accompanies a lady shopping, does he remove his hat upon entering the store or smaller shop? If not, does he take it off when the saleswoman approaches them? And the elevator in a store, is he supposed to take off his hat?

Answer: No, a gentleman is not supposed to take his hat off in a store where he merely stands at a counter. He also keeps on his hat in an elevator of a business building, and a store is a business building. If the saleswoman were a personal friend of his, then he would take his hat off when greeting her, and put it back on again. This applies particularly to a big department store. If a man should go with his wife to a milliner's or a small dressmaking establishment where he sits down, he would take off his hat.

Dear Mrs. Post: Will you tell me on what occasions it would be quite permissible to invite a young man and not his fiancee.

Answer: She should always be asked with him on all social occasions even when the gathering is an intimate family one, and the same rule applies to him. He must always be invited with her.

IF YOU ASK My OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

Dear Mrs. Carr:

MY problem is really the problem of another; that of a worthy but needy family, whom I sincerely hope may be helped through your column. The father of this family does some work and the mother does what work she can get; but their meager earnings provide only food and shelter for themselves and their two small children, although the mother has sacrificed personal belongings that were dear to her. And yet no one has heard her complain. She has managed, though, to send her husband to work and the little boy to school while she and the little daughter have remained at home. A help with clothing would be wonderful for them. The mother's size is 18 dress, 6½ C or 7 B shoe. The little girl is 5 years old, the little boy wears 9 or 10-year-old clothing and size 2½ shoes. The father wears size 14½ shirt. This mother will be glad to remodel any garments that may be sent. I will be glad to call for anything given them.
HELPFUL.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

Dear Martha Carr:

IT'S TIPPING that bothers me. I have lived all my life in a small town where the beauty parlor is operated by a high school classmate whom I wouldn't dream of tipping. Now I have a very nice position in the city and a feeling that the people working in these shops are somewhat dependent upon tips for part of their income. If I go to a large place where one operator does the whole thing and I pay the cashier, it is simple enough to slip a quarter into the operator's hand or pocket as I leave. But what about the places where one person does the shampoo and another comes in and gives the wave, and still another the manicure? Each one goes on to another customer, and I see only the cashier when I go. What then? Does each girl rate a tip, and how does one give it to her without being awkward?
COUNTRY COUSIN.

There seems to be such a loose, hit-or-miss system of tipping in most of these places that it is hard to know just what they expect. Most women and girls would feel they could not tip three people every time the work was done, especially where the manager or proprietor charges a high price. Your system and the amount is generous enough, where there is one operator and, I think, when so many work on you it would be fair just to leave a tip with the proprietor or the cashier when you pay, saying that they can divide it as they please.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

IF "YOURS TRULY" wants to exchange post cards, why doesn't she join a post-card collector's club? I can give her the name and address of one if she will write me in your care. It costs $1 to join and they send you 48 cards and the names and addresses of club members. I belong and enjoy it very much. There is also a foreign club I've seen advertised in "Hobbies" magazine, but I don't belong and do not remember the name. I collect pictures of hospitals and if she wishes would exchange some cards of the kind she is collecting. L. L.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

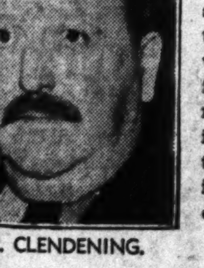
MY NEPHEW, age 19, has come from a farm to live with me. He is a boy of fine character and amiable disposition—but his manners, table and otherwise—are crude and boorish. What would you advise as a means of refining this young man? Nineteen is rather old for him to begin good manners—can it be done? Thanking you for your advice, I am
PERPLEXED.

With tact it can be done, of course, especially if the boy is not conceited and overbearing. The beginning might be made in the out-of-door life among young people. There are many activities and clubs here of all kinds, one of which he should join (depending, of course, upon his tastes, whether for bicycling, hiking, swimming or outdoor shooting). If at any time after he joins one of these clubs he feels he is not popular or is avoided, confess to him, very carefully, that it is barely possible he hasn't thought of the customs and good manners expected of him and if he really chooses, you will be glad to help him along this line.

Women's Illnesses

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

"MY LIFE AS A COUNTRY DOCTOR" is a book by Dr. Arthur E. Hertzler, which should be amusing to anybody. Dr. Hertzler likes to call himself a country doctor but, as a matter of fact, he is one of the best surgeons in the United States, although like the Mayos, he works in a small country town.



DR. CLENDENING.

As indicating the quality of book, Dr. Hertzler's remarks on female complaints are very illuminating:

Female complaints are generally understood to be diseases of the organs peculiar to women. They are handled by doctors who are called gynecologists or "specialists in diseases of women." The doctor's definition of a gynecologist is "an unfortunate individual whose mission in life it is to aid the human female to correlate her biologic instincts with the dictates of Christian ethics."

—o—o—

Women with female complaints are capable of a kind of classification as they walk into a doctor's office. One is the middle-aged woman, who is suffering from many complaints, chiefly because she is middle-aged. Then there is the adolescent girl. Many of these girls can be relieved by a method which appeared as long ago as Hartshorn's "Practice of Medicine," which described it, by the use of potassium iodide, because these patients have small goiters and when they disappeared the dysmenorrhea does likewise.

Quite a large group of female complainers come to the doctor's office accompanied either by husband or mama. Mama has had all the symptoms and daughter unconsciously imitates her. When there is a strong nervous element in such cases, as there usually is, operation should be avoided if possible because the result will be disappointment.

There is a story about a woman who told her mate that she had just had a talk with daughter. Papa asked, "What new did you find out?"

Most female complaints, according to Dr. Hertzler, are not due to any real disease, but to the circumstances of the woman's life.

Circus Makes Spring Official For New York

By Alice Hughes

NEW YORK, April 27.

SPRING was made official by the presence of the circus—yes, "The Greatest Show on Earth"—in Madison Square Garden, bigger and better than ever.

The circus and Martin's chicken pox ran practically a dead heat. Martin is the five-going-on-six who infests my quiet little tenement. But the circus won by 18 spots on Martin's carcass, and was forced to open at the Garden without his presence, his balloon, his stomach ache and his excited howls. It did not take us New Yorkers long to find out that this is an extra-special animal year with Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey. Of course, I found the usual number of death-defying aerialists, and beauteous ladies hopping on and off the two-acre backs of white plow-horses, but none the less, it is a four-legged season.

The very presence of Mr. Frank (Bring-'Em-Back-Alive) Buck guarantees this. That sturdy, jungle-daring gent is the central figure of the Grand Entry, completely surrounded by various beasts. In the big type, for the year, is 450 pounds of gorilla called Gargantua, "the largest and most ferocious ever held in captivity," and something, I assure you, to make the beasts for the Apocalypse writhe and snort with envy. You will also find, when it comes to your town, "the world's first group of performing black leopards, hitherto deemed unconquerable."

A big, great show, as always—but for me, peopled with loved ghosts. Lillian Leitzel, the darling, long since dead in a Copenhagen ring, and that dream of an aerialist, Codona, tragically self-slain. But that way madness lies. Come ovah, come ovah, come ovah!—the greatest show on earth!

• • •

THAT unhappy, even tragic, heir-apparent to the vanished Spanish throne, the Count Covadonga, is around town again, with the divorce from Marta Rocafort, the Havana beauty, an accomplished fact. I saw him at the Havana-Madrid with another dark beauty, whom I hear is Genoveva Mirande, secretary to Bob Ripley. But there were no rhumbas for the Count, since one of his feet was swathed in bandages, owing to the family haemophilia. Certainly is lucky that Alfonso cached all that lucre away in foreign capitals when his throne was shot from under him! . .

Studying New York's best-seller list, I find that Mr. Hervey Allen's "Action at Aquita" leads the fiction parade, while Lin Yutang's "The Importance of Living" tops the general list. Incidentally, take the tip of a tome-termite and read the latter's "My Country and My People" first—if you'll excuse the impertinence. That is one of the most fascinating books I've ever read, and even if we don't like to be taught, it teaches . . .

When I was a very young girl the top musical show star was a lovely, buxom girl named Christie MacDonald, who played practically forever in Victor Herbert's "The Spring Maid." And the other day our trails crossed, to my astonished delight. She was married to a Mr. Gillespie during the interminable run of that show, and at this very minute a pretty daughter of hers named Christie (Jr.) is kicking up in a local harlequinade called "The Fireman's Flame." And Christie Sr. is still lovely. You might tell Papa . . .

Heroines? Oh, yes, we have them. Take Miss Loretta Wilson, 15. The other day Lorraine Webb, 3, fell off a dock in Loretta's presence. And did the latter scream, or faint? Oh, no—she jumped in, caught Lorraine, and swam 30 feet to safety, towing the child. Oh, dear no, not all young New York ladies are sissies!

A great drive against the ravages of age has just been launched here, with the House of Rubenstein in the van. Pummels, thumps, things from tubes and jars, all have been giving a spring preview in this eternal war. Pshaw, Helena, these aren't crows' feet—they're just day-prints on the sands of daily columning. Think nothing of it, and I'll try, too—if there's no mirror around. That's when it gets really tough!

LAMB FILLETS.

Buy one pound of lean lamb and have it put through the grinder twice. Separate the meat into six equal parts and shape into little cakes. Wrap a slice of lean bacon around each cake, securing with toothpicks. Place in a pan and put under the broiler until nicely browned on each side. Serve on heated platter. A nice lamb dish, much less expensive than the usual chops.

PROBLEMS of the ADOLESCENT

Actions and Attitudes of Children From 12 to 20 Discussed in New Book by Dr. Ada Hart Arlitt.

By FRANCIS OLIVER

FEW rules, but those reasonable and well defined, and an understanding on the part of parents of their children, is the best method of handling adolescents, and bringing them safely and wisely through their period of physical and psychical readjustment, says Ada Hart Arlitt, head of the Department of Child Care and Training at the University of Cincinnati. Recently author of a book for parents on children from 1 to 12 years old, she has now written "The Adolescent," published by McGraw-Hill Book Co., which deals with the problems of children from 12 to 20 year old.

Among other things, Dr. Arlitt insists, parents take too seriously many actions and attitudes on the part of adolescent offspring that are not serious; that are merely a universal phase of that growth period, and will disappear with maturity. Where they do not disappear, or seem unduly exaggerated, it is well to see a psychiatrist, for the root of the trouble may in fact be something entirely removed from superficial appearance. Inability to keep up with school work, together with indifference and a poor disposition, has been traced to an older child's feeling of inferiority to a younger, augmented by parental failure to give credit for things well done. Direction of the child's activities into certain things in which excellence was possible, completely removed the problem.

Adolescents, while by nature in a constant state of rebellion against rules, paradoxically are gregarious and inclined to conform to the ideas of a particular group. Often the group is of a type that causes disapproval on the part of parents, but Dr. Arlitt reassures them that such a situation is not a cause for undue worry.

"If habits, attitudes and ideals of the right type have been thoroughly established before the age of 12, one may view without worry many of the child's associates since he will, within a very few years, come back to those standards established before adolescence began. If one has established no control or poor standards or has neglected to set in one's home the pattern which one desires the child to follow, no stress and strain, no amount of effort will have any effect during the adolescent period. The time to set up standards and to develop ideals is from birth through the twelfth year, not from the thirteenth to the seventeenth."

• • •

CHILDREN in the adolescent period are unhappy if they do not wear the same clothes, read the same books and use the same language as do other members of the group, for the tendency is to be as like the others as possible.

"The present desire of adolescents to conform can be easily understood," continues the author. "Many children become unpopular or have to struggle too hard to hold their places in groups of their own age because the rules and regulations of their parents differ too widely from those of the parents of other members and because the parents of these rather unfortunate children insist upon dressing them in line with their own taste rather than in line with the fashion which the adolescent group has adopted. If one is too upset by the fashions and attitudes of today's adolescents one has only to keep in mind the family album. This desire to conform continues but with somewhat less force as the child grows older. In fact, most adults are miserable if they are too different from the group of which they are a part."

Since teen age children naturally gravitate to groups, Dr. Arlitt suggests that parents try to co-operate in bringing about uniform rules of behavior, so one member does not feel he is the subject of injustice if, for instance, he is not allowed to stay out as late, or do things other members may. In addition, since the adolescent will belong to such cliques, parents can make use of the tendency by having groups to which admission is based on attainment in athletics, school subjects, writing, music or other fields.

"Any adolescent who does not wish to belong to a special gang or group, but prefers to stay by himself or to stay at home with his father or mother, is a subject for a psychiatrist. There may be nothing seriously wrong, but he should at least be examined to find out why he does not wish to mix with his group.

"This adolescent interest, like all the others, is strong in some individuals and relatively weak in others, ranging all the way from the 'mixer' to the person who has his special gang or group but likes to be alone for at least part of every day. While alone he may be reading, working at his hobby, thinking or resting. The school, the church, and any other organized social group should realize the necessity for providing places where the adolescents may gather to dance, play games, or just to talk. It is wise to have these groups under a certain amount of supervision though the supervision should not reach the level of control and direction. . . .

"Many parents will try to choose the children's friends for them, but nothing is less wise or less successful. Because the parent has as a close friend a member of a family is no reason why a child should find satisfaction in a friendship with a son or daughter. Children do tend to form their friendships among the same social group as that to which their parents belong, but when one says that one has gone as far as the facts permit."

It is well generally to allow the child approaching maturity to be as independent as possible in the use of initiative, although there should be sufficient limitations to prevent mistakes that have serious consequences, is Dr. Arlitt's belief. Minor mistakes merely teach judgment and foresight, but, warns the author, parents must not rush in to rectify such minor errors; the child himself should have to take care of them, for later in life he will have to do that, and will lack the ability if too greatly protected in youth.

• • •

LIMITATIONS and supervision should be reasonable and consistent. An attitude that alternates between treating the youth as a mere infant one time, and then as an adult next time, nullifies most of the effectiveness of discipline. Also, constant fussing about the things which are unimportant makes important things lose their significance.

"It is well to keep punishments and lectures for things that are of real importance. When one thinks of the foot pounds of effort that are expended in criticising the clothing of the adolescent, his manners, the way he looks, one is amazed."

Many of the attitudes of youth about which parents get aroused are merely growth stages and disappear in one to four years, Dr. Arlitt asserts. "Puppy love," which frequently takes the form of an attachment for a much older person, is such a transient stage. Awkwardness and self-consciousness; the tendency toward what may be termed "fidgets," when an adolescent is constantly combing the hair, twisting buttons, drumming fingers; peculiarities in appetite and selection of food are merely signs of the growing stage.

An important feature of the relation between parents and adolescent child is sincerely to try and understand the child, and to realize that to youth it is essential to have recognition, to feel really a part of the family. Indifference on the part of parents to an adolescent's interest can have grave consequences, for he will resort to the spectacular and even the anti-social in order "to make a dent in the family." Parents should encourage constructive activities, praise it rather than merely criticising errors.

"When the school report comes home it is well to praise work that is above average rather than criticise poor work. To some children it may be worth receiving poor marks in school to get the attention which they receive when their reports come home.

"In every household there should be certain times set aside to listen to the confidences of the growing boy or girl when such confidences are given. The interest must not be feigned, since children very easily see through a lack of sincerity on the part of the people with whom they have been associated for years. A part of each mealtime may be set aside for reports of amusing incidents or news of the day. The child should never be forced to talk during this time, but it should be understood that this time is his if he cares to take it. This does not mean that all other conversation should stop and the adolescent be told in a commanding tone 'Now it is your turn.' This would be confusing to an adult, and even more to an adolescent."

Perhaps parents would be helped to a closer understanding of adolescents, advises Dr. Arlitt, if they got away from the idea that changes take place in adolescence that transform him completely from one child to another, "often to one who is a constant source of trouble and disturbance, because of the numerous problems he presents.

"As a matter of fact, the adolescent, while he does present problems . . . is nevertheless the same combination of habits and personality traits which he was before the onset of adolescent changes."

Fur Cleaners

Equal parts of magnesia and dry flour rubbed into white fox fur will whiten it nicely.

White or gray angora will wash in warm soapy water, but care must be taken to stretch the skin in the process of drying to prevent cockling.

ORANGE WAFERS.

One cup butter, two cups sugar, three eggs, one-fourth cup orange juice, two tablespoons grated orange rind, flour. Cream butter and sugar and add well-beaten eggs, orange juice and rind. Add enough flour to make a soft dough that may be rolled. Roll very thin and cut into cookie shapes with fancy cutters. Bake in a moderate oven for about 12 minutes.

System at Home

If you are the person who sends out all the checks and pays all bills you should have a definite place to put the bills and sales slips as they come in. Then there can be no slip-ups and forgotten bills at the end of the month. A certain drawer in the desk always is a good place for these articles.

Firm Handling Necessary for Infant's Trust

Baby Quickly Senses Any Uncertainty, and Becomes Fearful.

By Angelo Patri

WHEN you are tending a baby, do it with a firm, sure hand. No fumbling, no fluttering. Know what you want to do and then go ahead and do it calmly, steadily, surely. If you are wiping the baby's nose, hold him steadily and gently and surely, and finish the job.

A baby knows you and feels you before he hears or sees you. He feels the touch of your hand and in that touch he realizes the power of your mind. He knows when you are frightened. He knows when you are irritable; when you are nervous. He catches the slightest touch of uncertainty or fear on your part. Then he is afraid, and he wiggles and squirms and cries. He has no faith in the touch of an unsure hand.

Through her hands a mother teaches her child to understand her, to believe in her. Now the way to steady hands is through certainty in the mind. Hands obey thoughts. When you know what you want to do, and how to do it, and your mind is set upon the doing, your hands will be steady and firm and sure. The baby will feel your strength and courage and take them into his thought. That in itself is a great influence upon his character and contributes definitely toward his mental and physical well-being.

The first step toward this sureness is regularity and order. The things that are to be used for the baby's care must be ready and in place. Bottles must be sterilized on schedule. Baby's clothes washed on time and laid ready; soap, powder, vaseline, towels, sponges—all waiting on a tray with a clean towel covering them. The bed, the carriage, prepared. All things in order and on time assures a placid mind, and that ensures the steady hand.

The best prepared mother has her spells of doubt. Sometimes it's the baby's formula. Should it be altered? The baby doesn't seem to enjoy it. And then again, the baby forms an unfortunate habit. What is mother to do when baby sucks his hands, or sucks the blanket or bumps his head repeatedly against the crib? If such doubts arise in your mind the best thing to do is to consult the family physician, or the health nurse. It is better to ask for advice than to try to apply a remedy in which you have little faith. First know what should be done; then do it. That's the law. It is necessary to have faith in the treatment of a child before you can get results. Sureness in your mind creates faith in his.

Don't slap babies unless in an emergency, and remember that an emergency is rare, perhaps once in a child's infancy. Slapping, shaking and shoving an infant about is the worst possible treatment he can receive. It creates in him a doubt of the hands that minister to him. It means loss of faith. He no longer feels safe under your hands, and once this feeling of uncertainty is set in a child's mind he is no longer sure of anything. He turns away from his food, his bath, his outings. He whines and cries without reason. He goes into fits of temper at the slightest provocation.

A sure, firm hand can lift a child and put him where he ought to be. He will not fear that firmness, for he knows that there is good in it for him. He has faith even though he is being disciplined.

Teach your child to trust your hands.

Rising Above Failure

By Dale Carnegie

ULYSSES S. GRANT was born 116 years ago today on an Ohio farm. As a young man, he entered West Point. He was the best horseman of his class, though not the best mathematician. Graduating, he entered the army. In the War with Mexico he was breveted for gallantry. He was off to a splendid start.

But Grant was a heavy drinker, and he was asked by his commanding officer to resign from the army. He tried farming, but he couldn't make a go of it. He had a turn at real estate, but his partner asked for the dissolution of the partnership. He even tried merchandising leather, in business with his father. But that was so absolutely foreign to his nature that probably under no circumstances could he have succeeded at it. He got to the point where his acquaintances avoided him for fear he would try to borrow money. Before he was 40 years old he had been branded as a failure at everything he had attempted.

Then he got what most men get, at some period in a discouraging career—another chance. A chance that would, in a little while, cause his reputation to go flaring and flaming like a shooting star across the firmament of fame.

He couldn't command the respect of his home town, but in three years he would command the most formidable army the world had ever seen.

In four years he would conquer Lee, end the war, and write his name in blazing letters of fire on the pages of history.

In eight years he would be in the White House.

For the Civil War was on and Grant was again in the army. And there was one thing Grant could do—handle men. Regardless of all the criticism surrounding him, Lincoln had confidence in Grant's ability as a leader. He put him in charge of the Union forces.

Today the world cares little what Ulysses S. Grant was in the years before the Civil War. It is concerned only with what Grant did during that war. Every day people flock to his tomb on the banks of the Hudson in New York City to pay tribute to a man who lifted himself out of the realm of scorn and criticism, and twice became President of the United States. All because he devoted himself to the one thing he could do well—handle men.

Gen. Grant constitutes an example for the man who feels himself down and out. A man may be down but he is never definitely out until the breath goes from him.

You can make more friends in two months by becoming really interested in other people, than you can in two years by trying to get other people interested in you. Which is just another way of saying that the way to make a friend is to be one.

A handful of salt thrown in with the soaking handkerchiefs will make the job of washing easier.

SIREN AND SAINT

A Serial of Two Sisters

Gene's Mother Confesses to Enid That She Caused Their Separation—She Asks the Girl to Help Her.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN.

ALICE MATHEWS talked on. Sometimes her voice was so low Enid had to strain to hear it; sometimes it was shrill, rising higher and higher in the little room. But always there was that desperate quality in it that the girl had never associated with Gene's mother before.

The woman leaning forward in her chair didn't seem like Gene's mother. Enid had to remind herself constantly that it was she. She had to say to herself: "This is Gene's mother, and she has come to me—come to me."

Then she would look again at the unhappy woman, and she would wonder where Mrs. Mathews' poise had gone, how she could have changed so much in the few months since she had seen her.

Her eyes, hunted eyes — no smile behind them, that queer superior smile that Enid could never understand, that smile that set her apart from everyone, that preached her security, her happiness to the world.

That was gone. She looked old to Enid, and the girl had never before thought of her as old. Her face was wreathed in lines, deep lines, and her firm mouth was firm no longer.

It quivered when words came from it, and now and then the hunted eyes filled with tears.

"You understand," she was saying. "You understand, Enid. I've no one else I could come to and talk this way. I've tried to talk to Gene, but he won't listen, and he's all I have."

Gene's mother was pleading with her, she who had never pleaded with anyone before. Enid got up from her chair and touched Mrs. Mathews' hand. Her touch seemed to calm the older woman.

"All my life given to Gene, all my hopes—I think you even understand that. My dreams bound up in him, and his future.

"I—I never told anyone how I felt when his father died, and there was no money left. It seemed the end, because I began to dream for Gene even before he was born.

"But then I saw it wasn't the end. I saw that Gene could still have a future in his chosen field. But he's throwing it up now, Enid——"

Enid had put her arms around Alice Mathews' shoulders before, but never before had the rigid body relaxed, had it bent toward her, responding to the caress. It did now. Mrs. Mathews clung to her.

"And I've wronged you, Enid. Perhaps you didn't know, but I did wrong you—and in wronging you, I wronged my son. But I didn't know—I couldn't tell what would happen. If I could have known—oh, Enid—"

"Hush, everything will be all right—" She felt the sagging shoulders shiver.

"I hated you, Enid. I hated you because Gene loved you. I have to tell you when it is too late. I did all I could to make him interested in somebody else.

"It seemed providential when Libby came along. I talked to him about her all I could. I urged Libby to come up. I did, Enid.

"I didn't mean that anyone should ever know—and Gene never knew. I have my own ways of suggesting things to him, and when he accepts them he thinks they are his own.

"I prayed at night that he would turn to Libby. I got down on my knees. And when he did, I was so happy. I thought I had everything I wanted, but I lost him, Enid, when he turned to Libby.

"He was mine, still, when he had you—and if I hadn't interfered he would have been mine forever. But he's gone now—my boy—and I know he'll never come back.

"She doesn't love him, Enid. She can't love him—not as you did. I know you loved him—now that it's too late.

"I know you were good for him. Libby isn't. She's drained him of all the ambition he ever had—"

Mrs. Mathews was weeping quietly.

* * *

WHY should she come to me? Enid thought as she looked at her. Why should she open old wounds that were healing so well?

Some of the old bitterness rushed through the girl, then when she heard the woman's sobs, the bitterness left, and she was sorry.

"Have you gone to see Libby?" she asked.

Mrs. Mathews looked up, and wiped some of the tears away. "I tried to talk to her sometime ago, and then again last week. She promised she'd see that Gene got enough time to study, but she never thought of the promise after she'd given it.

"She went on demanding as much time as ever of him. Night after night they went out. She doesn't understand promises. He hasn't opened a book since before Christmas."

The smooth, pleasant present was gone. The past was before Enid—the past filled with Gene and his school, his work, his life.

Her life as it fitted into his life and his thoughts and his future. She felt depressed and worried.

Was it only last night that she had said so confidently before she left the flat, "It's over! I'm sure it's over—all the love I ever had for Gene."

She remembered going out of the flat as if she were treading on air, a light buoyancy about her, a feeling of exhilaration. She wanted to laugh and to sing.

Prairie to get the allotments that

She had sung as she ran down the stairs to get into Sylvia Daniels' car. All during the evening, the buoyancy lasted, and the exhilaration, and she had come back still feeling so light and so happy, and she had sung again while she was undressing.

Today it had been the same way, the glorious detachment from everything that kept her floating above her work, above everything. She had still had it when the door bell rung, and she opened the door.

It had disappeared when she had seen Mrs. Mathews, and that curious flatness that was associated with that first month she had been parted from Gene was back.

The very room was different, the touch of her fingers against her cheeks, the feel of her body.

The great long stemmed red roses which had come last night from Clark Waldron were not as fresh as they had been a while ago. She had gone up to them a few moments before the door bell had rung, buried her face in their fragrance.

They had been fresh then, and their perfume was all over the apartment. She couldn't smell them now, their perfume was gone, and she noticed as she looked over at them that some of the petals had turned a purplish red.

Beside the bowl of roses on the table was the scrap book she had been working on for Jerry.

* * *

THE scissors were as she left them when Gene's mother came—on top of the book. She knew she couldn't work on it tonight — couldn't touch it, and she had promised it to him tomorrow.

"Enid, could you go to Libby? That's the only thing that might help. She wouldn't do it for me, but she might do it for you.

"Could you make her see that it's foolish for Gene to give up his college? A word from her and he'll go on. I know.

"It's simply because she is so uninterested in his work, and in his school, that he's made this decision.

"Probably she advised him on it. I think he said she did. But it isn't too late for her to change her mind—he could start again in a week for the next term.

"He could arrange for Mr. Simpson to give him night work at the factory so that he could go. I didn't tell you—that most of the money is gone. That, too, Enid—"

Now all her shame was complete. She had no more to tell. Her head bowed a little on her chest, and a quivering sigh left her lips.

"Could you, Enid? It's the last chance I have. Libby might listen to you—"

"Could I go to Libby? Could I make her see that Gene's mother is desperate? Could we talk about Gene—we never have since she took him away from me, yet his name is always before us when we meet accidentally on the street. It's hovering above us, and both of us want to say it and we can't," Enid thought.

Last week they had met at the stocking counter of a department store, and Libby had talked about a new dress she had bought, black with an amber sash.

It had been that way the week before when Libby had dashed into her office with Ray Borth. Not the black dress that time, nor the pictures, but the weather, and an antique brooch the Polish artist, Mashlevki, had given Libby.

Two girls meeting, greeting, leaving. Quick exclamations, a hurried kiss, and peculiar relief at parting, for the name neither of them had had the courage to utter yet ruined their meetings.

"Could you, Enid?"

"I'll do it. I'll try."

"Oh, Enid, I think I love you more than anyone except Gene. I think I should be so happy now if you could be a — daughter to me. I'm so sorry for everything I've done to you. I want you to believe me. I want you to tell me you believe me."

"I do—believe you." Curiously Enid did.

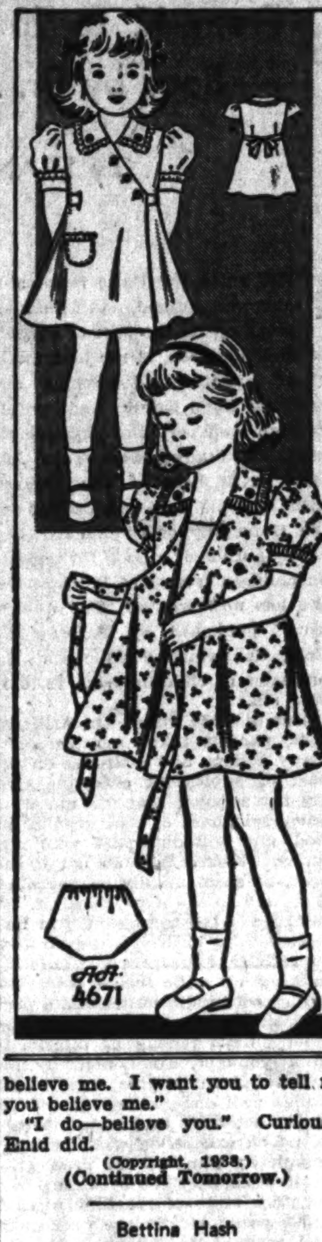
TODAY'S PATTERN



Child's Frock

JUST right for a small girl's vacation and play wear, is this unusual style. Mother will like this youthful frock because it's so easy to make and quick to tub, while little daughter will adore it because it's simple to don—for she just slips into it, fastens the buttons, ties the sash—and she's all dressed. Typically smart Anne Adams details are the rim collar, cuffs and pocket—all outlined by dainty frills. What's more — Pattern 4671 looks pretty in almost any inexpensive, tubbable cotton material, such as polka-dotted percale, chambray, gingham, lawn, challis.

Pattern 4671 is available in children's sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6 takes three yards 36-inch fabric and 1¾ yards ruffling. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

SWEET POTATO BALLS.

Pare and boil sweet potatoes in salted water until tender. Drain, mash and season with a little sugar and one well-beaten egg. Form into balls with a marshmallow concealed in the center of each ball. Drop into deep boiling fat and brown quickly and lightly. Drain on brown paper and serve immediately. Very pleasing on a luncheon platter.

Shrimp Croquettes

A solution for the Friday luncheon that can come right from the reserve shelf. Make a cream sauce of two tablespoons of butter, two tablespoons flour, one cup milk, salt and a little cayenne. Add two cups finely chopped canned shrimps, one tablespoon onion juice, one-half teaspoon ground nutmeg, one tablespoon finely chopped parsley. Cool and then shape into croquettes.
